President Leaves Australia; May Visit Viet Troops

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

President Johnson took off from Australia today on his way home, and later was reported to have arrived in Thailand for the night.

There was no direct word from Thailand, but advice received by The Associated Press said the President was understood to be spending the night at Khorat air base, one of the sites the United States has developed for the defense of Thailand and to bomb North Vietnam.

No official confirmation of the trip was expected until the President's departure. That was the pattern followed last year when Johnson visited Cam Ranh Bay in South Vietnam.

Johnson's plane flew north from Melbourne and stopped in Darwin, on the north central coast, for a refueling stop which was not announced in advance.

His meeting with South Vietnamese President Nguyen Van Thieu ended with a declaration that the two men agreed on ways to promote peace in Vietnam. The statement seemed to make clear that Johnson and Thieu agreed on the advisability of informal talks between Thieu's officials and representatives of the Viet Cong's National Liberation Front, without being committed to formal talks with the Front as an organization.

The statement also said the two leaders saw no sign North Vietnam was ready to talk peace and agreed "in these circumstances there was no alternative to continuing appropriate military actions."

The President received Australia's assurances that its pro-American Vietnam policy won't change and heard from Indonesian Foreign Minister Adam Malik on Indonesia's economic needs. A White House spokesman said there was a brief reference to the fact that the United States was contributing about one third of that need, about $100 million, but it was not a new commitment.

Before the service in Melbourne Thursday for Holt, who disappeared last Sunday while swimming in heavy surf off the southeast coast, Johnson called on the prime minister's widow to express his condolences. He was met by Holt's three stepsons, Nicholas, Andrew and Samuel, and was applauded by a crowd of 200.

Study Czech Commie Meeting

VIENNA (AP) — A communique today following a three-day secret meeting of the Czechoslovak Communist party's central committee made no mention of any change in the party leadership despite earlier rumors that President Antonin Novotny might be forced to give up his more important post of party chief.

The communique said that the party's central committee discussed future economic development, the nation's standard of living and "some international negotiations." However, all the committee's decisions may not have been announced.

50 Persons Are Injured In Kansas Train Crash

WAMEGO, Kan. (AP) — A train crowded with 190 holiday passengers collided at a siding just east of Wamego Thursday night with a freight train. The Kansas highway patrol said some 50 passengers were injured, none seriously.

A check of hospitals in Wamego, and nearby Manhattan and Topeka, Kan., disclosed that only 12 persons apparently remained hospitalized overnight. About 20 others were treated and released.

"The train slowed down and the conductor said we would be pulling over for a freight," Lt. Phillip Way of Ft. Riley, Kan., said. "I was talking to my wife when all of a sudden there was one big thud. The train moved backward and then came to a halt."

Holiday Edition

Today's edition of The Herald, in addition to regular news and features, is chock full of special Christmas greetings from local merchants, businessmen and professional people. Many holiday features are also included.

The Union Pacific's Portland Rose, Train No. 18, was carrying passengers enroute from the west to Kansas City, 105 miles east of Wamego. The train was made up of four coaches, two baggage cars and a locomotive.

The 70-car Union Pacific freight train was enroute from Kansas City to Los Angeles.

A Union Pacific spokesman in Omaha, Neb., said the Portland Rose pulled onto a siding to let the freight pass and apparently stuck out one end of the siding too far, fouling the main line.

The engine and one baggage car on the Portland Rose turned over, as did eight cars and all the units of the freight locomotive.

"I was going to sleep when the train stopped," said Windolyn Watson of Kansas City, a junior at Kansas Wesleyan Col-

Armco Steel Tragedy Said Human Error

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP) — Executives of Armco Steel Corp. reported Thursday that human, not mechanical error was behind Monday's accident in which six persons were killed and 24 injured when a ladle fell and splashed a work area with molten metal.

"The ladle of molten metal fell because the crane hooks were not hooked onto the ladle in accordance with standard written safety practices," the company said Thursday.

The ladle containing 30 tons of molten pig iron plunged 40 feet as a crane moved it to an open hearth furnace.

Eleven men remained hospitalized today, none now in critical condition.

A task force of executives from Armco's Middletown, Ohio, head office concluded that a part was not seated properly in the bottom of one hook of the crane, which had been renovated this fall and restored to service three weeks ago.

Transport Firms Geared for Rush

By BOB MONROE
Associated Press Writer

Airlines, railroads and bus lines geared up today to handle the first peak push of the holiday travel season as millions of Americans crisscrossed the country trying to get home for Christmas.

Although the transportation rush began about a week ago, most carriers said the peak days would be today and Jan. 2. Some lines predicted passenger volume records for the period.

Continuing a trend of recent years, many airlines also reported heavy bookings to resort areas including Miami, Hawaii, Mexico and the Caribbean islands.

The National Safety Council in Chicago estimated that the extra millions of drivers on the nation's streets and highways over the weekend would mean from 625 to 725 fatalities.

The Air Transport Association in Washington reported that air lines nationwide were providing 150,000 additional daily seats on scheduled flights during the periods from Dec. 15-23 and Jan. 1-7.

During the same period last year the lines provided 100,000 extra daily seats. An ATS spokesman said this year was "probably the greatest additional service in airline history."

Railroads also added service but at least three lines said they did not expect to handle record crowds unless bad weather forced airlines to cancel flights and made driving hazardous.

Greyhound Bus Lines' Chicago headquarters said that since Dec. 15 it had moved 75,000 troops—the equivalent of five divisions—on holiday leave from

Open River To Barges

POINT PLEASANT, W. Va. (AP)—The Ohio River at the site of the Silver Bridge collapse has been opened for traffic but with several restrictions.

Col. William E. Falek of the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers, which has been coordinating recovery operations, said Thursday navigation will be allowed in a 225-foot mid-channel area over the fallen bridge.

Falek said boats also will be restricted to those with a draw of 13.5 feet or less.

He pointed out traffic might be halted several times because of recovery work at the bridge. Falek estimated it could take until next Wednesday for the backlog of 40 tows with their barges to pass the restricted area.

The death count from the bridge disaster stood at 32 today. State Police said no additional bodies have been found in the river since about noon Thursday.

Christmas Is...

By BETTY DAWLEY
Herald Staff Writer

To an adult, Christmas in the United States seems commercially controlled.

Parents, jostled by crowds, wear their patience and pocket books thin playing Santa Claus. Oft times the "joys of the season" become lost in the manufacturing.

Not so with a child. A pre-Christmas interview with students of the third grade at Pickaway Twp. school was informative and faith restoring. When the question was asked, "What does Christmas mean to you?" the answers from the children were an assurance that the true meaning of Christmas is securely implanted for future reaping.

"Christmas means playing in the snow and making snowmen — Christmas is the time for surprises — Christmas is the time to decorate and to see decorations—it is the time to get presents and go to grandmother's home — it is the time to exchange gifts and the time to give gifts — it is the time to share with others — to go caroling — to buy for the poor — to help make a nice time for others — Christmas is a time for happiness — it means going to church for the special programs there — it is the time when Jesus was born and it is the time we celebrate the birthday of Christ." That is the meaning of Christmas.

Ohio Braces For Cold Air

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Winter, stalking Ohio like a cross lion, blew into the Buckeye State today on the heels of tornado warnings, high winds, rain and falling temperatures.

The new season arrived at 8:17 a.m., leaving behind temperatures in the 60s that broke many records around the state Thursday. The mercury is expected to drop into the teens tonight.

Temperatures dropped about 40 degrees in many areas overnight Thursday and were in the 20s and 30s early today.

The probability of a white Christmas in most of the state is bleak, except in northeastern Ohio's snow belt and along Lake Erie. Snow squalls tonight could result in some accumulation.

Thursday's weather in Buckeye country was spotted with tornado watches in the northern and western sections of Ohio and in the extreme southeastern area of the state. None developed, however.

Several severe thunderstorms struck Northwest Ohio during the late afternoon and early evening. More than three inches of rain fell in Toledo. Some homes were flooded and overflowing storm sewers sent water into the streets.

Some wind damage was reported in the Van Wert area where windows were broken at the county courthouse. The wind storm apparently was spawned by a tornado which touched down near Bluffton, Ind. about 30 miles west of the Ohio border.

Record high temperatures were recorded in Cincinnati, Akron-Canton, Columbus and Cleveland. Cincinnati shot up to 88 degrees. Cleveland and Akron-Canton reported 65 and Columbus, 64.

Nurses Try Again For Recognition

COVINGTON, Ky. (AP) — Members of the Registered Nurses Organization (RNO) are making another attempt to get St. Elizabeth Hospital to recognize it as their collective bargaining agent.

Nearly 140 RNO members who resigned Nov. 16 are gathering signatures for petitions which they will present soon to the Kentucky Department of Labor, said Mrs. Edward Tanner.

Tunnel Roof Helped Speed Rescue Work

GORMAN, Calif. (AP) — Seventeen men, trapped for 19 hours behind a cave-in inside a snowcapped mountain, crawled through a narrow passageway to safety today.

A cheer went up as the men emerged from the entrance to a 1½-mile-long State Water Project tunnel in the Tehachapi Mountains, which separate Northern and Southern California.

Fellow workmen had tried to reach the men from three directions, but feared the men might be trapped as long as four or five days. However, one team—digging head-on through 80 feet of dirt, rock and steel blocking the tunnel—made rapid progress after finding the collapsed steel roof had formed a partial passageway.

"No one felt we would never get out," said one of the trapped men, H.G. Harrison, a construction inspector for the State Department of Water Resources. "But we thought it would take a week to get us out."

"How they got to us as fast as they did I'll never know."

The trapped men laughed, joked and ate and drank from supplies lowered through two pipes—four and eight-inches in diameter—that were undamaged.

King Says Rocky's Man For 1968

By DON MCKEE
Associated Press Writer

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP) — Dr. Martin Luther King Jr., says the Republicans probably would lose most of the Negro vote and the presidency next year by nominating Richard M. Nixon.

King said Thursday in an exclusive interview that the only Republican potential candidate who could defeat President Lyndon B. Johnson is New York's Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller.

"Rockefeller would probably be the first Republican in recent years to get a majority of Negro votes if he were the nominee," King said. The New York governor would decisively split both the Negro and labor votes, King said, and "would get the great group of disenchanted independent voters."

But, King said, neither Nixon nor Gov. Ronald Reagan of California—another Republican possibility—could carry the Negro vote against Johnson.

"I'm not optimistic about the Republicans nominating Rockefeller because the Republicans have a kind of chronic obsession for losing," King said.

King said he was not endorsing a candidate.

Cincy Manager Said in Trouble

CINCINNATI (AP) — A move is afoot to replace City Manager William Wichman, a high Republican source said Thursday, but the 51-year-old administrator denied any knowledge of it.

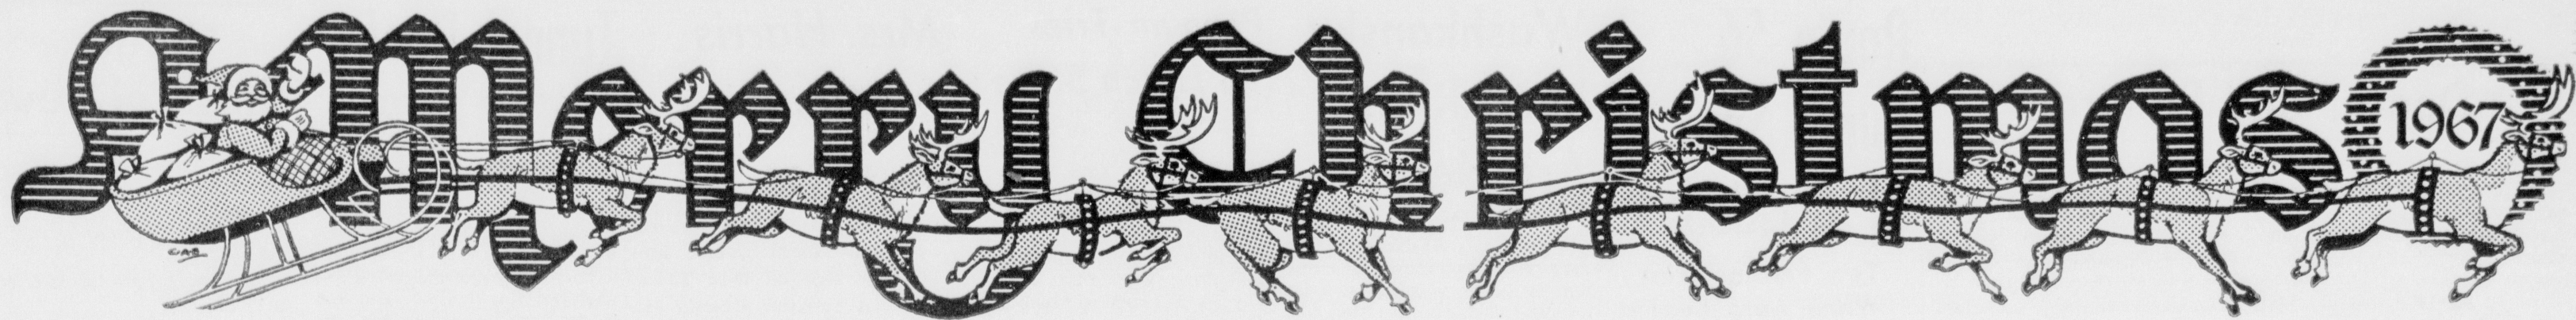

"I have a hard job to do here and I'm doing my best to do it," said Wichman, who has held the post since 1963.

Wichman added that he has no intention of leaving the position and that his health is not bothering him in any way.

Flu Spreads Over Nation

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP) — Influenza-like illnesses have struck sections of the South, East and Midwest, spreading in Michigan and hitting thousands of persons in one Alabama county.

Flu-like outbreaks sent approximately 6,700 persons to their doctors during the week of Dec. 3 in Mobile County, Ala., reported the National Communicable Disease Center of the U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare.

The CDC said there were similar illnesses reported in four other Alabama counties.

In Michigan, the center reported, influenza-like illnesses continued to spread and viruses have been isolated at Detroit and Ann Arbor.

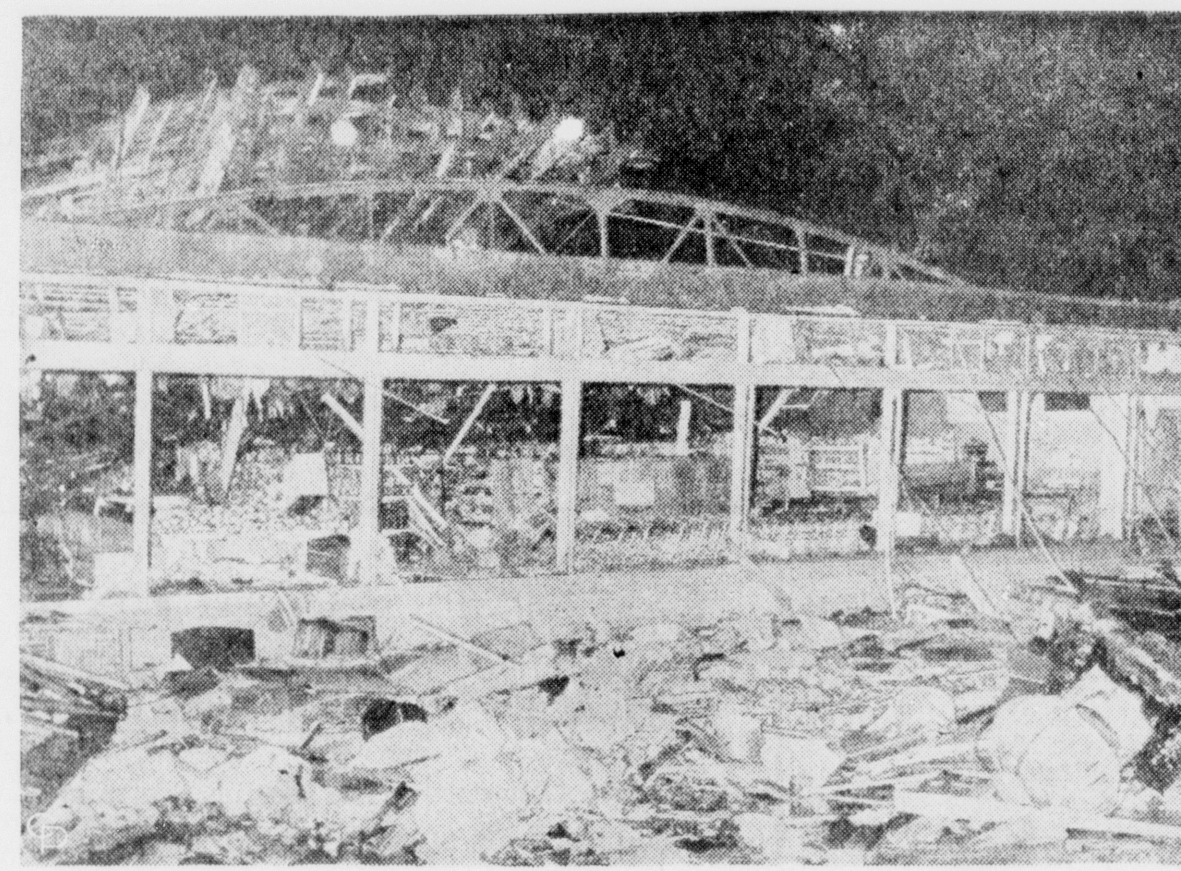

School attendance was cut by similar sickness reports in several states including New York, Oklahoma, Maryland, Ohio, Georgia and the District of Columbia.

In central Ohio, one school had 40 per cent of its pupils out "due to a syndrome consisting of fever, upper respiratory symptoms," the CDC weekly report said.

An outbreak at Tulsa, Okla., sent absenteeism up to 30 per cent in a parochial school. In the neighboring county of Bartlesville, 25 to 30 per cent of the pupils were absent from public school.

The CDC has documented influenza viruses in New York, Michigan, Florida, Alabama and Oklahoma. But the incidence of the disease has not exceeded "the epidemic threshold for a period of two consecutive weeks in any of these regions," the report said.

Two Persons Hurt When Auto Leaves Road, Hits Pole

Two persons were admitted to Berger Hospital following a one-car accident on Route 56 one-half mile east of Route 139 at 10:57 p.m. Thursday.

Listed in "satisfactory" condition today were John Funk, 19, 360 E. Franklin St., the driver of the car, and Nancy Ann Price, 550 Garden Parkway.

Funk was admitted for treatment of head injuries and Miss Price for treatment of shock and other injuries according to the report of the investigating officer, Deputy Richard Clark of the Pickaway County Sheriff's staff.

Both were taken to Berger Hospital by a passing motorist.

DEPUTY Clark said that Funk was westbound on Route 56. He lost control of the car on a curve, went off the left side of the road. The vehicle struck a utility pole and ripped down 100 feet of fence.

The vehicle was demolished. The accident is still under investigation.

The curve where the accident occurred has been the scene of 12 others this year, including a two-car collision resulting in the death of a woman.

Five of the accidents have caused injury to persons.

According to statistics maintained by Sheriff Dwight Radcliff of every accident that occurs in the county, the Route 56 curve is the most dangerous spot in the county this year.

Muny Court Hears 13 Cases

Charges of traffic violations were filed against one local and 12 out-of-county motorists in Municipal Court Thursday.

Gale McNeal, 24, of 409 Fay Ave., was charged by city police with operating a vehicle without due regard to the safety of others.

McNeal, who entered a plea of no contest, was found guilty as charged and fined $25 and costs by the court.

The court collected $308 in fines and bond forfeitures from out-of-county motorists.

Washkansky Final Rites Are Held

CAPE TOWN, South Africa (AP) — Louis Washkansky, first man ever to receive a transplanted heart, was buried today by the rabbi who married him 21 years ago.

The surgeon who headed the transplant team, exhausted by efforts to save Washkansky from pneumonia while the transplanted heart still beat strongly, did not attend the funeral and prepared to leave for a television appearance in the United States.

Prof. Christian N. Barnard was represented at the funeral by his younger brother, Marius, also a member of the transplant team. Several hundred people, including Mayor Gerald Ferry, gathered at the Jewish cemetery in the picturesque garden suburb of Pinelands. The chief rabbi of Cape Town, Prof. Israel Abrahams, conducted the traditional Jewish ceremony.

Dr. C. Botha, the pathologist who was one of the key figures in the transplant, was chief pallbearer.

Washkansky's widow, Ann, 41, showed signs of distress as the casket was lowered into the grave.

Washkansky, a 53-year-old wholesale grocer, lived 18 days after the historic transplant Dec. 3 which gave him the heart of a 25-year-old woman who had been injured fatally when hit by a car.

Set Inspection Of Bridges Soon

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—The Harrisburg, Pa., firm of Madjeski and Masters will begin inspection of three state-maintained bridges over the Ohio River next Tuesday under a special $40,000 allocation granted Thursday by the State Controlling Board.

The Ohio Department of Highways, which asked for the allocation, said the East Liverpool-Chester, W. Va.; the Ft. Steuben Bridge at Steubenville and the Pomeroy-Mason Bridge will undergo thorough inspections to determine their safety.

Cincinnati Taxi Driver Robbed

CINCINNATI (AP)— Another Cincinnati taxi driver was robbed early today by two men who fled after ripping the microphone from his car radio.

William Gallagher, 69, told police he responded to a call from the Kennedy Heights section when he was accosted by two armed men.

The robber took $333 and his keys and told him to run away.

Penguin Tries To Hatch Stone

CLEVELAND (AP)—The fatherly instincts of a penguin at the Cleveland Zoo has led it to the impossible task of trying to hatch a stone.

Charles R. Voracek, the zoo's public service director, says the male king penguin has been sitting on a two-inch stone since Tuesday.

"He's nastier than sin," Voracek said Thursday. "He is determined that he's going to hatch that stone come hell or high water."

It is customary for the male king penguin to hatch the egg while the mother takes it easy for a couple of months. She then takes over the feeding of the new bird.

Pope Requests Bombing Pause

VATICAN CITY (AP) — Pope Paul VI asked the United States today to suspend bombing in Vietnam and offered once again to mediate in the conflict.

"Many voices have requested us to exhort one of the participants to suspend bombing," the Pope said.

"We have done it before and we'll do it again," he added. The appeal was contained in a 28-page address delivered to the College of Cardinals. They had assembled at the Vatican to extend Christmas greetings to the Pope.

Mrs. Harris Is Miami Speaker

OXFORD, Ohio (AP)—America's first Negro woman ambassador stressed here Thursday that youthful protests are essential since they perhaps show that the older generation is making mistakes.

"I, for one, welcome the impatience and downright disgust of your generation," Patricia Harris told 301 graduating members of Miami University at the winter commencement service.

Mrs. Harris currently serves as an alternate delegate to the U.S. mission at the United Nations.

She told the group that manifestations of impatience with established order force the older generation to examine the sources of discontent which may lead to necessary changes.

The past is not always a reliable guide for the present, Mrs. Harris said.

Miami President Phillip Shriver conferred an honorary doctor of humane letters degree on Mrs. Harris at the commencement.

"You would expect that many men to have some hysteria," added Harrison, "but there was none."

"I've made enough money in overtime to take a few days off," sighed Charles Shuler.

"You've got to give credit to the guys up top," he added. "They were digging through a hole without timbers. That's damn dangerous."

Rescuers dug through the debris into the chamber, shook hands with the trapped men, and then backtracked to shore up the escape tunnel and cut protruding steel with welding torches.

Despite Death of Washkansky, Doctors Eye Future

By JOHN BARBOUR
AP Science Writer

In the end it was the man who died, but not the idea.

For a time a 53-year-old South African grocer with a failing heart had been given hope, indeed had lived 18 days with a strange new heart beating in his breast, and smiled and talked cautiously about the future.

Then he died, and with him the chance for success in this first attempt to transplant the human heart from one person to another.

The experiment was born out of the desperate frustration of doctors watching the whole man die for want of one healthy organ.

It will be tried again for the same reason.

Prof. Christian N. Barnard, who performed the heart transplant, said a post-mortem produced no evidence that the body's tendency to reject alien tissue played any part in Louis Washkansky's death.

Washkansky's anesthetist said the heart was working well to the end, and that death was caused by a severe infection of the lungs.

On Dec. 3 in daring surgery they had replaced Washkansky's sick heart with the more vital heart of Denise Ann Darvall, 25, an auto accident victim. But now they were powerless to stop the secret forces moving against Washkansky.

The failure points up the gaps in man's knowledge. The doctors know how the heart works, how the blood courses through this vital pump to the lungs to be refreshed, and back through the heart to carry food and to cleanse the distant cells of the body.

They know how to keep a man alive briefly with a heart-lung machine. They know how to take a heart out and place it in another body.

They know that a certain

Hold Suspect In Robbery

CLEVELAND (AP)—Police arrested a 41-year-old East Side man Thursday after the $4,000 robbery of the Third Federal Savings & Loan Association, a high speed chase and a collision involving a police cruiser.

Police are seeking a second man and the missing loot.

Two patrolmen started chasing an auto on Woodland Avenue after the robbery at 6005 Francis Ave. Vendel Samir, 75, spotted two men jumping into an auto and gave police the first three letters of the Texas license plate.

Patrolmen chased the auto at speeds up to 60 miles per hour. The car tried to make a left turn at East 71st Street and Quincy Avenue, spun around and sideswiped the police cruiser.

The auto then continued on and hit a railroad overpass.

One man was arrested and the other got away.

white blood cell called a lymphocyte is a keystone to the body's ability to fight off infection, to build immunity, to reject things foreign. They know that somehow the lymphocyte recognizes protein intruders, and mobilizes against them.

They know that the body produces antibodies against germs and against foreign tissues. They know these antibodies are designed to attack specific targets.

But no one knows just how the immunity forces, the rejection mechanism, work. No one knows just how the body recognizes a transplanted heart or kidney or liver or spleen as a stranger. No one knows for certain whether there are one or many systems at work to protect the body.

The doctors give transplant patients powerful drugs to drive down the immunity forces, to make the body more tolerant although they know that when they do this they are nearly stripping the body of its weapons against even normally harmless infection.

Thus, the body may learn to tolerate its new kidney or heart only to die later of pneumonia.

The doctors see strange signs in the lungs and wonder if it is a bacteria they can fight with antibiotics, or a fungus, or a virus against which they are powerless.

The lungs, one of the body's filters, become the collecting point of trouble. Here doctors may find blood clots that form elsewhere, or clumps of cells, or slowly accumulating fluids when the heart shows signs of failure.

So it was with Louis Washkansky. If his lungs were infected, the infection did not respond to penicillin.

If it were some sign of rejection that showed in the lungs, the doctors could not recognize it.

From the beginning, Washkansky must have known the awful reality of his odds for survival. His was the first heart transplant, and the first of any thing is the most risky.

He also must have known that his would not be the last. Even while he was recuperating, Dr. Adrian Kantrowitz, a Brooklyn heart surgeon, took the heart from a dead baby and transplanted it to the chest of a 2½ week old boy. For six hours the infant lived with his new heart, and then it failed, and the doctors did not know why.

Yet the men who pioneer transplants know they must try in humans, or never know the answers. They have not rushed to the surgical table. Dr. Kantrowitz said his hospital and his team felt they were ready to transplant a heart as early as mid-1966. Yet they did not attempt it until Dec. 6.

In the cases tried, death is first judged to be inevitable anyway for both donor and recipient, with or without the operation.

Surgeons also know that human heart transplants are not the answer for the half a million Americans who die each year of heart trouble. There would not be enough hearts to go around, even if doctors knew well enough how to make the heart last. The answer, almost everyone believes, is a truly artificial, man-made heart to replace those that become sick. Beyond that, the better answer is to prevent heart disease in the first place.

Yet perhaps a new heart could keep a person alive long enough for the artificial heart to become reality.

In any case, faced with a person 90 per cent healthy but dying for want of a heart or a kidney, doctors will take any reasonable step to thwart death.

For years they have transplanted kidneys and other organs to this end. In the beginning they met continual failure.

Now their successes are growing.

The future holds other possibilities. In laboratory experiments surgeons have grafted the brain of one dog to the body of another. The transferred brain lived for three days.

Many researchers say it never will be practical to transplant the human brain. And even if it were, they ask, would you be giving a man a new brain, or a brain a new man.

Who is to say. But who would have guessed at the turn of the century that men would be taking out hearts, throwing them away, and replacing them with new hearts?

And when Louis Washkansky was born in 1914, who would have dreamed of the course his life would take.

The failure points up the gaps in man's knowledge. The doctors know how the heart works, how the blood courses through this vital pump to the lungs to be refreshed, and back through the heart to carry food and to cleanse the distant cells of the body.

They know how to keep a man alive briefly with a heart-lung machine. They know how to take a heart out and place it in another body.

Hold Suspect In Robbery

CLEVELAND (AP)—Police arrested a 41-year-old East Side man Thursday after the $4,000 robbery of the Third Federal Savings & Loan Association, a high speed chase and a collision involving a police cruiser.

Police are seeking a second man and the missing loot.

Two patrolmen started chasing an auto on Woodland Avenue after the robbery at 6005 Francis Ave. Vendel Samir, 75, spotted two men jumping into an auto and gave police the first three letters of the Texas license plate.

Patrolmen chased the auto at speeds up to 60 miles per hour. The car tried to make a left turn at East 71st Street and Quincy Avenue, spun around and sideswiped the police cruiser.

The auto then continued on and hit a railroad overpass.

One man was arrested and the other got away.

white blood cell called a lymphocyte is a keystone to the body's ability to fight off infection, to build immunity, to reject things foreign. They know that somehow the lymphocyte recognizes protein intruders, and mobilizes against them.

They know that the body produces antibodies against germs and against foreign tissues. They know these antibodies are designed to attack specific targets.

But no one knows just how the immunity forces, the rejection mechanism, work. No one knows just how the body recognizes a transplanted heart or kidney or liver or spleen as a stranger. No one knows for certain whether there are one or many systems at work to protect the body.

The doctors give transplant patients powerful drugs to drive down the immunity forces, to make the body more tolerant although they know that when they do this they are nearly stripping the body of its weapons against even normally harmless infection.

Thus, the body may learn to tolerate its new kidney or heart only to die later of pneumonia.

The doctors see strange signs in the lungs and wonder if it is a bacteria they can fight with antibiotics, or a fungus, or a virus against which they are powerless.

The lungs, one of the body's filters, become the collecting point of trouble. Here doctors may find blood clots that form elsewhere, or clumps of cells, or slowly accumulating fluids when the heart shows signs of failure.

So it was with Louis Washkansky. If his lungs were infected, the infection did not respond to penicillin.

If it were some sign of rejection that showed in the lungs, the doctors could not recognize it.

From the beginning, Washkansky must have known the awful reality of his odds for survival. His was the first heart transplant, and the first of anything is the most risky.

He also must have known that his would not be the last. Even while he was recuperating, Dr. Adrian Kantrowitz, a Brooklyn heart surgeon, took the heart from a dead baby and transplanted it to the chest of a 2½ week old boy. For six hours the infant lived with his new heart, and then it failed, and the doctors did not know why.

Yet the men who pioneer transplants know they must try in humans, or never know the answers. They have not rushed to the surgical table. Dr. Kantrowitz said his hospital and his team felt they were ready to transplant a heart as early as mid-1966. Yet they did not attempt it until Dec. 6.

In the cases tried, death is first judged to be inevitable anyway for both donor and recipient, with or without the operation.

Surgeons also know that human heart transplants are not the answer for the half a million Americans who die each year of heart trouble. There would not be enough hearts to go around, even if doctors knew well enough how to make the heart last. The answer, almost everyone believes, is a truly artificial, man-made heart to replace those that become sick. Beyond that, the better answer is to prevent heart disease in the first place.

Yet perhaps a new heart could keep a person alive long enough for the artificial heart to become reality.

In any case, faced with a person 90 per cent healthy but dying for want of a heart or a kidney, doctors will take any reasonable step to thwart death.

For years they have transplanted kidneys and other organs to this end. In the beginning they met continual failure.

Now their successes are growing.

The future holds other possibilities. In laboratory experiments surgeons have grafted the brain of one dog to the body of another. The transferred brain lived for three days.

Many researchers say it never will be practical to transplant the human brain. And even if it were, they ask, would you be giving a man a new brain, or a brain a new man.

Who is to say. But who would have guessed at the turn of the century that men would be taking out hearts, throwing them away, and replacing them with new hearts? And when Louis Washkansky was born in 1914, who would have dreamed of the course his life would take.

Where Tests Fail

Aptitude tests may be excellent tools to tell a person where his abilities are keenest, but their influence on his life ends at this point. Personal choices in vocations frequently turn to fields in which testing mediums have shown the person to have a low degree of native ability.

Indications of ability trends have

But all the tests to the contrary, when the reality of applying for work is reached, the personal choice outdistances all other considerations.

The Business World

By JOHN CUNIFF

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market's year-end rally is becoming as much an institution in financial communities as Christmas parties and bonuses, both of which have been plentiful and bountiful this year.

There still remains some slight uncertainty, however, about the appearance of the traditional rally. In 35 of the past 40 years it has arrived on schedule, but you don't have to look far to find exceptions.

Last year, as the culmination of a nearly year-long decline, the market faded in the final week. As if to emphasize the year's bearishness, prices fell on each day between Christmas and New Year's.

There are a few indications this year also that the year-end rally might not be as pronounced or as financially rewarding as it has been in most years. But neither are prices expected to fall very much, it is a safe bet.

The factors that keep prices buoyant are numerous, but perhaps nothing in recent years has played a bigger role than income taxes. Shareowners early in December often sell stock to establish gains or losses for reporting on their tax forms in April.

This often depresses the prices of many shares and the stage for a quick recovery, especially if such tax selling has depressed prices into the big value category. There are always buyers looking for real values.

Selling to establish tax losses is a more important factor than selling to realize gains, for those who have big declines for the year are very much inclined to recoup some of their losses through tax rebates. The law says $1,000 per person in losses can be deducted from income each year.

In anticipation of a busy Christmas season, most shareholders get their tax selling out of the way by Dec. 25. This leaves them with proceeds to reinvest and, in the Christmas spirit, they frequently do just that.

Institutions increasingly are doing their bit to assure the year-end rally, for many of them dress up their portfolios

with new stocks before the year-end report. A big list of strong stocks is their best window display.

All these coincidental factors act to boost prices during the final week of the year and very often well into January of the next year as well.

Psychological factors also play a role. December is the month of economic forecasts, and few analysts of the American economy are consistently bearish. Hope and optimism reign, at least in the financial realm.

This year two other factors will be influencing the year-end attitude. First, inflation is unrestrained at the moment and very likely will remain unchecked into 1968. A good many people believe stocks are inflation's best hedge.

The other factor might work to dampen a year-end rally. Again, this factor involves taxes. There is a widespread feeling that income taxes will be raised next year. As a result, many shareholders are bound to sell and take their profits this year.

Letters To The Editor

Dear Editor:

The following article was written by a minister friend of mine, Charles Fisher of Elk Grove Village, Ill. I submit the timely article to you for your consideration in publishing it.

DR. H. H. SWOPE
N. Court St.

"The trouble with youth today," . . . and then follows the lament about long hair, crazy clothes, unheard-of words, jump music and a mile long list of sins.

"The real trouble, however, isn't with youth, it's with us, the older generations! Our memories are not too good! We have forgotten the days of our youth! It is a far better guess, that we prefer not to remember."

"The truth is that we too wore 'funny' clothes, dirty shoes, wrote inscriptions on jackets, went to football games with coon-skin coats and hip-flasks, and the girls threw their skirts over their heads when they danced the 'jitter-bug'. We rebelled against parents, schools and community, we pushed over 'out-houses', procured a chicken for a cook-out-roast, and petted on back roads under a shade tree. Because our numbers were so small in relation to older folks, we didn't get too far, too fast. There isn't much difference between the kids of 1920, 1930, 1940 and the kids of today! The covering which my generation is covered with is not silver and gold, but rather rust. We simply don't want you to know!"

"There is much evidence, if we seek it, that our present generation of youth is in many ways better off than any of those that have gone before it in this country. This is a sophisticated youth, he has traveled, he will 'bum' if need be, he goes fast, he has much power at his disposal, he is in a 'Buck Rogers Age' come true, he thinks before he accepts, and he seeks peace and freedom, not only for himself but for all people, his world is not confined to a city or a county, or a state or even a nation, but a universe! 'This youth will move into slums, even go to uncivilized places simply to help people. He will go without big salary to have meaning and purpose and by the same token he will marry, have children and still work hard enough to 'still get' his college degree.

"His teachers, in many ways, have failed him! He wants to be more than a book of facts which he is supposed to 'sell' to the highest bidder! He sees little sense in sitting in a class for six weeks, if all the teaching can be done in two! Ways, means, methods, structures, created for a pre-atomic age, no longer fit his needs, and he has basically only been offered such, in education, housing, religion, community planning, and life in the family.

"And as for war, my generation went off singing as if we were going to be 'football stars' on a 'picture-book' battlefield, and only after an invasion did we know what 'kids' today have known for years as they watch the 'daily score' on the TV channel of your choice.

"Our big mistake, that is the mistake of my generation, is that we have tried to 'shout down' youth. It is our defense mechanism!"

TODAY In History

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Today is Friday, Dec. 22 the 356th day of 1967. There are nine days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history: On this date in 1945, the United States and Britain recognized the new Yugoslav republic.

On this date—

In 1696, the founder of the colony of Georgia, James Oglethorpe, was born.

In 1775, the American Continental Naval Fleet — two frigates, two brigs and three schooners—was organized under the command of Ezekiel Hopkins.

In 1894, the French army captain, Alfred Dreyfus, was found guilty of treason in a court-martial which inflamed world opinion.

In 1942, U.S. heavy bombers raided Rangoon, Burma, during World War II.

In 1944, also during World War II, the American general, Anthony McAuliffe, said "nuts" when the Germans demanded that he surrender at Bastogne, Belgium.

In 1963, America's month of official mourning for President John F. Kennedy ended with a candlelight ceremony at the Lincoln Memorial in Washington.

Ten years ago: The Scottish freighter, "Narva," sank in a North Sea storm. Twenty-eight sailors drowned.

Five years ago: The Castro government in Havana began releasing Cuban war prisoners after receiving ransom in the form of medicine and food.

One year ago: A Soviet spaceship made a soft landing on the moon.

"Years ago we coined words like 'juvenile delinquency' when we wanted to cover our own scramble for status and the price we were willing to pay for it. It is my generation that has CUT OFF the communication with the youth generation.

"Youth want to learn, share, and hear from us, they have believed that we must have something to give to them besides abundance, toys, cars and a paycheck that seldom covers all the bills. They have hoped that underneath it all, there was more than religious councils, bowling teams, and bargained sex between parents. Youth rather suspicious that we are not what we claim we are, and they can comprehend that, for they never did see us as 'gods', but what they will not tolerate is our failure to admit what we really are like!

"This youth generation is honest! They seem not to be buying our double standards. They want honest communication, or no communication. They dislike the 'phony' and 'the establishment'. They understand 'The Man For All Seasons'. They are seeking truth! It looks like they may find it after all the dust and rust is removed.

"Youth wants to give! They not only wanted us to share with them, they wanted to give to us. They have something to give too! I know!

"They are realists, they can see 'things' which we are blinded to, they in a few minutes can clear up 'messes' which we spend hours upon and still never clarify, their answers are simple ones, real ones, but far too costly for us in our 'rut'. They know automation, leisure time, population explosion and prosperity much better than us. They are afraid of working with their hands in ditches, or filling their hours with purpose, or living with 10 people in the same room, or being poor. It is my generation that is afraid!

"Most of all, these youth give me hope!

"If I were to follow the thinking of my generation, then I would be forced to admit that there is little hope for the world. That is a dreadful thought! Of course there is a difference between thinking and doing. When my generation become grandparents, our actions will be centered upon the grave instead of upon status. That will change our thinking!

"And in two or three decades our present youth generation will be the older generation. Their children will be the 'youth generation' and there will be rebellion, lack of communication and disobedience.

"There will be new words for 'rebel' and 'hippie'. New forms, structures, methods, techniques, ethics and morals will be formed. And it could well be that the youth of this generation, who will then be the elders, will also be willing and wise enough to say, 'This is a better youth than that of our day'."

"How else could it be? Is that not the meaning of life itself? Is it not 'the willingness to change'?"

Try and Stop Me

THE INIMITABLE Robert Benchley may have written the very last word on the subject of roosters when he pointed out, "The rooster is an entirely different sort of bird from the hen. He has a red crest on the top of his head—put there by Nature so that the hen can see the rooster coming in a crowd and can hop into a taxi or make a previous engagement if she wants to. One of the happiest and most successful roosters I ever saw was one who had his red crest chewed off in a fight with a dog. He also wore sneakers."

I like Betty Le Gere's story about her little boy who was passionately attached to his toy soldiers and Indians, and played with them endlessly until his eleventh birthday. Then he swept them all into a big box and carried them up to the attic. "Why don't you like to play with them any more?" inquired Mrs. Le Gere. The boy explained soberly, "They don't talk back to me any more."

C. E. Salter, safety director, disposed of his store, The Scioto Valley Cigar Co. on S. Court St., due to failing health. Mr. Salter had been in the business of manufacturing and selling cigars and tobacco for 28 years.

The American Legion again made plans for its annual community Christmas tree. The tree was placed on the courthouse yard. From here, on Christmas Eve, thousands of bags of candy, nuts and fruit were passed out to the children of the city.

The men's furnishing store of Kitty Fissell, known as the Caddy Miller Hat Shop in Circleville, underwent a complete interior change. The new arrangement made the display of goods much more effective.

Heavy rains caused many roads in Pickaway County to be closed and brought several thousands of dollars in crop damage.

Pickaway County was given its first look and full description of the new Ford automobile. The Brehmer showrooms were filled with people to view and learn about the car. Company officials at Detroit announced that production of the new Ford line would not make the Model T line obsolete.

Speaking of Your Health

By Lester L. Coleman, M.D.

Why do some people become severely depressed, especially around a holiday period?

It is astonishing how frequently patients make the observation that they become severely depressed at the time of a anniversary, birthdays, Thanksgiving, Christmas and Easter Holidays. Many of them may even develop physical symptoms that coincide with these periods.

This particular response has been called an anniversary reaction or even an anniversary disease. Two very famous specialists in psychosomatic disease, Dr. E. Weiss and Dr. Spurgeon English, have tried to explain this unusual psychological and social phenomenon.

They believe that anniversaries tend to highlight the encroachment of aging. Birthdays, especially the 50th and 60th ones, sometimes threaten the security of people who feel that life is slipping away from them. Emotional disturbances in these instances may be based upon the fear that retirement from their jobs may affect their income and their security.

Major holidays, like Thanksgiving and Christmas, may exaggerate a person's loneliness because he recalls the pleasant of these periods as a child.

The anniversary disease is so prevalent that there are many people who become distressed even over a weekend when they are dependent upon themselves to bridge time until the Monday return to work.

Physicians today have a deep insight into the total structure of their patients. They quickly recognize the delicate balance between the mind and the body and then explain that relationship to the fearful patients. The result is a greater bond between doctor and patient.

Patients learn quickly that there is no artificial separation between the psychological and physical structures of their body. When they are taught that good health is a tender balance between both they can better understand the reasons for periodic depression and anxiety.

Physicians in the general practice of medicine are the cornerstones of good health and good medicine. They are the very first to whom patients present their problems and who must make the decision as to whether the mind or the body is the dominant cause of the symptoms.

Patients after a while learn to examine their emotions and understand them better. They no longer are afraid to admit that they have a right to emotional upsets at any time of the year and, in particular, at the time of birthday and anniversary milestones.

When patients finally learn to face their emotional problems and come to grips with them, they are not left debilitated and exhausted by the confusion of a next time such an anniversary

The World Today

By BARRY SCHWEID (For James Marlow)

WASHINGTON (AP) — It came as no surprise this week when the Supreme Court refused to stand in the way of Capt. Dale E. Neyd's court-martial.

However active the court may be in other areas, it is anything but eager to joust with the military or to give its views on the Vietnam war.

A hearing for Neyd, charged with refusing to help train pilots for Vietnam duty, almost inevitably would have involved the 34-year-old officer's claim that the country is engaged in a "war of aggression."

And this, clearly, is a thicket the court does not want to get tangled in.

From the earliest days the court either has turned aside those who challenged war actions by the president and Congress or ruled against the challengers.

It's been no different with the Vietnam war.

On four separate occasions this term and last, draft resisters and soldiers who regard the war as illegal failed in their quest for hearings.

And although the court will decide before June if the law authorizing the jailing of draft card burners is constitutional, the ruling need not pass on the legality of the war.

This reluctance appears to disturb at least two justices, William O. Douglas and Potter Stewart.

Stewart, a highly pragmatic jurist, said in a dissenting opinion last month the war has raised "large and deeply troubling questions" and "the court should squarely face them."

And Douglas, in a dissent last March, noted "there is a considerable body of opinion that our actions in Vietnam constitute the waging of an aggressive war." He said legal questions raised by the war should be answered.

But the majority, without saying why, does not agree.

The tradition that the courts should not interfere with the president's power to make military decisions goes back to 1827.

That year the Supreme Court upheld conviction of a New York State militiaman who had refused to be called into federal service. Justice Joseph Story said the authority to determine whether a military emergency exists "belongs exclusively to the president."

In 1865 Chief Justice Salmon P. Chase's high court upheld federal seizure of ships that had tried to break a blockade of Southern ports set up before war was declared.

Even extreme exercises of wartime powers have been upheld.

For instance, in 1944 the court ruled constitutional an order excluding all persons of Japanese ancestry—including U.S. citizens—from the West Coast "military area."

No less a defender of civil liberties than Justice Hugo L. Black delivered the decision. He said "when under conditions of modern warfare our shores are threatened by hostile forces, the power to protect must be commensurate with the threatened danger."

Justice Felix Frankfurter, concurring in the decision, probably best expressed the court's traditional stance.

"The validity of action under the war power must be judged wholly in the context of war," he wrote. "That action is not to be stigmatized as lawless because like action in times of peace would be lawless. . ."

No Santa for Tree Growers

By JOHN CHAMBERLAIN

An old friend, Robert J. Sullivan, the proprietor of Sherrlund Forest near Reading, Penn., was a pioneer of the modern Christmas tree business. Long ago, when I had some waste acres at my disposal, I wrote to Bob about the possibility of planting some trees for myself. Bob didn't try to argue me out of it, but he warned me that there were no fabulous profits in the Christmas tree market.

Now comes the Sullivan post-mortem on the subject. As chairman of the Marketing Committee of the Pennsylvania Christmas Tree Growers' Association, Bob knows that there is no Santa Claus for him or for his fellow tree growers. Santa Claus is for everybody else: in fact, the Santa Claus philosophy of the federal government is what is doing the Christmas tree business in.

The tree growers can't get labor. Bob Sullivan takes this philosophically, for he doesn't think our present social attitudes are going to change in his lifetime — and certainly not in the lifetime of the trees he has already planted. The Federal Wage and Hour laws won't let the tree growers work their men more than eight hours a day without substantial bonus payments. There is a floor on minimum wages, and it is going up all the time. The tree grower has had to absorb his employees' social security and unemployment insurance benefits. Finally, the attraction of the city — and of big union aid in bargain ing—pulls boys away from the country anyway. The tree growers might turn to the sort of offshore or out-of-the-nation recruiting that California depended upon when braceros from Mexico were allowed to cross the border for the harvest seasons. Secretary of Labor Willard Wirtz, however, has clamped down on that.

Bob Sullivan tells his fellow tree farmers to save their breath if they are thinking about complaining. The "labor inflation" he talks about has been going on for twenty years, and the "equalizers" built into our present economic system — social security, unemployment benefits, manipulation of the money supply by central bankers — have eradicated the old business cycle, which once worked its rough deflationary "cure." We are committed to an eternal boom, and the super-full employment that goes with boom means the labor inflation we go on and on.

For his lecture to his fellow tree growers Bob is getting a reputation for being a Cassandra. The war in Vietnam, the expensive space program, and the gigantic anti-poverty program, add by indirect to the tree farmers' costs. When the war is no longer with us, Bob looks forward to a "coming urban rebuilding program that will make past government spending look like peanuts." "We ain't seen nuthin' yet," he tells his colleagues. Cassandra, Bob Leary remember, was right.

You now buy retail for something around a dollar a foot. It isn't enough, but the tree growers can't price themselves out of the market. "It is possible," says Bob Sullivan, "that there will be no plantation grown trees at all twenty years from now; that only a machine-made tree will be available. . . . Or can machines be constructed that will mechanize the growing of Christmas trees and eliminate the need for cheap stoop labor?"

The pulpwood industry is busy studying the possibility of mechanical tree harvesters. Bob Sullivan tells his brothers to get busy with similar studies: "let's not," he says, "overlook the forest because of the trees."

It's not a nice thought for Christmas Day, but what Bob Sullivan has to say about the tree business has a much wider application. If he is right about the irreversibility of current trends, the United States is on the way, economically, to becoming the new Uruguay or the new Brazil. The time is coming when your tree will cost you five dollars a foot. And the tree growers won't be making money out of that, either.

Academy Awards

By BOB THOMAS
AP Movie-Television Writer

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Nominations for this year's Academy Awards race are almost completed, and it shapes up as the most undistinguished contest within memory.

Local observers fail to recall a more lackluster field of candidates. Nowhere in sight are there films of the topmost calibre of a "Ben-Hur," "Tom Jones," "West Side Story" or "My Fair Lady."

Lacking are performances that have been universally acclaimed, such as Lee Marvin in "Cat Ballou" or Patricia Neal in "Hud."

The major contenders appear to be films heavily weighted with violence and sex, not the sort of thing academy voters are proud to endorse. Some big musicals are up for consideration, but many reviewers found them empty and artless.

It appears to be a good year for dark horses. Certainly it's not a good year for those poor souls forced by the exigencies of their profession to predict Oscar winners.

Crime films dominate the contest for best picture. "Bonnie and Clyde" may well be the favorite, judging from Eastern reviews hailing it as the greatest thing since "Birth of a Nation." It isn't that great, although it is an adventurous piece of film making. "In the Heat of the Night" has attracted much favor among academy voters, and "In Cold Blood" is having an impact. "Cool Hand Luke" and "Wait Until Dark" were also well received.

"The Graduate" appears to have the best chance among the noncrime films. "Dr. Dolittle," "Camelot," and possibly "Thoroughly Modern Millie" and "The Happiest Millionaire" may get mentioned, but none was a total triumph. "Dr. Doolittle" came the closest.

Other possibilities for best picture are "Guess Who's Coming to Dinner," "Taming of the Shrew," "To Sir with Love," "Two For the Road," "Far from the Madding Crowd," "The Dirty Dozen" and "The Family Way."

The males provide the strongest race among the 1967 performances. Rod Steiger was an early favorite because of "In the Heat of the Night." Sidney Poitier may well be a contender again for that film "To Sir With Love."

Spencer Tracy seems likely to be awarded a posthumous nomination on the basis of "Guess Who's Coming to Dinner." Other probabilities are Paul Newman for "Cool Hand Luke" and Warren Beatty for "Bonnie and Clyde." Newcomer Dustin Hoffman has a good chance for "The Graduate."

Other possibilities: Richard Burton, "Taming of the Shrew"; Bob Blake, "In Cold Blood"; Richard Harris, "Camelot"; Dirk Bogarde, "Our Mother's House"; Lee Marvin, "The Dirty Dozen"; Rex Harrison, "Dr. Doolittle"; George C. Scott, "The Firm Hand Man."

The female star performances that seem to have the best chance are: Faye Dunaway, "Bonnie and Clyde"; Vanessa Redgrave, "Camelot"; Dame Edith Evans, "The Whisperers"; Audrey Hepburn, "Wait Until Dark"; Katharine Hepburn, "Guess Who's Coming to Dinner"; Julie Andrews "Thoroughly Modern Millie"; Rosalind Russell, "Rosie"; Elizabeth Taylor, "Taming of the Shrew"; Julie Christie, "Far from the Madding Crowd."

Mike Nichols is certain to be a directorial nominee for the second straight year because of "The Graduate"—his "Virginia Woolf" lost out to Fred Zinnemann's "A Man For All Seasons" last year. Arthur Penn will be a solid contender for "Bonnie and Clyde," as will Norman Jewison for "In the Heat of the Night" and Richard Brooks for "In Cold Blood."

in December often sell stock to establish gains or losses for reporting on their tax forms in April.

This often depresses the prices of many shares and the stage for a quick recovery, especially if such tax selling has depressed prices into the big value category. There are always buyers looking for real values.

Selling to establish tax losses is a more important factor than selling to realize gains, for those who have big declines for the year are very much inclined to recoup some of their losses through tax rebates. The law says $1,000 per person in losses can be deducted from income each year.

In anticipation of a busy Christmas season, most shareholders get their tax selling out of the way by Dec. 25. This leaves them with proceeds to reinvest and, in the Christmas spirit, they frequently do just that.

Institutions increasingly are doing their bit to assure the year-end rally, for many of them dress up their portfolios with new stocks before the year-end report. A big list of strong stocks is their best window display.

All these coincidental factors act to boost prices during the final week of the year and very often well into January of the next year as well.

Psychological factors also play a role. December is the month of economic forecasts, and few analysts of the American economy are consistently bearish. Hope and optimism reign, at least in the financial realm.

This year two other factors will be influencing the year-end attitude. First, inflation is unrestrained at the moment and very likely will remain unchecked into 1968. A good many people believe stocks are inflation's best hedge.

The other factor might work to dampen a year-end rally. Again, this factor involves taxes. There is a widespread feeling that income taxes will be raised next year. As a result, many shareholders are bound to sell and take their profits this year.

Letters To The Editor

Dear Editor:

The following article was written by a minister friend of mine, Charles Fisher of Elk Grove Village, Ill. I submit the timely article to you for your consideration in publishing it.

DR. H. H. SPOPE
N. Court St.

"The trouble with youth today" . . . and then follows the lament about long hair, crazy clothes, unheard-of words, jump music and a mile long list of sins.

"The real trouble, however, isn't with youth, it's with us, the older generations! Our memories are not too good! We have forgotten the days of our youth! It is a far better guess, that we prefer not to remember.

"The truth is that we too wore 'funny' clothes, dirty shoes, wrote inscriptions on jackets, went to football games with coon-skin coats and hip-flasks, and the girls threw their skirts over their heads when they danced the 'jitter-bug'. We rebelled against parents, schools and community, we pushed over 'outhouses', procured a chicken for a cook-out-roast, and petted on back roads under a shade tree. Because our numbers were so small in relation to older folks, we didn't get too far, too fast. There isn't much difference between the kids of 1920, 1930, 1940 and the kids of today! The covering which my generation is covered with is not silver and gold, but rather rust. We simply don't want you to know!"

"There is much evidence, if we seek it, that our present generation of youth is in many ways better off than any of those that have gone before it in this country. This is a sophisticated youth, he has traveled, he will 'burn' if need be, he goes fast, he has much power at his disposal, he is in a 'Buck Rogers Age' come true, he thinks before he accepts, and he seeks peace and freedom, not only for himself but for all people, his world is not confined to a city or a county, or a state or even a nation, but a universe! "This youth will move into slums, even go to uncivilized places simply to help people. He will go without big salary to have meaning and purpose and by the same token he will marry, have children and still work hard enough to 'still get' his college degree.

"His teachers, in many ways, have failed him! He wants to be more than a book of facts which he is supposed to 'sell' to the highest bidder! He sees little sense in sitting in a class for six weeks, if all the teaching can be done in two! Ways, means, methods, structures, created for a pre-atomic age, no longer fit his needs, and he has basically only been offered such, in education, housing, religion, community planning, and life in the family.

"And as for war, my generation went off singing as if we were going to be 'football stars' on a 'picture-book' battlefield, and only after an invasion did we know what 'kids' today have known for years as they watch the 'daily score' on the TV channel of your choice.

"Our big mistake, that is the mistake of my generation, is that we have tried to 'shout down' youth. It is our defense mechanism!

TODAY
In HistoryBy THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Today is Friday, Dec. 22 the 356th day of 1967. There are nine days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history: On this date in 1945, the United States and Britain recognized the new Yugoslav republic.

On this date—
In 1696, the founder of the colony of Georgia, James Oglethorpe, was born.

In 1775, the American Continental Naval Fleet—two frigates, two brigs and three schooners—was organized under the command of Ezekiel Hopkins.

In 1894, the French army captain, Alfred Dreyfus, was found guilty of treason in a court-martial which inflamed world opinion.

In 1942, U.S. heavy bombers raided Rangoon, Burma, during World War II.

In 1944, also during World War II, the American general, Anthony McAuliffe, said "nuts" when the Germans demanded that he surrender at Bastogne, Belgium.

In 1963, America's month of official mourning for President John F. Kennedy ended with a candlelight ceremony at the Lincoln Memorial in Washington.

Ten years ago: The Scottish freighter, "Narva," sank in a North Sea storm. Twenty-eight sailors drowned.

Five years ago: The Castro government in Havana began releasing Cuban war prisoners after receiving ransom in the form of medicine and food.

One year ago: A Soviet space ship made a soft landing on the moon.

"Years ago we coined words like 'juvenile delinquency' when we wanted to cover our own scramble for status and the price we were willing to pay for it. It is my generation that has CUT OFF the communication with the youth generation.

"Youth want to learn, share, and hear from us, they have believed that we must have something to give to them besides abundance, toys, cars and a paycheck that seldom covers all the bills. They have hoped that underneath it all, there was more than religious councils, bowling teams, and bargained sex between parents. Youth rather suspicions that we are not what we claim we are, and they can comprehend that, for they never did see us as 'gods', but what they will not tolerate is our failure to admit what we really are like!

This youth generation is honest! They seem not to be buying our double standards. They want honest communication, or no communication. They dislike the 'phony' and 'the establishment'. They understand 'The Man For All Seasons'! They are seeking truth! It looks like they may find it after all the dust and rust is removed.

"Youth wants to give. They not only wanted us to share with them, they wanted to give to us. They have something to give too! I know!

They are realists, they can see 'things' which we are blinded to, they in a few minutes can clear up 'messes' which we spend hours upon and still never clarify, their answers are simple ones, real ones, true ones, but far too costly for us in our 'rut'. They know automation, leisure time, population explosion and prosperity much better than us. They are afraid of working with their hands in ditches, or filling their hours with purpose, or living with 10 people in the same room, or being poor. It is my generation that is afraid!

"Most of all, these youth give me hope!
"If I were to follow the thinking of my generation, then I would be forced to admit that there is little hope for the world. That is a dreadful thought! Of course there is a difference between thinking and doing. When my generation become grandparents, our actions will be centered upon the grave instead of upon status. That will change our thinking!

"And in two or three decades our present youth generation will be the older generation. Their children will be the 'youth generation' and there will be rebellion, lack of communication and disobedience.
"There will be new words for 'rebel' and 'hippie'. New forms, structures, methods, techniques, ethics and morals will be formed. And it could well be that the youth of this generation, who will then be the elders, will also be willing and wise enough to say, 'This is a better youth than that of our day'.

"How else could it be? Is that not the meaning of life itself? Is it not 'the willingness to change'?"

THE INIMITABLE Robert Benchley may have written the very last word on the subject of roosters when he pointed out, "The rooster is an entirely different sort of bird from the hen. He has a red crest on the top of his head—put there by Nature so that the hen can see the rooster coming in a crowd and can hop into a taxi or make a previous engagement if she wants to. One of the happiest and most successful roosters I ever saw was one who had had his red crest chewed off in a fight with a dog. He also wore sneakers."

I like Betty Le Gere's story about her little boy who was passionately attached to his toy soldiers and Indians, and played with them endlessly until his eleventh birthday. Then he swept them all into a big box and carried them up to the attic. "Why don't you like to play with them any more?" inquired Mrs. Le Gere. The boy explained soberly, "They don't talk back to me any more."

C. E. Salter, safety director, disposed of his store, The Scioto Valley Cigar Co. on S. Court St., due to failing health. Mr. Salter had been in the business of manufacturing and selling cigars and tobacco for 28 years.

The American Legion again made plans for its annual community Christmas tree. The tree was placed on the courthouse yard. From here, on Christmas Eve, thousands of bags of candy, nuts and fruit were passed out to the children of the city.

The men's furnishing store of Kitty Fissell, known as the Caddy Miller Hat Shop in Circleville, underwent a complete interior change. The new arrangement made the display of goods much more effective.

Heavy rains caused many roads in Pickaway County to be closed and brought several thousands of dollars in crop damage.

Pickaway County was given its first look and full description of the new Ford automobile. The Bremer showrooms were filled with people to view and learn about the car. Company officials at Detroit announced that production of the new Ford line would not make the Model T line obsolete.

Speaking of Your Health
By Lester L. Coleman, M.D.

Why do some people become severely depressed, especially around a holiday period?

It is astonishing how frequently patients make the observation that they become severely depressed at the time of a anniversary, birthdays, Thanksgiving, Christmas, and Easter Holidays. Many of them may even develop physical symptoms that coincide with these periods.

This particular response has been called an anniversary reaction or even an anniversary disease. Two very famous specialists in psychosomatic disease, Dr. E. Weiss and Dr. Spurgeon English, have tried to explain this unusual psychological and social phenomenon.

They believe that anniversaries tend to highlight the encroachment of aging. Birthdays, especially the 50th and 60th ones, sometimes threaten the security of people who feel that life is slipping away from them. Emotional disturbances in these instances may be based upon the fear that retirement from

Medal Awarded
After 20 Years

HONOLULU (AP) — It took 20 years of waiting but John A. Weber of Honolulu received a Norwegian medal of merit for rescuing a man 650 miles off the Massachusetts coast.

Weber was a pilot of a Martin Mariner for the Coast Guard in 1947 and made an emergency landing on a rough, choppy ocean to take a sick Norwegian sailor off a ship.

Later Congress objected to the awarding of foreign medals to Americans. However, 20 years later, the red tape removed, Weber received the medal from Rear Adm. Benjamin F. Engel, U. S. Coast Guard commandant in Honolulu.

the city water made the taste bad and the odor unbearable. Chlorine was used as a purifier to clear the water of mud and impurities brought in by the recent high water and flood conditions.

An old landmark was to be razed. The old foundry building, formerly the Scioto Machine Works, was condemned by the state fire marshal. The building was owned by the Hedges Brothers of Ashville and James I. Smith, Circleville. Besides the foundry, the building had at one time housed the Colonial Carriage Company. Buggies were shipped all over the country from here. The foundry made castings and manufactured stoves. The old foundry bell summoned employees to work. Many a household timed activities by the bell before the installation of the court house clock. The portion of the building facing the canal was formerly the old National Hotel. It was the center of traffic along the old canal and many social functions were held there.

The Pickaway County Medical society met and discussed the Berger Memorial Hospital. The medical society recommended that the city accept the Frank Berger bequest. To get the bequest the city had to build and equip a building for hospital purposes. The estate of Berger would pay one-half the costs—the city was responsible

Major holidays, like Thanksgiving and Christmas, may exaggerate a person's loneliness because he recalls the pleasant of these periods as a child.

The anniversary disease is so prevalent that there are many people who become distressed even over a weekend when they are dependent upon themselves to bridge time until the Monday return to work.

Physicians today have a deep insight into the total structure of their patients. They quickly recognize the delicate balance between the mind and the body and then explain that relationship to the fearful patients. The result is a greater bond between doctor and patient.

Patients learn quickly that there is no artificial separation between the psychological and physical structures of their body. When they are taught that good health is a tender balance between both they can better understand the reasons for periodic depression and anxiety.

Physicians in the general practice of medicine are the cornerstones of good health and good medicine. They are the very first to whom patients present their problems and who must make the decision as to whether the mind or the body is the dominant cause of the symptoms.

Patients after a while learn to examine their emotions and understand them better. They no longer are afraid to admit that they have a right to emotional upsets at any time of the year and, in particular, at the time of birthday and anniversary milestones.

When patients finally learn to face their emotional problems and come to grips with them, they are not left debilitated and exhausted by the confusion of a next time such an anniversary

The World Today

By BARRY SCHWEID (For James Marlow)

WASHINGTON (AP) — It came as no surprise this week when the Supreme Court refused to stand in the way of Capt. Dale E. Neyd's court-martial.

However active the court may be in other areas, it is anything but eager to joust with the military or to give its views on the Vietnam war.

A hearing for Neyd, charged with refusing to help train pilots for Vietnam duty, almost inevitably would have involved the 34-year-old officer's claim that the country is engaged in a "war of aggression."

And this, clearly, is a thicket the court does not want to get tangled in.

From the earliest days the court either has turned aside those who challenged war actions by the president and Congress or ruled against the challengers.

It's been no different with the Vietnam war.

On four separate occasions this term and last, draft resisters and soldiers who regard the war as illegal failed in their quest for hearings.

And although the court will decide before June if the law authorizing the jailing of draft card burners is constitutional, the ruling need not pass on the legality of the war.

This reluctance appears to disturb at least two justices, William O. Douglas and Potter Stewart.

Stewart, a highly pragmatic jurist, said in a dissenting opinion last month the war has raised "large and deeply troubling questions" and "the court should squarely face them."

And Douglas, in a dissent last March, noted "there is a considerable body of opinion that our actions in Vietnam constitute the waging of an aggressive war." He said legal questions raised by the war should be answered.

But the majority, without saying why, does not agree.

The tradition that the courts should not interfere with the president's power to make military decisions goes back to 1827.

That year the Supreme Court upheld conviction of a New York State militiaman who had refused to be called into federal service. Justice Joseph Story said the authority to determine whether a military emergency exists "belongs exclusively to the president."

In 1865 Chief Justice Salmon P. Chase's high court upheld federal seizure of ships that had tried to break a blockade of Southern ports set up before war was declared.

Even extreme exercises of wartime powers have been upheld.

For instance, in 1944 the court ruled constitutional an order excluding all persons of Japanese ancestry—including U.S. citizens—from the West Coast "military area."

No less a defender of civil liberties than Justice Hugo L. Black delivered the decision. He said "when under conditions of modern warfare our shores are threatened by hostile forces, the power to protect must be commensurate with the threatened danger."

Justice Felix Frankfurter, concurring in the decision, probably best expressed the court's traditional stance.

"The validity of action under the war power must be judged wholly in the context of war," he wrote. "That action is not to be stigmatized as lawless because like action in times of peace would be lawless."

No Santa for Tree Growers

By JOHN CHAMBERLAIN

An old friend, Robert J. Sullivan, the proprietor of Sherrlund Forest near Reading, Penn., was a pioneer of the modern Christmas tree business. Long ago, when I had some waste acres at my disposal, I wrote to Bob about the possibility of planting some trees for myself. Bob didn't try to argue me out of it, but he warned me that there were no fabulous profits in the Christmas tree market.

Now comes the Sullivan post-mortem on the subject. As chairman of the Marketing Committee of the Pennsylvania Christmas Tree Growers' Association, Bob knows that there is no Santa Claus for him or for his fellow tree growers. Santa Claus is for everybody else: in fact, the Santa Claus philosophy of the federal government is what is doing the Christmas tree business in.

The tree growers can't get labor Bob Sullivan takes this philosophically, for he doesn't think our present social attitudes are going to change in his lifetime—and certainly not in the lifetime of the trees he has already planted. The Federal Wage and Hour laws won't let the tree growers work their men more than eight hours a day without substantial bonus payments. There is a floor on minimum wages, and it is going up all the time. The tree grower has had to absorb his employees' social security and unemployment insurance benefits. Finally, the attraction of the city—and of big union aid in bargaining—pulls boys away from the country anyway. The tree growers might turn to the sort of offshore or out-of-the-nation recruiting that California depended upon when braceros from Mexico were allowed to cross the border for the harvest seasons. Secretary of Labor Willard Wirtz, however, has clamped down on that.

Bob Sullivan tells his fellow tree farmers to save their breath if they are thinking about complaining. The "labor inflation" he talks about has been going on for twenty years, and the "equalizers" built into our present economic system—social security, unemployment benefits, manipulation of the money supply by central bankers—have eradicated the old business cycle, which once worked its rough deflationary "cure." We are committed to an eternal boom, and the superfluous employment that goes with boom means the labor inflation will go on and on.

For his lecture to his fellow tree growers Bob is getting a reputation for being a Cassandra. The war in Vietnam, the expensive space program, and the gigantic anti-poverty program, add by indirection to the tree farmers' costs. When the war is no longer with us, Bob looks forward to a "coming urban rebuilding program that will make past government spending look like peanuts." "We ain't seen nuthin' yet," he tells his colleagues. Cassandra, Bob Leay remember, was right.

You now buy retail for something around a dollar a foot. It isn't enough, but the tree growers can't price themselves out of the market. "It is possible," says Bob Sullivan, "that there will be no plantation grown trees at all twenty years from now; that only a machine-made tree will be available . . . Or can machines be constructed that will mechanize the growing of Christmas trees and eliminate the need for cheap stoop labor?"

The pulpwood industry is busy studying the possibility of mechanical tree harvesters. Bob Sullivan tells his brothers to get busy with similar studies; "let's not," he says, "overlook the forest because of the trees."

It's not a nice thought for Christmas Day, but what Bob Sullivan has to say about the tree business has a much wider application. If he is right about the irreversibility of current trends, the United States is on the way, economically, to becoming the new Uruguay or the new Brazil. The time is coming when your tree will cost you five dollars a foot, and the tree growers won't be making money out of that, either.

Academy Awards

By BOB THOMAS
AP Movie-Television Writer

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Nominations for this year's Academy Awards race are almost completed, and it shapes up as the most undistinguished contest within memory.

Local observers fail to recall a more lackluster field of candidates. Nowhere in sight are there films of the topmost calibre of a "Ben-Hur," "Tom Jones," "West Side Story" or "My Fair Lady."

Lacking are performances that have been universally acclaimed, such as Lee Marvin in "Cat Ballou" or Patricia Neal in "Hud."

The major contenders appear to be films heavily weighted with violence and sex, not the sort of thing academy voters are proud to endorse. Some big musicals are up for consideration, but many reviewers found them empty and artless.

It appears to be a good year for dark horses. Certainly it's not a good year for those poor souls forced by the exigencies of their profession to predict Oscar winners.

Crime films dominate the contest for best picture. "Bonnie and Clyde" may well be the favorite, judging from Eastern reviews hailing it as the greatest thing since "Birth of a Nation." It isn't that great, although it is an adventurous piece of film making. "In the Heat of the Night" has attracted much favor among academy voters, and "In Cold Blood" is having an impact. "Cool Hand Luke" and "Wait Until Dark" were also well received.

"The Graduate" appears to have the best chance among the noncrime films. "Dr. Dolittle," "Camelot," and possibly "Thoroughly Modern Millie" and the "Happy Millionaire" may get mentioned, but none was a total triumph. "Dr. Doolittle" came the closest.

Other possibilities for best picture are "Guess Who's Coming to Dinner," "Taming of the Shrew," "To Sir with Love," "Two For the Road," "Far from the Madding Crowd," "The Dirty Dozen" and "The Family Way."

The males provide the strongest race among the 1967 performances. Rod Steiger was an early favorite because of "In the Heat of the Night." Sidney Poitier may well be a contender again for that film "To Sir With Love."

Spencer Tracy seems likely to be awarded a posthumous nomination on the basis of "Guess Who's Coming to Dinner." Other probabilities are Paul Newman for "Cool Hand Luke" and Warren Beatty for "Bonnie and Clyde." Newcomer Dustin Hoffman has a good chance for "The Graduate."

Other possibilities: Richard Burton, "Taming of the Shrew"; Bob Blake, "In Cold Blood"; Richard Harris, "Camelot"; Dirk Bogarde, "Our Mother's House"; Lee Marvin, "The Dirty Dozen"; Rex Harrison, "Dr. Doolittle"; George C. Scott, "The Firm Flam Man."

The female star performances that seem to have the best chance are: Faye Dunaway, "Bonnie and Clyde"; Vanessa Redgrave, "Camelot"; Dame Edith Evans, "The Whisperers"; Audrey Hepburn, "Wait Until Dark"; Katharine Hepburn, "Guess Who's Coming to Dinner"; Julie Andrews, "Thoroughly Modern Millie"; Rosalind Russell, "Rosie"; Elizabeth Taylor, "Taming of the Shrew"; Julie Christie, "Far From the Madding Crowd."

Mike Nichols is certain to be a directorial nominee for the second straight year because of "The Graduate"—his "Virginia Woolf" lost out to Fred Zinnemann's "A Man For All Seasons" last year. Arthur Penn will be a solid contender for "Bonnie and Clyde," as will Norman Jewison for "In the Heat of the Night" and Richard Brooks for "In Cold Blood."

Restoration Work Sped On Old Buckeye Furnace

JACKSON, Ohio (AP) — An ancient iron furnace, symbol of a once flourishing industry in southern Ohio, is getting a new lease on life.

Restoration work is under way on the 116-year-old Buckeye Furnace whose stone stack is in better shape than most of the old stacks scattered through the Hanging Rock region of the state.

In their time a century ago the furnaces next to the stacks produced what Ohioans proudly called the best pig iron in the world. It helped establish industrial development of the state.

The Hanging Rock region spans 100 square miles mostly in Ohio but with some of it in Kentucky and West Virginia. The Ohio Historical Society has counted 46 of the old iron furnaces in the region.

Ohio's first iron furnace in the Hanging Rock region was established near the village of Hanging Rock on the Ohio River in 1826.

At the start of the Civil War the region had about 50 furnaces working.

Deposits of red hematite ore, unlimited quantities of unusually fine limestone, and charcoal made from timber cut in the surrounding forests, provided all the essentials for making iron within close proximity of the furnaces.

In 1873, the largest coke furnace in the world was constructed at Ironton, Ohio, which was founded by John Campbell. He is credited with operating the first "hot" blast furnace in America.

The "Vesuvius" as it was known, may be seen in Wayne National Forest, near Ironton. In 1854, the Jefferson Furnace in Jackson County went into operation. The armor plate on the gunboat Monitor, of Civil War fame, was said to be made from iron produced at that furnace.

Another pig iron furnace was constructed in Jackson in 1906, which came to be known as the Jackson Iron and Steel Company (JISCO).

Sixty-one years later JISCO is producing over 100,000 tons of pig iron a year.

Preliminary plans for the restoration of Buckeye Furnace in Jackson County have been prepared by the Ohio Historical Society.

Four buildings are being constructed in the vicinity of the stack, facsimiles of the original cast house, engine house, charging house, and charcoal shed.

The ironmaster's house will be constructed nearby and hopefully, several log cabins similar to those occupied by the iron workers a hundred years ago.

Parking lots and picnic facilities will be provided on the 270-acre state memorial.

Tax Suits Filed On Lorain Couple

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP)—The Internal Revenue Service has filed two federal income tax liens totaling more than $500,000 against Mr. and Mrs. Sidney J. Rudolph of Lorain, Ohio.

The liens included one for $380,360 for the years of 1949-53 and another for $135,753 for 1943-47.

There was no explanation in the action filed Wednesday in the Maricopa County Superior Court clerk's office as to why the liens had been filed in Phoenix.

Injuries Fatal

Motel Items Are Sold

AKRON, Ohio (AP) — The furnishings and equipment of the $4.5 million Yankee Clipper Inn in Boston Heights were purchased Thursday in 15 minutes at a sheriff's sale.

The sale was to satisfy claims of creditors. Debts against the motel total about $700,000.

The Janco Investment Co. of Cleveland bought refrigeration equipment and other fixtures for $18,000 after outbidding Frank Maragas, the builder and first owner of the motel. A second lot of equipment, including thousands of items from toothpicks to large electrical control panels, was bought for $100,000 by Resolute Insurance Co., one of the lien holders.

Resolute and Janco are expected to sell the equipment to the next buyer and operator of the motel, now in the hands of a federal receiver.

Xavier To Get School Statue

CINCINNATI (AP) — Xavier University will soon have on its campus a statue weighing two tons and standing over seven feet high that depicts the school's symbol—a Musketeer.

The statue, a reproduction of one of the Musketeer D'Artagnan of the 17th Century France, is being readied for shipment here by its sculptor Andre Tazuede.

Approve Cuts In College Cash Shares

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—The Controlling Board approved cuts today for eight state universities whose enrollments failed to meet estimates and approved increases for three other schools.

The net result was a reduction of $2 million in appropriations for state universities geared to the number of students on which subsidies are based.

The original reduction of $430,000 recommended for Central State was cut to $236,000 under final board action.

Under the changes, Ohio State would receive an increase of $1.9 million, Cleveland State $87,589 and Toledo University $78,352.

Total appropriations for the fiscal year and proposed cuts because of lower enrollments included: Bowling Green $9.6 million, and a reduction of $810,000; Akron $6.4 million and $111,000; Central State $2 million and $430,000; Kent State $15.3 million and $1.7 million; Wright State $2.5 million and $211,000; Miami $9.2 million and $618,000; Ohio University $14.3 million and $292,000; Youngstown $5.8 million and $162,000.

Other changes included: Community colleges $4.1 million and $20,000; technical institutes $887,000 and $316,000; University branches $4.9 million and $390,000.

They are handled by 222 cable circuits and 62 satellite circuits.

Restoration Work Sped On Old Buckeye Furnace

JACKSON, Ohio (AP) — An ancient iron furnace, symbol of a once flourishing industry in southern Ohio, is getting a new lease on life.

Restoration work is under way on the 116-year-old Buckeye Furnace whose stone stack is in better shape than most of the old stacks scattered through the Hanging Rock region of the state.

In their time a century ago the furnaces next to the stacks produced what Ohioans proudly called the best pig iron in the world. It helped establish industrial development of the state.

The Hanging Rock region spans 100 square miles mostly in Ohio but with some of it in Kentucky and West Virginia. The Ohio Historical Society has counted 46 of the old iron furnaces in the region.

Ohio's first iron furnace in the Hanging Rock region was established near the village of Hanging Rock on the Ohio River in 1826.

At the start of the Civil War the region had about 50 furnaces working.

Deposits of red hematite ore, unlimited quantities of unusually fine limestone, and charcoal made from timber cut in the surrounding forests, provided all the essentials for making iron within close proximity of the furnaces.

In 1873, the largest coke furnace in the world was constructed at Ironton, Ohio, which was founded by John Campbell. He is credited with operating the first "hot" blast furnace in America.

Christmas Greeting Cards Aid in Home Decorations

GREETING CARD HOLDER — Shown is a choir boy design to which Christmas cards may be stapled as they are received.

CARD TOWER — A colorful tower of Christmas cards can be made by stapling them on a large box covered with foil.

By JOAN O'SULLIVAN

When you pick out those very special Christmas cards for members of your immediate family—and this is something we often do at the last minute—look for cards that offer decorative dividends. They are greetings that are designed to be shown-off and include stand-up figures of Santa and snow men, pop-up Nativity Scenes and, say Steve Shannon, spokesman for the Greeting Card Association, a number of cards that can be hung on the tree, too.

Of course it goes without saying that the Christmas greetings you receive from friends can also add to the festive look of your home. Armed with a stapler and - or a staple gun you can really shoot for some spectacular effects.

At greeting shops, you'll find card holders with holiday motifs that can be hung on the wall. As the mailman brings your greetings, you can staple them to these holders.

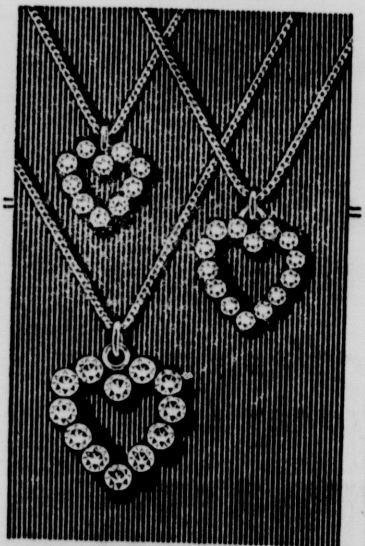

Another clever idea is to make a card tower. Use gift-wrap foil to cover four large boxes of graduated sizes. Stack them to make your tower, then staple cards of appropriate sizes to the sides of each box. Staple only the inside corner of each card so that it can be opened and the message read.

Make a tree and hang your cards on it. The tree can be cut from bright green felt. Add ornaments (cards) as they arrive, stapling them in place. Or display cards on wide strips of red satin ribbon. Place the ribbon to frame windows or doorways.

For a shower of greetings, strip an old umbrella of fabric and spray the spokes gold. "Plant" the handle in a flower pot. Tie ribbons to the spokes and as cards come in staple them to the ribbons.

You can also display cards under the glass top of a table or desk, line them up on a bookcase or buffet, use them to fill in small windowpanes. Show off your cards. They add Christmas cheer to your home and, when friends come to visit, they'll be delighted to see their greetings on display.

James: Organizational Brother

EDITOR'S NOTE — Frequently overlooked by modern students is James, Jesus' nearest male relative. But at the time of blossoming Christianity's first great crisis, it was James who had to make the momentous decisions. The last of a Christmas series about Christ's kinsmen.

By GEORGE W. CORNELL
AP Religion Writer

The assembly fell silent. Its attention fixed on James the Just, an hairy-visaged man in tight-fitting cap and a linen robe worn thin at the knees from praying. He was Jesus' brother.

He clamped his banded left arm to his heart, the sacredly inscribed leather phylacteries pressing into his flesh. "You shall love the Lord your God..."

It was up to James, the nearest male relative of Jesus and the hereditary first bishop of the mother church in Jerusalem, as chairman of Christianity's first ecumenical council, to announce its decision.

"My judgment," he said firmly, "is that we should not trouble those of the Gentiles who turn to God." Yet, in excusing them from detailed regulations, he went on, some basic standards must be demanded—besides mere profession of belief.

On either side of him sat the apostles. Before him stood the impassioned Paul of Tarsus, the roving outlander who dared affirm unity with foreign converts who disregarded Jewish disciplines.

"We hold that a man is justified by faith apart from work of the law," Paul contended. "The law is good," but all men sin, and are redeemed only by trust in God's forgiving grace "as a gift. There is no distinction between Jew and Greek."

It was a radical theory. It had aroused controversy and confusion, even among the apostles. Such liberalizing tolerance could compromise morals. It meant opening the faith to all sorts of customs, cultures and practices outside Judaism.

It would be a big risk—for a big world. Whether or not to take it depended on that council over which James presided.

Although Scripture refers to him as Jesus' "adelphos," his brother, the term can mean cousin or near kinsman, as some interpreters consider James, but in any case, a closely related member of the same family.

He had "succeeded to the charge of the church, with the apostles," says the early church historian Hegesippus. This was in line with the Jewish tradition of essentially hereditary religious offices, passed on to the nearest male heir.

He was eloquent, fervent, prophetic, as evidenced by his New Testament epistle. Like the teachings of his brother, Jesus, it abounds with practical wisdom and metaphors drawn from the rural countryside. He minimized theology and enjoined working fraternity, compassion,

Man To Face Murder Charge

CINCINNATI (AP) — Ronald M. Hector, 23, Cincinnati, faces trial for first-degree murder in the death of a cab driver who was shot Nov. 10 during the hold-up of the Fifth Street Cab Co. in Avondale.

Hector, arrested Nov. 27 after a long search, also was indicted Wednesday by the Hamilton County Grand Jury on two charges of armed robbery and one charge of shooting to kill.

He cherished his belonging to God's chosen people, with the blood of David in his veins. Known as "James the Just," he commanded esteem of all the population, both orthodox Jews and Jews forming Christ's church in its beginnings.

That church already had undergone dire assaults, including the martyrdom of Stephen and one apostle, also called James, beheaded by Rome's satrap, Herod Antipas. Others had been jailed. The chief apostle, Peter, when he escaped, as told in Acts 12, first sent word to James, the church's Jerusalem administrator.

Now James faced a critical issue for the church's future—whether it should allow any loosening of ties to its national origins, any breach in the ramparts that cradled it, any departure from its nourishing Jewish rudiments.

For centuries, Israel's codes of ethics and devotions had stood like a lone, lofty citadel, upholding consecration to one God in a world of pagan license. The Torah—the laws given Moses—fortified the divine ideal, preserved it, even when the people failed it.

Even Paul warned his Gentile converts: "Remember it is not you that support the root, but the root that supports you." Yet he maintained that without adopting the guarding Jewish structure of devotion, Gentiles were equally God's people by faith.

The are no longer "alienated from the commonwealth of Israel and strangers to the covenants," he claimed. For Christ Jesus "is our peace, who has made us both one, and has broken down the dividing wall of hostility."

The crucial question, crystallized over whether foreigners could be fully joined to Christ's church without Biblically-ordered circumcision and whether Jewish members should break bread with them, had troubled the faith ever since Jesus left 19 years before.

To James, religion was empty without definite deeds attesting to it. "Faith apart from works is dead," he wrote. He was a social activist, in the stamp of the Prophet Amos. Believing to him meant enacting justice.

Yet he could err—he had misjudged even Jesus, doubting his divine anointment throughout his earthly work, trying to divert it. Only after Jesus' crucifixion and resurrection was James recorded among the believers.

Confronting him was a revolutionary proposition. "Christ has set us free," Paul insisted.

After his conversion to Christ

"For the whole law is fulfilled in one word, 'you shall love your neighbor as yourself.'"

James knew Paul as a radical, headstrong Jew, who once had tried as vehemently to crush Christianity as he now sought to open the floodgates to it. Tradition says that once, when Paul was persecuting the infant church, he stormed a meeting led by James, shouting "Pull all these fellows to pieces!"

er had come to Jerusalem. Although first shunned by the apostles, a mutual friend, Barnabas, vouched for him. He met James and Peter, spending 15 days in consultation.

Then he took to the road, and rumors of his open-door enlistment of all sorts of people upset conservative Jewish Christians. Some wanted him stopped. Peter, who himself had baptized a Gentile, Cornelius, after a dream revealing non-kosher food as good in God's sight, went to Antioch to check Paul's work.

He initially was impressed, Paul relates. "Before certain men came from James, he ate with Gentiles." But arrival of the fundamentalists dampened the impulsive Peter's enthusiasm. "When they came he drew back and separated himself, fearing the circumcision party."

The emissaries of James apparently had pointed out that Jesus himself was circumcised, keeping the Old Testament covenant, observing Temple feasts, and that he promised to fulfill the law, not destroy it, by making it part of the inner life as well as outward rite.

This obviously shamed the Jewish Christians of Antioch, who with Peter withdrew to a ritually clean table. This, in turn, distressed the Gentile Christians, cut off from social fellowship.

It was a crisis for the new church, and no easy one. As the 49 A. D., as described in Acts 15, the conservative Pharisees accused Paul of heresy, insisting "it is necessary to circumcise" Gentile converts, "and to charge them to keep the laws of Moses."

Paul, himself "a Pharisee and son of a Pharisee," repeatedly agreed in his epistles that Judaism is the anchorage of God's truth, but that Jews as well as Gentiles chronically defy it, and so can be saved only by faith in Christ's atonement for all men.

Peter, recovering his bearings, defended the radical, saying God makes "no distinction between us (Jews) and them (Gentiles)." We believe that we shall be saved through the grace of the Lord Jesus, just as they will.

While the council listened intently, Paul and Barnabas described the amazing changes wrought in Gentiles solely through Christ's message of love, with controlled, uniform codes of devotion.

It was a profound, elusive problem, and while James preferred tangible, specified marks of faith, Jesus showed there was room for varied ways in his church.

"Brethren, listen to me," James began, and he rendered his judgment. It was a middle-road solution, setting a pattern for church councils. It lagged behind the more daring positions, but moved ahead, even if cautiously.

Contrary to the conservatives,

FOR THE WOMAN WHO HAS EVERYTHING, you can give either penicillin or maybe this 24-carat gold wig, selling (?) for $35,000 at Neiman-Marcus in Dallas, Tex. The creator, Sherie David of New York, is putting a few gold hairs in place. The wig was made from a gold ingot spun to a length of 25,055 feet and cut into 30,066 strands.

Happy Birthday, JESUS!

THE CHURCH FOR ALL . . . ALL FOR THE CHURCH

The Church is the greatest factor on earth for the building of character and good citizenship. It is a storehouse of spiritual values. Without a strong Church, neither democracy nor civilization can survive. There are four sound reasons why every person should attend services regularly and support the Church.
They are: (1) For his own sake. (2) For his children's sake.
(3) For the sake of his community and nation. (4) For the sake of the Church itself, which needs his moral and material support. Plan to go to church regularly and read your Bible daily.

Day	Book	Chapter	Verses
Sunday	Psalms	2	1-9
Monday	Isaiah	7	10-17
Tuesday	Isaiah	9	1-7
Wednesday	Zechariah	8	1-8
Thursday	Matthew	2	1-12
Friday	Luke	2	1-7
Saturday	Luke	2	8-21

The lights of Christmas shine in children's eyes
As they uncover each well-kept surprise,
And we remember, as we share their joy,
That Jesus too was once a little boy.

He must have laughed and shouted at His play
Just as the youngest ones will do today.
And surely Mary watched with pride and love . . .
Thinking of shepherds, and a star above.

This day is blessed by children's happy voices.
The bells ring out; the Christian world rejoices.
With all the gladness grateful hearts can bring,
We celebrate the birthday of a King.

Prepare Plans For Watershed

WASHINGTON (AP) — The office of Rep. Lee H. Hamilton, D-Ind., reported Wednesday the Soil Conservation Service will help prepare plans for a $3,310,000 watershed project in his state and Ohio.

The watershed, East Fork of the Whitewash River, covers 245,000 acres, including Darke and Preble counties in Ohio. The project includes 12 to 15 dams.

THE CHURCH FOR ALL . . . ALL FOR THE CHURCH

The Church is the greatest factor on earth for the building of character and good citizenship. It is a storehouse of spiritual values. Without a strong Church, neither democracy nor civilization can survive. There are four sound reasons why every person should attend services regularly and support the Church. They are: (1) For his own sake. (2) For his children's sake. (3) For the sake of his community and nation. (4) For the sake of the Church itself, which needs his moral and material support. Plan to go to church regularly and read your Bible daily.

MERRY CHRISTMAS

TO ALL

Everywhere, joyous voices are singing out the glad tidings of the season. Children smile, and we rejoice in homes filled with love, hope and unity.

Trees are trimmed, gay wreaths adorn each door. 'Tis Christmas . . . and once again that wonderful spirit enters every heart.

At this magical time, we wish you, our good friends, the very best of Christmas blessings along with each special joy the holiday has in store. Merry Christmas!

Christmas In Bethlehem To Be Different This Year

By HAL McCLURE
Associated Press Writer
BETHLEHEM, Occupied Jordan (AP) — Pilgrims celebrating Christmas in the Israeli-occupied Holy Land will discover unexpected changes in this sleepy Arab town this year.
A new archway welcomes the visitor in English, Arabic—and Hebrew.
Arab shops carry Israeli-made goods, post cards and periodicals printed in Tel Aviv—even victorious Israeli war books, with patched Gen. Moshe Dayan's face on the covers.
Khaki-clad Israeli soldiers clatter through the narrow cobblestoned streets, past heavily laden donkeys with chattering Arab women returning from market.
The Star of David flutters languidly in the December sun over the police station opposite the Church of the Nativity.
Gone are the barbed wire entanglements that once separated Jordan and Israel, forcing pilgrims to make a long detour. But some things never change.
Commercialism and sectarian bickering still seem to mock the joyous observance of Christ's birth at this very spot nearly 2,000 years ago.
Neon signs flicker like alien beacons over the Milk Grotto Grocery and the Holy Manger Store.
Hawkers cry out the praise of olive-wood madonnas, mother of pearl crosses, rosaries.
The sprawling Church of the Nativity, which traces its beginnings back 1,600 years, has several chapels belonging to different faiths. Each religion jealously defends its rights, even to entering certain doors or lighting certain lamps.
A religious dispute more than a hundred years ago—over the placement of a vermillion star in the Grotto of the Nativity to mark the place where the Christ child was born—was taken up by supporting governments. It helped spark the Crimean War in 1853.
A television technician more recently began setting up his equipment in the Greek Orthodox basilica and requested permission from the Armenians to connect an electric line on their side. He was brusquely refused.
A few years ago while worshippers sang "Peace on earth, good will to men" in the church a group of priests battled wildly with bottles on the roof above.
There is even a dispute over which is the field "where shepherds watched their flocks by night." In four such fields around Bethlehem the keeper vows his is the true field.
Bethlehem's Arab merchants depend largely on the Christian pilgrim to boost their annual sales. So far business has been bad.
The war and Israeli tariffs imposed on Bethlehem's cottage industry have hurt.

Award Grants For Disposal Plans
CINCINNATI (AP) — The Public Health Service announced Thursday it has awarded grants to help finance 23 municipal projects for improving solid waste disposal programs.
The federal funds totaling $2,492,399 will be used to find better ways to rid the nation of solid waste which includes discarded items from junked cars to garbage.
The projects range from a bulk refuse crusher at Buffalo, N.Y., to developing a 20-year collection and disposal plan for New Orleans.

Lynda Bird Back Home

WASHINGTON (AP) — Lynda Byrd Robb made her first public appearance since her Dec. 9, wedding and promptly became close friends with a blonde, chubby-cheeked baby girl.
Mrs. Robb turned up Thursday at the White House to help her mother, Mrs. Lyndon B. Johnson, entertain the families of White House staff members.
Just returned from a Virgin Islands honeymoon, Mrs. Robb—whose husband, Marine Capt. Charles S. Robb didn't make an appearance—spent much of her time holding a 10-month-old namesake, Lynda Bradshaw, daughter of Secret Service agent John Bradshaw.

Dear Abby:

By Abigail Van Buren

Hubby Has Wrong Definition of Love

DEAR ABBY: Is it possible for a man to love two women at the same time? My husband started driving an unmarried girl to work and back every day because she lives near here and they work at the same place. She is 23 and my husband is 44. He admitted that he has been seeing her other times, and he says now he can't give her up because he is in love with her. This has been going on for about a year.

I told him if he wanted her, I would give him a divorce, but he says he loves me and the children (we have four) and he can't give me up either. I am just heart sick over this and don't know what to do. Should I tell him he's got to make a choice? Or should I just throw him out? I still love him.

HEARTSICK

DEAR HEARTSICK: If this cheap affair with a co-worker can be called "love" then it is possible for a man to "love" as many women as he can find time for. He's having his cake and eating it, too.

Don't throw him out. Tell him he has 3 months in which to make a decision. Try to be compassionate, gentle and understanding, but let him know you will not share him. I'll bet he stays home.

DEAR ABBY: Some time ago you had a letter in your column from a married woman who hid her wedding ring under her gloves when she went to work because she felt that wives should not work, and she was ashamed.

You should have told her to take off her gloves and stop living in the dark ages. Statistics show that 57 per cent of all married women work.

I have baby sat, cooked and done the marketing, in addition to running my own business while my wife worked, kept house and handled all the bookkeeping for my business. As a result we now have two healthy well-adjusted boys, a home, house trailer, two cars, a mountain cabin, and other property—all paid for.

This would not have been possible had my wife been "ashamed" to work. We are very happy with the arrangement and proud of our joint accomplishments.

E.L. IN L.A.

DEAR ABBY: Kindly tell that ninny who was "irked" because some woman brought a boy who appeared to be about 12 into the ladies' room, that if she had used her head she would have realized that no mother would do such a thing unless it was absolutely necessary. I have a handicapped son who is also 12, and as tall as I am, and I would not send him into a men's room alone. THAT is the reason I take him where I can go.

ALSO IRKED

DEAR ABBY: Being a Methodist minister, your column on what to call the in-laws interested me. In preparing young couples for marriage, I suggest that instead of addressing the mother of one's mate as "mother-in-law, which name has become the butt of so many jokes, they use, "Mother-in-love."

How many young couples before marriage consider carefully that their "in-loves" really give them a bit of a preview of what their mates will be like after 25 years? Sincerely,
P.D.S.: EMPORIUM, PA.

Christmas In Bethlehem To Be Different This Year

By HAL McCURE
Associated Press Writer

BETHLEHEM, Occupied Jordan (AP) — Pilgrims celebrating Christmas in the Israeli-occupied Holy Land will discover unexpected changes in this sleepy Arab town this year.

A new archway welcomes the visitor in English, Arabic—and Hebrew.

Arab shops carry Israeli-made goods, post cards and periodicals printed in Tel Aviv—even victorious Israeli war books, with patchy Gen. Moshe Dayan's face on the covers.

Khaki-clad Israeli soldiers clatter through the narrow cobblestone streets, past heavily laden donkeys with chattering Arab women returning from market.

The Star of David flutters languidly in the December sun over the police station opposite the Church of the Nativity.

Gone are the barbed wire entanglements that once separated Jordan and Israel, forcing pilgrims to make a long detour. But some things never change.

Commercialism and sectarian bickering still seem to mock the joyous observance of Christ's birth at this very spot nearly 2,000 years ago.

Neon signs flicker like alien beacons over the Milk Grotto Grocery and the Holy Manger Store.

Hawkers cry out the praise of olive wood madonnas, mother of pearl crosses, rosaries.

The sprawling Church of the Nativity, which traces its beginnings back 1,600 years, has several chapels belonging to different faiths. Each religion jealously defends its rights, even to entering certain doors or lighting certain lamps.

A religious dispute more than a hundred years ago—over the placement of a vermillion star in the Grotto of the Nativity to mark the place where the Christ child was born—was taken up by supporting governments. It helped spark the Crimean War in 1853.

A television technician more recently began setting up his equipment in the Greek Orthodox basilica and requested permission from the Armenians to connect an electric line on their side. He was brusquely refused.

A few years ago while worshippers sang "Peace on earth, good will to men" in the church a group of priests battled wildly with bottles on the roof above.

There is even a dispute over which is the field "where shepherds watched their flocks by night." In four such fields around Bethlehem the keeper vows his is the true field.

Bethlehem's Arab merchants depend largely on the Christian pilgrim to boost their annual sales. So far business has been bad.

The war and Israeli tariffs imposed on Bethlehem's cottage industry have hurt.

Lynda Bird Back Home

WASHINGTON (AP) — Lynda Byrd Robb made her first public appearance since her Dec. 9, wedding and promptly became close friends with a blonde, chubby-cheeked baby girl.

Mrs. Robb turned up Thursday at the White House to help her mother, Mrs. Lyndon B. Johnson, entertain the families of White House staff members.

Award Grants For Disposal Plans

CINCINNATI (AP) — The Public Health Service announced Thursday it has awarded grants to help finance 23 municipal projects for improving solid waste disposal programs.

The federal funds totaling $2,492,399 will be used to find better ways to rid the nation of solid waste which includes discarded items from junked cars to garbage.

The projects range from a bulk refuse crusher at Buffalo, N.Y., to developing a 20-year collection and disposal plan for New Orleans.

Kidney Transplant Of Year Ago Is Home for Holiday

By STEVE JONES
Herald Staff Writer

Alvin Andrew Altop of West Liberty, O., 18-year-old son of Mrs. Ronald Robinson, is home from Ohio State University to spend Christmas with his family.

He is home because one-year ago today he received a kidney transplant at Children's Hospital. The kidney was from Nancy Hancock, 9-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Adrian Hancock, Scioto Twp., who died from injuries sustained when struck by a car.

Shortly before Nancy died last year, Andy Altop experienced a complete kidney failure. When it became obvious to surgeons at Children's Hospital that Nancy would die from massive head and internal injuries, they told Adrian and Helen Hancock the story of Andy and his plight.

Surgeons explained that with Nancy's kidney, Andy might have a chance to lead a normal life. The Hancocks immediately consented to the operation.

FOR weeks after surgery was performed, Andy remained in the intensive care ward of the hospital. But his condition steadily improved as his body accepted Nancy's kidney and he was discharged from the hospital in time to attend spring term at Logan Hill High School and graduate with his class.

During his last two years of high school, Andy was able to spend little time in classes. However, with the help of special tutors, he was able to keep up with his lessons.

Since the age of 13½, Andy has had difficulty. At that time it was discovered he had anemia. At 14½ he was admitted to Children's Hospital with a chronic kidney problem.

He has been under treatment ever since. During the past summer, an operation was performed on his legs to correct a problem which had developed during the course of his kidney disease.

With the two successful operations, Andy's life is returning to normal. He is presently attending Ohio State because surgeons at Children's Hospital have requested he not be too distant from Columbus.

Mrs. Robinson, Andy's mother, and Mr. and Mrs. Hancock have corresponded during the youth's convalescence.

Nevada Man Held in Murder

ELKO, Nev. (AP)—A Carlin, Nev., man was arrested Thursday on a murder charge in the death of Ohioan John Russell Blair, whose body was found under a snow bank the day after Christmas two years ago.

The district attorney's office said Neil Phillips, 25, was arrested by undersheriff Hubert Borjas after he uncovered leads in the two-year-old case during the past week.

The body of the 22-year-old Dayton, Ohio, man's body was found on Dec. 26, 1965, near Adobe Summit north of Elko. Blair had been shot three times beneath the left ear with a .22 caliber weapon.

Some Projects in the Home Can Become Family Tradition

Many a mother, this time of year, discovers the coming holidays are turning her youngsters into "thingminded" materials with eyes only for the latest giant, battery-operated, walking, talking costly toys they can wheedle from Santa.

By the age of three, however, a child can appreciate a set of family Christmas traditions that have little to do with what he finds under the tree. He will remember and look forward to helping with a variety of holiday preparations in the home.

For girls, Christmas cookie-making with mother offers hours of creative enjoyment. Easy frosting applicators and edible decorative bits have enabled even preschoolers to turn out beautifully decorated creations with very little mess.

The cleaning and shining of festive silver pieces prior to the holidays is a good project for both boys and girls. Again, new convenience products have made this once-messy task practically child's play.

Some lotion silver cleaners such as "Tarni-Shield" may be easily and safely handled by a child because of its gentleness to both hands and silver.

Candlemaking is another pre-holiday activity that youngsters enjoy as a yearly tradition, but it requires mother's supervision. She may melt down old candle stubs, add bits of crayon which the children donate and cut up, and pour the melted wax into round orange juice cans, square milk cartons or small, star-shaped gelatin molds, with a weighted string wick in the middle.

Once hardened, the youngsters love decorating the home-made candles with glue, glitter and sequins.

In the holiday decorating department, youngsters are quick with ideas for window decorations. You need only turn them loose with colored cellophane and black plastic tape, and they can provide a "stained glass window" that may not rival Michelangelo, but will give a lovely holiday glow as the sun shines through it.

Another preholiday chore that is entered into enthusiastically by small fry is moistening postage stamps for Christmas cards which are already addressed. Provide the child with a slightly damp sponge and stamps by the roll rather than the sheet, for the convenience of easy separating. He can even add the final touch with a Christmas-type seal on the back.

The homey traditions of cookie-making, silver-polishing or candle-making are the memories of holiday anticipation that will stay with children long after their giant battery-operated, walking, talking toys are broken and forgotten.

Rick Compton Finds New York City Fascinating

By DEBBIE STONEROCK
"Greatest place in the world! Gotta go back!" This was Rick Compton's opinion of New York City, which he recently toured. As a Christmas present from his parents he spent four days and three nights in New York City. Some of the many interesting places he saw were the Empire State Building, Rockefeller Center, Time Square, Winter Garden Theatre, JFK Airport and Central Park. His experience in Central Park is one he will surely be able to remember. "I got lost in Central Park and wandered around from 1 a.m. until 4 a.m. trying to find my way out." He also went to see productions of "Mame," "Cabaret," and "Illya Darling."

Craig Lambert is one of the most outstanding seniors at CHS. He is a great leader on the athletic field and in his school activities. Craig is an avid athlete as a three year letterman in football and a two-year letterman in baseball. In football this year he received the Most Valuable Player Award and then went on to be named to the all-league team, All-District, and the first team All-State squad. Craig will also play in the North and South high school grid game next August. Craig also takes great pride in his school activities. Enrolled in the classical course, Craig is a member of EMS. He is the secretary of the Stooze Club. After graduation he plans to attend college.

CHS Observes Traditions

By JOHNIE THOMAS
There are many traditions observed by the public at this time of year, but CHS has its own special traditions that are kept alive each year at Christmas time. The Stooze Club puts up a Christmas tree in the hall which is admired by both students and faculty. Key Club prepares a food basket and decorates the downtown area. Senior SOS prepares a food basket and has a caroling party. GAA has a Christmas party and prepares a basket. Deca Club prepares a food basket and makes wreaths and crosses and sells them. All CHS clubs participated in putting on the Christmas Party. Office practice class makes attractive Christmas Cards. The choir and Triple Trio and band perform for CHS and the public. There is also an annual office party. CHS's teachers do certain things during Christmas. Mrs. Eberly puts holly leaves around her room. Mr. Higgins tells a brief story of the history of Christmas, and Mrs. Will has attractive Christmas cards for the students to enjoy. Office girls and Mrs. Berry tramped the hills and personally picked and cut down the Christmas tree in the high school office.

An addition to Coach Kent Carpenter's wrestling squad is Bill "Rock" Gates. Bill, a senior, has played football for three years but only came out for wrestling three weeks ago, with the season already in progress. In his first meet Bill pinned his first opponent in less than one minute of the first period. He was beaten in the second match, 6-5. When asked why he chose to go out for wrestling Bill replied, "I always wanted to wrestle, but I never thought I could. Since this is my last year I thought I would try it." Coach Carpenter commented, "Bill has an intense desire to win, something many members of this team lack." Bill is enrolled in the general course, and is active in Stooze Club. Christmas More Than Time To Figure Finances

By DARYL BROWN
At this time of year everyone seems to be alive with the spirit of happiness and good will. Shoppers are hustling here and there trying to pull all the odds and ends together and finish their buying before all the stores are left completely barren of suitable gifts. In general everything runs along with a hectic normality that accompanies this season.

But there is one thing wrong. This injustice goes drastically unnoticed by scores of people and yet it is the basis for this season. Unfortunately, many are leaving Christ out of Christmas. Too many people think of Christmas entirely from a financial and an entertainment aspect — what gifts they will receive, what gifts they must give, how much all the buying is going to cost them, what the Christmas tree will cost, how many lights they will decorate the house with this year, and many other items. These people have become so wrapped up in the commercial side of Christmas that in the process they have by-passed its real meaning, that Christ the Messiah, was born.

All the gift giving and merriment is not wrong if it is as it was intended to be — as a supplement to the real purpose of paying tribute to and worshiping Jesus Christ. The problem arises when the gift giving and getting becomes the primary objective of the season and, consequently, is not usually done in a truly Christian spirit. It was a glorious, history-making, world-changing night when the Christ child was born. Let us all make time during this holiday season to acknowledge his birth and celebrate that night of miracles in an appropriate manner.

Smiles Brighten Spirits

By SANDY TRACY
This is the season to be jolly, so why not smile? One little smile can do wonders. It can brighten up the spirits and make people forget their troubles. Smiles do much more for the facial features than a frown. And besides, a smile uses less muscles. One smile can start a chain of smiles and even the grumpy people break down and give a little grin. If you want to be merry and have everyone else that way too, smile and the whole world will smile with you.

Curtain Callers Club Based On Promotion of Dramatics

By NANCY SIGMON and PATTY COLEMAN
Curtain Callers, a relatively new CHS club, was organized for the theatrical interest of the students by Robert Ransom in 1962. "Encouragement of all efforts and activities in connection with dramatics, the promotion of full discussion and exchange of ideas, the improvement of methods, the establishment of a better understanding and community, of the importance, and the scope of dramatics in education" are related to the purpose of Curtain Callers as stated in the constitution.

Active members of the club are to maintain a 2.0 average and must have completed one semester at CHS or last semester of the ninth grade at Circleville Junior High School.

GENE DYKE
By MIKE SMITH and GREG WHITE
The 6-3 junior center for CHS's basketball team is Gene Dyke. Gene lives at 353 E. Main St. with his mother Mrs. Chester L. Dyke.

Enrolled in the general course, Gene plans to enter military service after graduation and hopes to become a barber later.

"We could win the SCOL if we worked at it," Gene commented concerning the basketball team. Gene, in his second year of basketball at CHS, feels that Coach Hill handling both the reserves and varsity teams has really been a big help this year. "Circleville's varsity should start winning about now," Gene said, "and keep on winning till we capture the SCOL." The Tigers go against Teays Valley tonight at the Mill St. gymnasium.

Meetings for Curtain Callers are held on the first and third Monday of each month at school or at such a place and at such a time as the board of directors shall designate.

Throughout the year, the club participates in various activities. This year Curtain Callers provided entertainment at Pumpkin Show and Homcoming Dance. "Happiness is the Great Pumpkin Show" was the title of this year's float entered during Pumpkin Show. A puppet show was performed for last week's Christmas Party.

Rick Compton Finds New York City Fascinating

By DEBBIE STONEROCK
"Greatest place in the world! Gotta go back!" This was Rick Compton's opinion of New York City, which he recently toured. As a Christmas present from his parents he spent four days and three nights in New York City. Some of the many interesting places he saw were the Empire State Building, Rockefeller Center, Time Square, Winter Garden Theatre, JFK Airport and Central Park. His experience in Central Park is one he will surely be able to remember. "I got lost in Central Park and wandered around from 1 a.m. until 4 a.m. trying to find my way out." He also went to see productions of "Mame," "Cabaret," and "Illya Darling."

Craig Lambert Outstanding Senior at CHS

CRAIG LAMBERT
By RICK CONGROVE
Craig Lambert is one of the most outstanding seniors at CHS. He is a great leader on the athletic field and in his school activities. Craig is an avid athlete as a three year letterman in football and a two-year letterman in baseball. In football this year he received the Most Valuable Player Award and then went on to be named to the all-league team, All-District, and the first team All-State squad. Craig will also play in the North and South high school grid game next August. Craig also takes great pride in his school activities. Enrolled in the classical course, Craig is a member of EMS. He is the secretary of the Stooze Club. After graduation he plans to attend college.

CHS Observes Traditions

By JOHNIE THOMAS
There are many traditions observed by the public at this time of year, but CHS has its own special traditions that are kept alive each year at Christmas time. The Stooze Club puts up a Christmas tree in the hall which is admired by both students and faculty. Key Club prepares a food basket and decorates the downtown area. Senior SOS prepares a food basket and has a caroling party. GAA has a Christmas party and prepares a basket. DECA Club prepares a food basket and makes wreaths and crosses and sells them. All CHS clubs participated in putting on the Christmas Party. Office practice class makes attractive Christmas Cards. The choir and Triple Trio and band perform for CHS and the public. There is also an annual office party. CHS's teachers do certain things during Christmas. Mrs. Eberly puts holly leaves around her room. Mr. Higgins tells a brief story of the history of Christmas, and Mrs. Will has attractive Christmas cards for the students to enjoy.

Office girls and Mrs. Berry tramped the hills and personally picked and cut down the Christmas tree in the high school office.

55 Youngsters Attend CHS Party

By SHARON JOHNSON and ROSEMARY MCCAIN
A total of 55 youngsters attended the annual Christmas party held last Friday in the high school cafeteria sponsored by CHS clubs. Jolly old St. Nicholas, provided by the Stooze Club, was Craig Lambert. His helpers were Patty Glitt and Cynthia Brackett. Special duties were given to each club. EMS wrote the invitation and placed name tags on each child. Senior SOS prepared the banana splits and served the cookies baked by Mrs. Rickey's Home Ec. classes. Sophomore SOS decided on the various games. Senior GAA

Christmas More Than Time To Figure Finances

By DARYL BROWN
At this time of year everyone seems to be alive with the spirit of happiness and good will. Shoppers are hustling here and there trying to pull all the odds and ends together and finish their buying before all the stores are left completely barren of suitable gifts. In general everything runs along with a hectic normality that accompanies this season.

But there is one thing wrong. This injustice goes drastically unnoticed by scores of people and yet it is the basis for this season. Unfortunately, many are leaving Christ out of Christmas. Too many people think of Christmas entirely from a financial and an entertainment aspect — what gifts they will receive, what gifts they must give, how much all the buying is going to cost them, what the Christmas tree will cost, how many lights they will decorate the house with this year, and many other items. These people have become so wrapped up in the commercial side of Christmas that in the process they have passed its real meaning, that Christ the Messiah, was born.

All the gift giving and merriment is not wrong if it is as it was intended to be — as a supplement to the real purpose of paying tribute to and worshipping Jesus Christ. The problem arises when the gift giving and getting becomes the primary objective of the season and, consequently, is not usually done in a truly Christian spirit. It was a glorious, history-making, world-changing night when the Christ child was born. Let us all make time during this holiday season to acknowledge his birth and celebrate that night of miracles in an appropriate manner.

Gates Wins 1st Mat Match

BILL GATES
By JACK CARLE
An addition to Coach Kent Carpenter's wrestling squad is Bill "Rock" Gates. Bill, a senior, has played football for three years but only came out for wrestling three weeks ago, with the season already in progress. In his first meet Bill pinned his first opponent in less than one minute of the first period. He was beaten in the second match, 6-5. When asked why he chose to go out for wrestling Bill replied, "I always wanted to wrestle, but I never thought I could. Since this is my last year I thought I would try it."

Coach Carpenter commented, "Bill has an intense desire to win, something many members of this team lack." Bill is enrolled in the general course, and is active in Stooze Club. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Roscoe Gates, 290 Lewis Rd. He has a sister, Mary, a CHS cheerleader and a brother Jim, a grade-schooler and future athletic star for CHS.

Mary Gearhart Is New Student

MARY PAT GEARHART

By BETSY HAMRICK and MARY PLUMMER

New Mexico, Virginia, Japan, Thailand and Massachusetts are some of the places where Mary Pat Gearhart has lived.

Born in Alabama, she has traveled extensively because of her father's position as Lt. Col. in the Air Force. He is now stationed in Viet Nam.

Mary Pat and her mother Mrs. F. Z. Gearhart, now reside at 660 Ridgewood Drive. Mary Pat also has a sister Kathy who attends Ohio State University.

"I really like Circleville," she said. Mary Pat's hobbies include sewing, skiing, and horseback riding. She belongs to the Presbyterian Westminster Fellowship and church choir.

She plans to attend Ohio State University and study research dietetics after graduation.

of the world and it is that event and that only which gives a meaning to Christmas now.

Christmas is centuries old by now and vividly colored by ancient thought and customs, yet as new and fresh every year as the universal hope it represents.

Gifts, as the legend goes, are associated with one gift bearer according to what country you are in, he may be St. Nicholas or the Three Kings of Knight Rupprecht. His home is far away in Heaven or at the North Pole or in some remote country from which he comes on horseback, or in a sleigh drawn by reindeer. He may come secretly at night or openly in the winter daylight accompanied by a train of masked demons and strange animal forms. Often he is associated with fire, entering the house by the chimney, or leaving his gifts by the hearth. This aspect of his character is now almost entirely forgotten in England and America, where Father Christmas (or Santa Claus) is altogether benevolent but in many European countries it is well remembered and has its clear effects upon the local customs. There are many different customs in all countries.

The exchange of gifts at or near Christmas began long before Christiaity gave a new and deeper meaning to the custom. Small clay or paste images were specially made at this season and given to children. At the Kalends of January, gifts were simple boughs of greenery brought from the groves of the goddess Strenia. Many were charms as well as gifts. Men gave one another honeyed things a sign of sweetness in the coming year, lamps for light and warmth and money for increasing wealth.

Christmas cards are little more than a century old. Their immediate predecessor were the Christmas pieces, which school boys produced at the end of the winter term. The older people used this idea for friends, and relatives and the custom started and has been passed down to us.

Caroling started in the 14th century. They were simple songs. The word carol originally meant a ring dance accompanied by a song.

Carols were not and never have been hymns, though they are sometimes confused with them. In the 18th century the waits or watchmen went from door to door and sang songs and lit their way with lanterns and played wind instruments.

Many Christmas legends were concerned with animals, birds or plants. Telling ghost stories around the fire is a favorite Christmas pastime. Mistletoe and holly are strong life symbols, because they stay green and bear fruit in the winter.

Positive Thinking

PEORIA, Ill. (AP)—The executive director of the National Fellowship of Christian Athletes said a man must have faith in himself, his fellow man and God to be a success.

James Jeffrey of Kansas City, speaking at a YMCA meeting, said a man must have a positive attitude toward other persons and himself before he can take a positive attitude toward God.

Jeffrey, who is a Baptist minister, said this positive attitude enables athletes to overcome handicaps. He urged athletes with physical handicaps to set their sights higher.

"Someone has you on a pedestal that is above everything else," he said. "The things you do and say others will imitate because you are an idol to them."

Concert Is Great Success

By SANDY TRACY

The Christmas Concert held at the Circleville High School Auditorium Dec. 17 was a great success.

The school choir, directed by Mr. Truman Eberly, sang a variety of songs, with Steve Dade featured in a solo.

The Triple Trio, composed of first sopranos Melissa Willoughby, Cathy Frazier, Mary Brown; second sopranos Kathy Fuller, Karen Hosler, Sandra Greene; altos Marsha Willoughby, Linda Garrett and Kathy Howard with piano accompanist Patty Painter, sang "Glory In the Highest," "The Star Carol," "O How A Rose," "Carol of the Russian Children," "The Birthday of a King," and "Fum, Fum Fum."

The High School Band directed by Mr. George Marshall played music by Grundman Yon and Cacavas.

A local radio station taped the concert and played it on the radio.

Donald Duck Is New Crewman

PEARL HARBOR (AP) — More than one eyebrow will be raised when a new crewman reports aboard the Navy's picket escort ship Falgout at Pearl Harbor shortly. The new crewman's name — Donald Duck.

Seaman Apprentice Duck recently completed his basic training at San Diego and has been assigned to the Falgout.

Duck, 20, said he has quite a time with his name. He said shortly after his arrival in San Diego he was sent to the naval hospital. He said he had to convince three staff nurses, two corpsmen and one doctor that his name really was Donald Duck.

He also tells of trouble in San Francisco with an airline ticket agent. The agent, according to Duck, said, "Sure, we have Mickey Mouse aboard, too."

Duck said his name is not a total deficit. He said it starts a conversation on the light humorous side and that it is a name that has its advantages in making friends.

What do the sailor's parents think about his name? Ask them — Mr. and Mrs. Donald Duck of Agana, Guam.

No Heat; Prof Quits His Job

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn. (AP) — The aspect of a bitter Minnesota winter without his accustomed heated garage space caused an associate dentistry professor at the University of Minnesota to resign.

For 15 years Dr. M.W. Houghlum, 50, a periodontist—gum specialist—taught one day a week at the School of Dentistry and had a reserved parking space in an inside heated garage.

He was notified that his parking space had been moved to an open parking ramp at the school. His old spot is now used by outpatients at the medical school.

Considering Minnesota's 10 to 25 degree below zero winters with blowing snow, Houghlum said, "I don't give a damn about the car. It's me I'm worried about."

No Heat; Prof Quits His Job

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn. (AP)—The aspect of a bitter Minnesota winter without his accustomed heated garage space caused an associate dentistry professor at the University of Minnesota to resign.

For 15 years Dr. M.W. Houghlum, 50, a periodontist—gum specialist—taught one day a week at the School of Dentistry and had a reserved parking space in an inside heated garage.

He was notified that his parking space had been moved to an open parking ramp at the school. His old spot is now used by outpatients at the medical school.

Considering Minnesota's 10 to 25 degree below zero winters with blowing snow, Houghlum said, "I don't give a damn about the car. It's me I'm worried about."

Building Repair And Maintenance

By FRITZ JACOBS
City School Superintendent

Environment is an extremely important criteria for a quality education program. School facilities in order to meet the high standards of the City School system and to withstand the daily use of from 200 to 750 students each must have constant care and attention.

Once a building is constructed and students and staff move in, the concern begins as these structures must be utilized far longer and with harder use than most buildings. Prevention of deterioration is the key to good maintenance. Each building is assigned a custodian or group of custodians depending upon its size. Although the duties of these custodians vary according to its size generally they are closely related. In addition to daily sweeping, mopping, and dusting, the custodian must be alert to room temperature, the proper operation of the heating plant, room odors, broken window repair, restroom cleanliness, minor repair, building security, and numerous other duties.

The Circleville City Schools employ 12 full time custodians and three part-time to maintain the general duties as described.

A maintenance employee, George Horn, is responsible for general maintenance especially in the area of electrical installation and repair. Horn also works closely with the Business Manager and custodians.

The summer months, when school is not in session provides the opportunity for major maintenance. During this time teams of custodians work in various buildings as well as individual work in the smaller buildings. Experience has indicated that this time is quite valuable and without it extensive maintenance would be somewhat restricted and buildings would be much more difficult to maintain.

The business manager generally determines the materials used for cleaning and repair. The effectiveness and quality of these items are thoroughly analyzed before purchase and are periodically evaluated and compared to new and improved materials that are regularly being marketed.

Quite naturally the newer buildings require less repair of a general nature but certainly an equal amount of attention related to daily maintenance. The present Junior High, formerly Circleville High School, required the majority of current repair. All new restroom facilities are a need in the immediate future. Soon new window frames and windows will be needed. Last summer new exterior doors were installed and for the past four years a planned electrical fixture replacement program has been operative.

General redecorating is provided according to a planned program or sooner if exceptional needs arise. A portion of the work is done by the custodian and some on a contract basis.

Exterior maintenance and care required a considerable amount of time during the summer months. General mowing of the many acres of grass coupled with shrubbery care must be regularly scheduled. Snow removal during the winter months is another example of regular exterior maintenance.

Care and general repair of buildings, equipment, and property is a vital concern of the school administration. Many thousands of dollars can be saved by proper attention and care of facilities. Students can assist greatly by their cooperation both during and after school hours. This cooperation minimizes the need for extra work by employees in the buildings and on the school grounds.

How Weather Looks Today

OHIO WEATHER SUMMARY
COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—Official Weather Bureau Summary for Ohio:

The state underwent a rapid weather change overnight. Temperatures fell 30 to 40 degrees over most of the state. Readings as of 5 a.m. were in the mid 20s at many stations in Western Ohio and in the 30s at most other places.

A cold wave warning has been issued, with the mercury expected to fall steadily during the day, reaching the teens in most section of Ohio by this evening with a statewide temperature range between 8 to 15 above by late tonight.

Cloudy weather with some snow flurries, mostly near Lake Erie, was forecast today.

It will continue cold Saturday with partly cloudy skies except for snow flurries in extreme Northeast Ohio. Sunday's outlook is for fair and a little warmer weather.

FORECAST

OHIO — Cold wave warning. Cloudy, and turning much colder with snow flurries. Temperatures steadily falling into the teens by this evening and ranging from 8-15 above tonight. Occasional snow squalls likely northeast. Continued cold Saturday with partly cloudy skies southwest and snow flurries flurries northeast.

CENTRAL OHIO — Mostly cloudy and very cold tonight, low near 15. Saturday mostly sunny and cold.

SOUTHEAST OHIO — Cold wave warning tonight. Cloudy and much colder with snow flurries tonight, low near 15. Saturday mostly sunny and cold.

NORTHWEST OHIO — Cold wave warning. Cloudy, windy and turning much colder with snow flurries, temperatures falling steadily and reaching into the teens this afternoon and tonight, ranging from 8-13 tonight. Mostly cloudy and continued cold with snow flurries Saturday.

SOUTHWEST OHIO — Tonight partial clearing and colder, low in the teens. Saturday mostly sunny and not as cold.

OHIO FIVE DAY FORECAST
Temperatures will average above normal Saturday through Wednesday with highs in the 40s and lows in the 20s or 30s. Sunday warm, turning colder

Circleville's 1st Christmas Tree

Christmas Eve 1840 — Circleville was to have its first Christmas tree.

Circleville had been settled in 1810 but for 30 years no bright colored tree had graced this frontier yuletide.

Mr. Abernathy changed all that for the first Christmas of his eldest daughter. He would have a "Weihnachtsbaum" as he had known it in Germany.

Large walnuts were covered with silver and gold paper and reflectors were cut for the candles from tin cans.

A bright red cranberry was impaled on a pin attached to the end of each spike of the cedar which Abernathy had ordered all the way from Virginia.

The shiny tin candle holders were clamped to the boughs and a long string of popcorn was strung in great loops from one branch to another.

Topping the tree was a little bisque angel suspended by a rubber band from the ceiling just above the top of the tree.

The angel would bob up and down and seem to fly by itself as the currents of warm air from the candle flames would strike it.

The tree was placed near a window in front of a large mirror so that it would have a full length duplicate of itself.

Abernathy and his wife were up early that Christmas day to light the candles of the tree so that everyone going to church at 5 a. m. would see the wonderful creation.

Each following year more people decided to copy Abernathy's idea and have a Christmas tree. And many of those to come were finer than his, but no one could deny that Mr. Abernathy had been first.

His had been the first Christmas tree in the Circleville Community.

Mansfield Soldier Killed in Action
WASHINGTON (AP)—Army Pfc. Richard E. Mehl, son of Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Mehl, Mansfield, Ohio, has been killed in action in Vietnam, the Defense Department reported Thursday.

Another Ohioan was listed as missing in action. He is Army Pfc. Virgil L. Hiter, son of Mr. and Mrs. Lon E. King of Milford.

Charter Granted
RIPLEY, Ohio (AP)—The Ripley Medical Foundation, Inc., which plans to build a hospital here associated with the Cincinnati Heart Research Foundation, was granted a charter Thursday.

Monday or Tuesday, and warmer again midweek. Precipitation will total .25 inch to 0.75 inch melted as snow flurries Saturday and occasional rain or snow most days of period.

Jimmie Rodgers Talks to Press

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Singer Jimmie Rodgers says he remembers being "pulled off the road by an auto or something with very bright lights" just before he sustained a skull fracture Dec. 1 near a Los Angeles freeway.

Rodgers, 33, said Thursday that he does not remember, however, what happened after stopping his car and does not remember getting out of the car or talking to police.

"No matter what happened," Rodgers told a small news conference in his hospital room. "I was left in the car and I was hurt. I want to know why they left me there."

Rodgers was allowed to talk to police and the press for the first time since his injury.

Pleads Innocent In Narcotic Case

RAVENNA, Ohio (AP)—John Falone, a 20-year-old Kent State University sophomore from East Liverpool, pleaded innocent in municipal court Thursday to a charge of possession of marijuana.

A preliminary hearing was set for Jan. 2 and he was released without bond.

Falone was arrested last week in a narcotics raid at his residence in Kent, along with five other persons.

Laurelville Stops Rockets, 73-37

Laurelville dominated Berne Union for the second time this season, beating the Fairfield County squad, 73-37, Thursday.

The Wildcats will carry a 6-4 record into the Zane Trace Holiday Tournament Dec. 27 and 28 against the Logan Elm Braves. The two teams clash in the first game of the annual event, won last year by Logan Elm.

Although the Wildcats did not play consistent basketball until the final period, they were never threatened by the host squad. Laurelville was in front, 17-11 at the end of the initial eight minutes of play. At halftime, they led 34-17 and held a 43-27 margin going into the final period.

In the last quarter, the winners notched 33 points while holding the losers to 10.

Mike Kneec was the game's leading scorer, tossing in eight field goals and one foul shot for a total of 17 markers.

Mike Chestnut notched 16 and Bob Bowers 15. Other Wildcats in the scoring column were Jeff Whitcraft with nine, Bob Harmon with seven, Gerald Disbennett and Mike Shaw with four each and Dave Berrard and Dave McCabe with two each.

FOR Berne Union, no one scored over the eight points notched Solenbarger.

The Wildcats made 22 of 28 shots at the foul line. Bowers had 11 rebounds and Shaw 10 for the winners.

In preliminary action Laurelville's junior varsity stopped the hosts, 52-22.

Pipers Top Houston

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The Pittsburgh Pipers are putting all kinds of pressure on the Minnesota Muskies, but Minnesota seems to be bearing up under it all right.

The Pipers won their 10th straight American Basketball Association game Thursday night, downing Houston 114-105, but the Muskies beat New Jersey 105-94 to keep its one-game grasp on the Eastern Division lead over red-hot Pittsburgh.

In other ABA games Thursday night, Dallas beat Kentucky 120-99 and Oakland downed Denver 116-94.

In the National Basketball Association's only game Thursday, Baltimore topped Chicago 116-108.

Zane Trace Cops RCL Victory

Zane Trace broke a close game open with a 26 third quarter scoring effort Thursday in a 76-62 win over Paint Valley in Ross County League action.

Sharing scoring honors for the winning pioneers were sophomore Jeff Reisinger, and Dan Ratcliffe. Both had 18 points.

Game laurels went to Dave Purdum of Paint Valley, who connected on nine field goals and two charity tosses for 20 points.

Flyers Blank Minnesota, 6-0

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The soaring Philadelphia Flyers have penetrated Minnesota's stubborn defenses—and left Cesare Maniago's fortress in a shambles.

The Flyers blanked Minnesota 6-0 Thursday night, ending goalie Maniago's shutout streak at three games—one short of the National Hockey League record—and hanging on to first place in the league's West Division race.

In the only other game scheduled, the Los Angeles Kings trimmed Pittsburgh 4-1 to remain two points behind Philadelphia in the scramble for the expansion division pennant.

Hand Picks Rams Over Packers

By JACK HAND

Associated Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — It is hard to imagine a Vince Lombardi-coached team losing three in a row but the Hand-picked is tabbing the aroused Los Angeles Rams to beat the Green Bay Packers Saturday in the big pro football game of the weekend.

Dallas should rise to the occasion in the Cotton Bowl and knock off the Cleveland Browns Sunday in the Eastern Conference final to set up a Ram-Cowboy battle for the NFL title Dec. 31 at Los Angeles.

All are on television (CBS).

Houston, needing only a win or tie over improved Miami Saturday night to eliminate the New York Jets, should qualify for the AFL championship game at Oakland, also Dec. 31.

The regular NFL season ended last Sunday with a 72-31-9 record for this groggy selector. With three to go in the AFL it's 29-14-2 for an over-all total of 111-45-11.

Incidentally, we did pick three of the four NFL division winners in the pre-season series with the Rams, Packers and Cowboys coming through. But Pittsburgh? What happened, Bill Austin?

NFL

Los Angeles 27, Green Bay 20. (Saturday) — The Rams had to get lucky with a blocked punt in the final minute to shade the Packers 27-24. Green Bay crippled then and still lists Jim Grabowski as doubtful. Donny Anderson and Ben Wilson to play with injuries. Home field and weather advantage would seem to give Packers the advantage but the Fearsome Foursome chased Bart Starr out of the pocket two weeks ago and should do it again after manhandling John Unitas last week. Rams have momentum. Packers are the old pros. We just have to believe this is the year of the Rams.

Dallas 21, Cleveland 14. (Sunday) — Battle of battered quarterbacks with Doc Meredith playing despite broken nose and damaged knee and Frank Ryan troubled by ankle and arm injuries. When they met opening day Cowboys won 21-14 on two TD passes by Meredith and interception by Chuck Howley. Dallas intercepted Ryan three times and smeared him four while holding Leroy Kelly to 11 yards and Ernie Green to six. Cowboys inconsistent, but best at home. Browns finished strong, forgetting last week's second string effort at Philadelphia.

AFL

Houston 21, Miami 14. (Saturday night) — Oilers need only a tie to wrap up Eastern title. Dolphins gave them real trouble Dec. 3 but Houston won 17-14 despite two TD passes by Bob Griese. Hoyle Granger ran for 111 yards and Woodie Campbell for 141. Defense should win it for Houston.

New York 24, San Diego 21. (Sunday) — If Houston clinches Saturday, forget this one. The only excitement could be Namath's quest for a pro passing record. If Oilers fall, Jets can force tie playoff win.

Oakland 28, Buffalo 17. (Sunday) — Raiders won 24-20 when it counted. This is a nothing game except for Daryle Lamonica who sat on Bills' bench for years. Raiders already in, Bills out of everything.

Kansas City, Denver and Boston are finished.

Aces Defeat Millersport

Amanda Clearcreek whose only cage loss of the season came Saturday at the hands of undefeated Westfall, maintained a perfect league record by edging Millersport, 67-64, Thursday.

The Aces sport a 5-0 mark and stand at the top of the Fairfield County League race. In all games, they have won six and lost one.

Last night, Joe Hiles tossed in 23 points, 21 of them coming in the second half, to pace his team to victory.

The Aces trailed 15-9 at the end of the first quarter and 32-27 at halftime. In the third period they outscored the Millersport quintet, 24-17, and took a two point lead into the final canto.

GAME CHEFS — Five veteran members of the Pickaway Farmers and Sportsmen Assn. prepared the annual wild game banquet held Thursday in the 4-H and Grange Building at the Fairgrounds. The cooks were, from the left, Marvin Konkle, Eugene (Doc) Owens, Robert Wolf, Charlie Glitt and Walter Richards.

Wilmington Notches Win In CC Tourney

Wilmington, the only South Central Ohio League team in action Thursday, stopped Blanchester, 44-38, in the Clinton County Holiday Basketball tournament.

The Hurricanes trailed by one point, 9-8, at the end of the first period. By halftime they had pulled to a 25-19 lead, moved up to a 35-25 lead at the end of the third period and won by a final six point margin.

John Petty notched 14 points to pace the winners. Wilmington plays tonight in the tourney final.

Flyers Blank

Minnesota, 6-0

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
The soaring Philadelphia Flyers have penetrated Minnesota's stubborn defenses—and left Cesare Maniago's fortress in a shambles.

The Flyers blanked Minnesota 6-0 Thursday night, ending goalie Maniago's shutout streak at three games—one short of the National Hockey League record—and hanging on to first place in the league's West Division race.

In the only other game scheduled, the Los Angeles Kings trimmed Pittsburgh 4-1 to remain two points behind Philadelphia in the scramble for the expansion division pennant.

Yastrzemski Wins Slugging Honors

BOSTON (AP) — Carl Yastrzemski, the Boston Red Sox Triple Crown winner, ran off with another honor in winning his second American League slugging championship. Official figures announced today by AL President Joe Cronin showed that Yastrzemski compiled a hefty slugging mark of .662 on 360 total bases in 579 official times at bat.

Steve Turner Hottest Item In Basketball

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — Ever hear of Steve Turner? If you're a basketball fan, chances are you will.

At 7-foot-2, Turner is taller than UCLA's Lew Alcindor, still growing and is being courted by most of the nation's major college basketball teams.

In fact, his doctor figures that the senior at suburban Bartlett High School may reach 7-5.

Turner, who can effortlessly touch the backboards, has led Bartlett to a 12-0 won-lost record and the State's No. 1 ranking in The Associated Press high school poll.

"Yes sir, he's the biggest reason our team is No. 1 in the state," declares Bartlett Coach Glenn Essary.

Essary said more than 120 colleges are actively trying to recruit his tall center.

Among those taking notice, he said, are Tennessee, Memphis State, North Carolina, Georgia, Louisiana State, Mississippi, Mississippi State, Georgia Tech, Vanderbilt, Southern Cal, Alabama Auburn, Michigan State, Tulsa, Louisville, Cincinnati "and just about every college in the country."

Athletes Chosen

MEXICO CITY (AP) — Pilar Roldan, who won a gold medal in fencing at the Pan American Games, and Juan Martinez, a distance runner, were named Mexican athletes of the year Thursday by Mexican sports writers.

Laurelville Stops Rockets, 73-37

Laurelville dominated Berne Union for the second time this season, beating the Fairfield County squad, 76-37, Thursday.

The Wildcats will carry a 6-4 record into the Zane Trace Holiday Tournament Dec. 27 and 28 against the Logan Elm Braves. The two teams clash in the first game of the annual event, won last year by Logan Elm.

Although the Wildcats did not play consistent basketball until the final period, they were never threatened by the host squad.

Laurelville was in front, 17-11 at the end of the initial eight minutes of play. At halftime, they led 34-17 and held a 43-27 margin going into the final period.

In the last quarter, the winners notched 33 points while holding the losers to 10.

Mike Kneecce was the game's leading scorer, tossing in eight field goals and one foul shot for a total of 17 markers.

Mike Chestnut notched 16 and Bob Bowers 15. Other Wildcats in the scoring column were Jeff Whitcraft with nine, Bob Harmon with seven, Gerald Disbennett and Mike Shaw with four each and Dave Berrard and Dave McCabe with two each.

FOR Berne Union, no one scored over the eight points notched Solenberger.

The Wildcats made 22 of 28 shots at the foul line. Bowers had 11 rebounds and Shaw 10 for the winners.

In preliminary action Laurelville's junior varisty stopped the hosts, 52-22.

Teams Practice For Rose Bowl

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) — The newly arrived Indiana football team split the day with work and fun today, while the same was true of its Rose Bowl rival, University of Southern California.

Morning workouts were slated for both teams, the Hoosiers of the Big Ten in Pasadena's Brookside Park, and the Trojans of the Pacific-8 on their own Bovard team.

At noon the teams head for an annual get-together at Disneyland.

Dick Post Picked Rookie of Year

NEW YORK (AP) — Dick Post, the San Diego running back who was overlooked for three rounds in the professional football draft, was named the American Football League's Offensive Rookie of the Year today by an Associated Press panel of sports writers and broadcasters.

Post, who played brilliantly when Paul Lowe was injured early in the season, attracted 17 of the 27 ballots cast by three-man committees in each of the AFL's nine league cities.

Adcock Hired

SEATTLE, Wash. (AP) — Joe Adcock, former major league first baseman and ex-manager of the Cleveland Indians, Thursday was named to manage the Seattle baseball team which will play next season in the Pacific Coast League and become an American League expansion team in 1969.

Jim Carlen, West Virginia new football coach, was head defensive coach at Georgia Tech last season.

Pipers Top Houston

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The Pittsburgh Pipers are putting all kinds of pressure on the Minnesota Muskies, but Minnesota seems to be bearing up under it all right.

The Pipers won their 10th straight American Basketball Association game Thursday night, downing Houston 114-105, but the Muskies beat New Jersey 105-94 to keep its one-game grasp on the Eastern Division lead over red-hot Pittsburgh.

In other ABA games Thursday night, Dallas beat Kentucky 120-99 and Oakland downed Denver 116-94.

In the National Basketball Association's only game Thursday, Baltimore topped Chicago 116-108.

Zane Trace Cops RCL Victory

Zane Trace broke a close game open with a 26 third quarter scoring effort Thursday in a 76-62 win over Paint Valley in Ross County League action.

Sharing scoring honors for the winning pioneers were sophomore Jeff Reisinger, and Dan Ratcliffe. Both had 18 points.

Game laurels went to Dave Purdum of Paint Valley, who connected on nine field goals and two charity tosses for 20 points.

Hand Picks Rams Over Packers

By JACK HAND

Associated Press Sports Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — It is hard to imagine a Vince Lombardi-coached team losing three in a row but the Hand-picked is tabbing the aroosed Los Angeles Rams to beat the Green Bay Packers Saturday in the big pro football game of the weekend.

Dallas should rise to the occasion in the Cotton Bowl and knock off the Cleveland Browns Sunday in the Eastern Conference final to set up a Ram-Cowboy battle for the NFL title Dec. 31 at Los Angeles.

All are on television (CBS).

Houston, needing only a win or tie over improved Miami Saturday night to eliminate the New York Jets, should qualify for the AFL championship game

at Oakland, also Dec. 31.

The regular NFL season ended last Sunday with a 72-31-9 record for this groggy selector. With three to go in the AFL it's 39-14-2 for an over-all total of 111-45-11.

Incidentally, we did pick three of the four NFL division winners in the pre-season series with the Rams, Packers and Cowboys coming through. But Pittsburgh? What happened, Bill Austin?

NFL

Los Angeles 27, Green Bay 20. (Saturday) — The Rams had to get lucky with a blocked punt in the final minute to shade the Packers 27-24. Green Bay crippled then and still lists Jim Grabowski as doubtful. Donny Anderson and Ben Wilson to play with injuries. Home field and weather advantage would seem to give Packers the advantage but the Fearsome Foursome chased Bart Starr out of the pocket two weeks ago and should do it again after man-handling John Unitas last week. Rams have momentum. Packers are the old pros. We just have to believe this is the year of the Rams.

AUCTION

IN PARTITION

271 Acre Fayette County Farm

Two Residences — Farm Buildings

Thursday, December 28, 1967

Located: Less than two miles east of Washington C. H., Ohio, just off U. S. 22, and fronting on the Bogus Road, in Union Twp., Fayette County.

Sells at Court House 2:00 P.M.

Since Fayette County is one of the most important agricultural counties in Ohio, we do invite your inspection and careful study of this quality land being offered for sale. You will be pleased with an introduction to this farmer's farm. Soil map shows Brookston, Crosby, and Celina silt loams. Tile and fences are average. Level land. ASC reports 225 crop acres.

IMPROVEMENTS: Modern farm workshop (30'x40'), pole barn (40'x60'), main barn with attached shed, farrowing barn (26'x66'), double cribs for ear corn storage, poultry buildings, plus several other small buildings.

Two residences: The seven room frame home with full bath and forced air oil heat is most acceptable and ready for the farm family. The tenant house has six rooms, with three up and three down, and is not modern.

INSPECTION: Call or see Weade and Wisecup, Auctioneers, phone 335-2210, for appointment.

FINANCING: This high quality, outstanding farm can qualify for a maximum long term farm loan. See your local man or firm for details.

POSSESSION: Full possession March 1, 1968, or sooner, but on agreement with present farmers.

TERMS: 10% cash day of sale, and balance on delivery of deed within 30 days. Farm appraised at $128,855.09, and must not sell for less than 2/3 of this appraised value.

of an old transportation way—the canoe.

When the old Zimmerman farm was sold to the state to form the nucleus of a 5,000-acre state-owned recreation area the canoe was only something you read about.

But in a scenic area where steep hills hold in a network of rivers, visitors to the Mohican State Park and the Mohican State Forest soon began to investigate the waters below.

Flowing southward, the Clear Fork and the Black Fork join to become the Mohican River which changes its name several times before reaching the Ohio River at Marietta 200 river miles away. For the first 20 miles the fall per mile averages

Loudonville: Ohio Canoe Capital

LOUDONVILLE, Ohio (AP)—The great glacier eons ago which reversed the rivers here and a land sale in 1928 now backstop a revival in this area of an old transportation way—the canoe.

When the old Zimmerman farm was sold to the state to form the nucleus of a 5,000 acre state-owned recreation area the canoe was only something you read about.

But in a scenic area where steep hills hold in a network of rivers, visitors to the Mohican State Park and the Mohican State Forest soon began to investigate the waters below.

Flowing southward, the Clear Fork and the Black Fork join to become the Mohican River which changes its name several times before reaching the Ohio River at Marietta 200 river miles away. For the first 20 miles the fall per mile averages 7.9 feet—not exciting but interesting.

Three miles upstream from which the Mohican begins is the small town of Loudonville. Its mayor, Mel Shilling, says his town of 3,000 people is the canoe capital of Ohio—and he may be right.

About 250 canoes set out from Loudonville on busy weekends at the peak of the season last summer. Most of the canoes were rented for $5 for "trip No. 1" ($3 on weekdays).

But canoes are used year-around on Black Fork, Clear Fork and below. The water doesn't freeze. It is of course a bit cold after Nov. 1.

Vern Hopkins at Danner's Drugstore, who takes his family about anywhere on the river anytime, says his favorite time is Easter morning. The flow is at high tide then, too swift for beginners. He likes to go to the regular Easter sunrise service in Loudonville and then, afterwards, go out on the river.

Howard Nave, who owns a canoe livery, says he thinks the best time is the first two weeks after the first frost in October. The autumn color is then at its best—and a canoe can get right next to it.

From June to October the river depth does not vary more than six inches. This is an act of man—the Charles Mill Dam upstream on the Black Fork and the Pleasant Hill Dam above on the Clear Fork are regulated to keep the flow constant.

Since the state established a three-day hunting season in November the white deer around Loudonville have been scattered but now and then one or two can be seen at water's edge. Bald eagles still nest nearby at Mifflin Lake and are spotted occasionally along the streams.

Wood ducks are plentiful; large migrations of ducks in the hundreds are sometimes seen. There are no beavers or otters but muskrats, weasels, skunks, possum, raccoons, squirrels and foxes are common.

Paul Glasgow, manager of Mohican State Park says he has seen pileated woodpeckers which for many years were rare in these woods. The ruffed grouse is here.

Clear Fork has small mouth bass. Brown trout have been planted. The native forest is oak, but Scotch pine, red pine and locust on steep slopes grow here.

Right where Clear Fork is bridged by Ohio 3—on property owned by the park—23 new cottages and 154 new camp sites soon will be ready.

Loudonville has a modern sewage disposal unit which cost nearly $400,000 but Mayor Shilling does have a problem: Red "as catsup" (his wife's words) acid from a Mansfield industrial area kills fish in the Black Fork.

Shilling says if the pollution doesn't stop by spring he will instruct Frances Smith, his city solicitor, go to court and seek relief.

Loudonville, Shilling says, wants to remain the canoe capital of Ohio.

Miller Refuses Marshall Contract
HUNTINGTON, W.Va. (AP)—George B. "Bernie" Miller, newly appointed head football coach at Marshall University, refused to sign his contract Wednesday after accepting the $15,000 a year job only eight days before.

Marshall Athletic Director Eddie Barrett said he was "too shocked to know what to do."

Contacted at his home in Lafayette, Ind., Miller issued a brief statement but declined to give any reason for the decision.

Area Churches Plan Special Yule Services

"O Little Town of Bethlehem" and other songs of Christmas will be heard at special services in many city and county churches Christmas Eve and Christmas Day to officially launch the holiday season here.

Celebration of Holy Communion will highlight some of the special events along with musical programs and sermons. Pageants and plays also have been scheduled as part of the Yuletide observances.

Following is a list of some special observances planned by area churches.

St. Joseph's Catholic

During the Christmas Eve midnight service, the blessings of the Crib will be followed by a celebrated High Mass. Altar servers who will take part in the procession and ceremonies will be boys in the upper classes of the school. The choir will be composed of girls in the upper classes with organist, Miss Eleanor Snyder. The music will be directed by Sister Marsha. Christmas morning masses will be 6:45, 8, 9, and 10:15. The music at 10:15 will be presented by the children's choir. Confession will be heard 7:30 p. m. Friday, 9 to 11 a. m. 12 noon - 1:30 p. m. and 3-6 p. m. Saturday.

St. Philip's Episcopal

A Festival Service of Holy Communion will be celebrated 11:30 p. m. Christmas Eve. Pre-service music will be presented by the church organist. The senior choir will sing as the anthem "Break Forth O Beauteous Heavenly Light," from the Christmas Oratorio by Bach. The choir will also present special communion music. The Altar Guild will prepare the church for the Christmas services on Saturday afternoon. On Christmas Day a Festival Family Service of Holy Communion will be celebrated at 10 a. m. The girl's choir will sing at this service.

Trinity Lutheran

Christmas Eve, a candlelight service will begin 11 p. m. with the sermon topic "This Dark World's Light - A Down to Earth Religion." Acolyte will be Tim Neff and crucifer, Dean Martin. From 10:30 - 11 p. m. the following music will be presented: Christmas Carols, Clifford Kerns; two Christmas Chorales and Dooxology, David Leist and Clifford Kerns on trumpets; "Sheep May Safely Graze" by Bach with Eric Downing and Miss Donna Stephens on flutes; Mrs. T. A. Downing on violoncello; Miss Marion Brehmer on string bass and Miss Patricia Schleich at the organ.

Commercial Point Methodist Charge

Christmas Eve services will begin 8 p. m. in Commercial Point Church. Concord Church will present a Christmas pro-

Ohio Edison Expansion Set

AKRON, Ohio (AP)—A $375 million capital spending program over the next five years for the Ohio Edison Co. and its subsidiary, Pennsylvania Power Co., has been announced by the parent company. President D. Bruce Mansfield said Thursday about $22.8 million of the $74 million budget for 1968 will be spent for the installation of additional generating capacity at the W. H. Sammis power plant at Stratton, Ohio on the Ohio River.

First Evangelical United Brethren

Christmas Eve candlelight services will be conducted by the pastor and the Fidelis chorus. Theme of the service will be "What the Candles Say."

Service of Holy Communion will be conducted 7 p. m. on Christmas Eve.

First Methodist

A service of baptism will be held 7:30 p. m. Christmas Eve. A candlelight service of Christmas carols will be 9 p. m. in the sanctuary. Both MYF Fellowship groups will meet with the entire congregation for the service.

Emmanuel EUB

Christmas Eve, a candlelight service beginning 6:30 p. m. will be held. The title is "Festival of Carols" and will be sung by the senior and junior choirs.

Emmett Chapel

A candlelight service will begin 11 p. m. Christmas Eve. The sermon theme will be "The Message That Matters."

Laurelville Methodist

Laurelville, Hallsville and Haynes Churches will join at the Adelphi Church for 7:30 p. m. Christmas Eve services.

Jefferson Church of Christ

In Christian Union
A Christmas film entitled "Glory in the Highest," will be shown Christmas Eve. The film shows the story from the Annunciation to the visit of the Wise Men. The program beginning 7:30 p. m. will also feature special Christmas music preceding showing of the film.

GOP Eyes House Gains as 2-Edged Power Base

WASHINGTON (AP) — Republicans are showing more than usual interest in next November's election for the House of Representatives for two reasons.

First, control of the House may be within their grasp for the first time since the 1952 election. Second, the 1968 presidential election might wind up being settled by the House.

Republicans now hold 187 of 435 House seats and need 31 more for control. They have set their sights mainly on 34 marginal Democratic seats won by less than 55 per cent in 1966.

Even if they fail to win House control, however, Republicans could pick up enough seats to elect a Republican president if splinter party candidates siphon off enough votes to prevent either of the major nominees from winning a majority of electoral votes.

If no candidate gets a majority of electoral votes — in this case 270 of a total 538 — the election would be thrown into the House. This last happened in 1824 but appears a long-shot possibility again in 1968.

Former Alabama Gov. George C. Wallace, already preparing his presidential campaign, is considered likely to win some Southern states, possibly including Alabama, Mississippi, Louisiana and Georgia.

In addition, an antiwar, civil-rights candidate such as Dr. Martin Luther King might drain off normally Democratic votes in the big states, especially from Negroes.

Although President Johnson carried all but five states in 1964, Republicans have forged a comeback and now hold governorships in 26 of the 50 states with a total of 302 electoral votes. The 24 Democratic-held states include the four with considerable Wallace strength.

If the presidential election goes into the House, each state has one vote so that whichever party controls the state's delegation gets its votes. Evenly divided states, plus the District of Columbia which has no congressional delegation, would presumably be unable to vote.

Democrats now control 29 delegations, Republicans 18 and three—Illinois, Montana and Oregon—are evenly split.

Republicans would only need to pick up one seat in the three evenly split states and in four others—Kentucky, Nevada, Pennsylvania and Tennessee—to take control of seven more delegations and deadlock the two parties at 25-25 in the House.

In 11 other states, Republicans need one seat to deadlock the delegation and two to capture it—Alabama, Arkansas, Colorado, Maine, Maryland, Hawaii, Massachusetts, New Mexico, Oklahoma, Rhode Island and Virginia.

A gain of two seats in just one of these states when added to the one-seat gains in the other seven, would give the GOP control of 26 state delegations—enough to elect a president—with only nine more seats than they now hold.

Of these 18 states, Republicans have the added advantage of holding 12 governorships.

This is why House GOP Leader Gerald R. Ford told last week's Republican Governors Association meeting in Palm Beach, Fla., that "the odds on our picking up eight more state delegations are not as bad as they look."

And it is why next year's House election is likely to get more than the usual attention from strategists of both parties.

Fathers Can Have Fun Shopping for Youngsters

FROM ALL ANGLES — Little girl lies down to inspect a roly-poly chime ball containing a rocking horse and swan that roll around to chimes. The little boy is fascinated by what he sees in the picture story camera that is even more fun than Dad's.

Toy shopping fathers have discovered that early Christmas shoppers can have more fun than late ones in this era of electronically propelled and sophisticated toys and games.

After all, he must learn how to work the toys if he is going to explain them to his offspring. That's one reason digital computers and such are competing with electric trains as father-son toys.

A real snappy turtle has been trained to answer whistle calls and commands like "go" and "stop" as he scoots across the floor. Tommy Turtle is 16 inches long and works on two batteries.

Games provide adult intrigue too as they keep up with the times. Project Apollo is the basis for a new game, Count Down that uses NASA step-by-step procedures for building and launching rockets.

There are duplicating machines for children who'd like to print their own party invitations or make announcements of club and school events. The copying machine will make up to 30 duplicates of anything drawn or traced on its stencils. And there are new toy TV sets that let eager young enthusiasts whirl the dials without interference. One has 12 movie cartoon favorites.

There are musical toys — plush Santas, rockers, baby swings and all sorts of boxes. For swingsters, there is a new portable record player with a pop-up spindle that automatically adapts to 45 or 33 1/2 RPM records.

A modern doll carriage is newly styled to become a stroller and car bed. An easel has been designed to accommodate two young artists. And an imported donkey cart is just the thing for the under-4 set. It has a padded seat, heavy rubber wheels and sets behind a rubber donkey.

Among the toys that take a bit of parental decision making is a fire truck that operates hydraulically and will shoot water 20 feet when hooked up to the garden hose.

MOUSE HOUSE NEWS — Mice have taken to tree trunks for fun. This little tree house comes with twin mice but more can be added to ride the elevator, sleep in a drawer, ride a swing, sit on a terrace or steal cheese from a cabinet.

Lore and Legend Express Happy Mood of Yule Season

From home to home, from the purpose of holding the youngsters on his knee and listening to their requests for gifts. In ancient Germany, the Yule log was known as the "Christbrand." One belief held that if the charred log was placed in a corbin, it would act as a charm to ward off mice.

If the weather turned stormy, the Christbrand was quickly brought back to the fire. While it burned, superstition said, the house was safe from lightning. "Mumming" is a Yule custom that originated in early England. Mummers, masked and in costume, silently enacted ritual plays about the death of winter and the old year.

The custom still survives in some parts of the world, although the plays are no longer performed. Today mummers usually entertain with dancing and instrumental music. They are rewarded with treats.

Lore and Legend Express Happy Mood of Yule Season

From home to home, from country to country, Yule celebrations abound. The happy traditions of gift giving, home decorating, carol singing, card sending, candle lighting and tree trimming express the merriment of the season.

Popular folk customs of nation after nation have been absorbed into the international legend and lore of the Yuletide. Yet virtually every nation—and every home and family, too — has its special way of celebrating Christmas, and its special memories of Christmas past.

Straw is a traditional part of Christmas celebrations in Sweden — in probable remembrance of the first Christmas when there was straw in the manger.

While "carrying in the Christmas straw" is a tradition rather than a modern custom, Swedish people still make straw and wooden figures to hang on their Christmas trees.

In Hong Kong, Santa Claus goes by the name of "San Tan You Lin."

The Hong Kong department stores employ elderly men who are specially costumed for the season. Just like Santa Claus, San Tan You Lin is present for the purpose of holding the youngsters on his knee and listening to their requests for gifts.

In ancient Germany, the Yule log was known as the "Christbrand." One belief held that if the charred log was placed in a cornbin, it would act as a charm to ward off mice.

By JEAN SPRAIN WILSON
 AP Fashion Editor
 NEW YORK (AP) — Now that menswear is making almost as much fashion news as womenswear, the traditional ladies' luncheon may change its character.
 Men may be the stars of their fashion shows. After all, women are perhaps more enthusiastic as boywatchers than men are as girlwatchers. (Watching undered female models give over-fed ladies complexes.)

 Men's fashions may be the parade on the runway. After all women supposedly have a profound influence on the wardrobe choices of the males in their lives (and vice versa).
 Still in the mushrooming style market women need guidance in their sometime roles of menswear shoppers... especially during the holidays when they cannot seek advice of the recipients without spoiling the surprise of their gifts.

 Their dilemma — will the basically conservative male animal buy for really wear the new things. Chances are they will if the men in public eye do. That is why the men on stage, in the movies, on television, politics and society — the headline makers — are also the style pacesetters among men's fashion.

 To test the males at women's luncheon's theory, and more specifically, to provide style guidance from the headline makers, the Associated Press recently held a men's fashion show for women's editors attending the American Press Institute Seminar at Columbia University.

The headline makers were: Actor Gig Young, currently starring in "Girl in My Soup", Metropolitan Opera singer Tom Krause; CBS sports commentator Jack Shitaker, Alex Cord, co-starring with Kirk Douglas in "The Brotherhood," Forrest Tucker currently making the film, "The Night They Raided Minsky's," and Comedian Red Buttons, and another top funnyman Nippy Russell; Arthur Hill co-starring with Ingrid Bergman in "More Stately Mansions;" Bud Palmer, New York Mayor Lindsay's official greeter; and Earl Blackwell, a celebrity who runs the Celebrity Register, and recently the Venetian Mask Ball for flood victims in Italy.

Sending Greetings
 Symbol of Good Will

Perhaps even more than the giving of gifts, the sending of Christmas greetings symbolizes the seasonal spirit of good will.

The personal exchange of good wishes at holiday time is a custom that's older, probably, than Christmas itself. In ancient winter festivals the renewal of the earth at the coming of spring was linked with the renewal of friendships.

Though greetings and Christmas have long been associated, the printed greeting card is a relative newcomer to the Yule scene — introduced little more than a century ago. Nowadays, Christmas greeting cards go out by the billions, carrying their messages of "happy holiday" and "best wishes."

In the glad tradition of sending greetings, today's edition of this newspaper presents the special greetings of local merchants, as they express their good wishes and gratitude to customers and friends.

Age is the deciding factor in the opinion of Tucker. "If I put on a turtleneck this gobbler thing falls over," he said, tugging at the skin under his neck.

Other questions the team of celebrated experts thrashed out: Who are the style leaders today, American or European men?

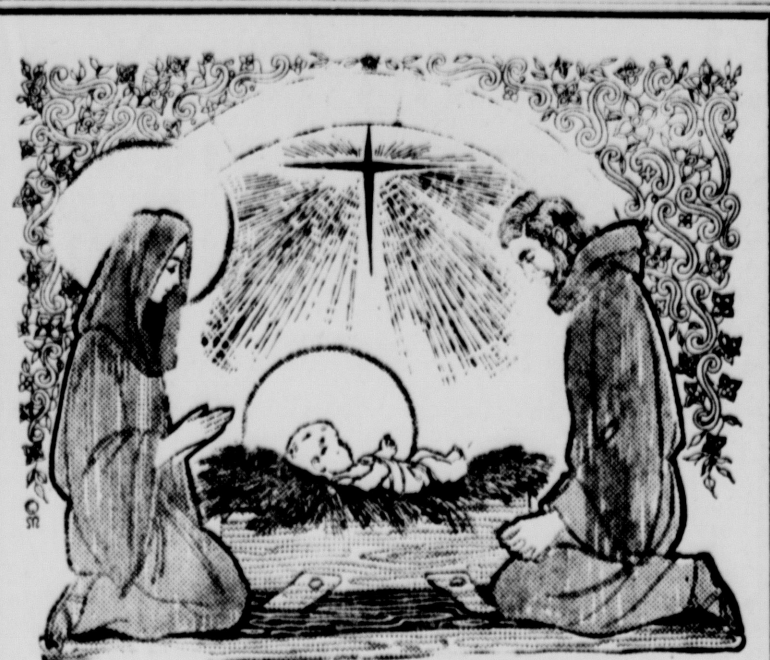

"It works both ways, definitely," said Krause who lives in Hamburg and likes the new colors of American shirts.

Is there a New York image in fashion or is American style nationally the same? Constant travelers Earl Blackwell and Bud Palmer agreed that though there may be differences from place to place, they could pack suitcases full of clothes that would see them through most situations in most regions of the country.

Then Palmer, New York's official party giver, had his say about turtle-necks.

"If a man came to one of our parties with a turtleneck for dinnerwear, we wouldn't let him in."

By JEAN SPRAIN WILSON
 AP Fashion Editor
 NEW YORK (AP) — Now that menswear is making almost as much fashion news as womenswear, the traditional ladies' luncheon may change its character.
 Men may be the stars of their fashion shows. After all, women are perhaps more enthusiastic as boywatchers than men are as girlwatchers. (Watching undered female models give over-fed ladies complexes.)

 Men's fashions may be the parade on the runway. After all women supposedly have a profound influence on the wardrobe choices of the males in their lives (and vice versa).
 Still in the mushrooming style market women need guidance in their sometime roles of menswear shoppers... especially during the holidays when they cannot seek advice of the recipients without spoiling the surprise of their gifts.

 Their dilemma — will the basically conservative male animal buy for really wear the new things. Chances are they will if the men in public eye do. That is why the men on stage, in the movies, on television, politics and society — the headline makers — are also the style pacesetters among men's fashion.

 To test the males at women's luncheon's theory, and more specifically, to provide style guidance from the headline makers, the Associated Press recently held a men's fashion show for women's editors attending the American Press Institute Seminar at Columbia University.

and checkered tie.
 2. The Shaped Look, a conservative single-breasted 3-button suit with slimming waistline.
 3. Colorful evening wear; illustrated by white dinner jacket over blue shirt, black tie. (The Institute, as O'Keefe explains it, thinks turtlenecks are out of place on the evening fashion scene.)
 4. Bulky sweater, plaid pants for at home, where the spokesmen for the menswear industry think a turtleneck is fine.

Sending Greetings
 Symbol of Good Will

Perhaps even more than the giving of gifts, the sending of Christmas greetings symbolizes the seasonal spirit of good will.

The personal exchange of good wishes at holiday time is a custom that's older, probably, than Christmas itself. In ancient winter festivals the renewal of the earth at the coming of spring was linked with the renewal of friendships.

Though greetings and Christmas have long been associated, the printed greeting card is a relative newcomer to the Yule scene — introduced little more than a century ago. Nowadays, Christmas greeting cards go out by the billions, carrying their messages of "happy holiday" and "best wishes."

In the glad tradition of sending greetings, today's edition of this newspaper presents the special greetings of local merchants, as they express their good wishes and gratitude to customers and friends.

The headline makers were: Actor Gig Young, currently starring in "Girl in My Soup"; Metropolitan Opera singer Tom Krause; CBS sports commentator Jack Shitaker, Alex Cord, co-starring with Kirk Douglas in "The Brotherhood," Forrest Tucker currently making the film, "The Night They Raided Minsky's," and Comedian Red Buttons, and another top funny man Nippy Russell; Arthur Hill co-starring with Ingrid Bergman in "More Stately Mansions"; Bud Palmer, New York Mayor Lindsay's official greeter; and Earl Blackwell, a celebrity who runs the Celebrity Register, and recently the Venetian Mask Ball for flood victims in Italy.

From the American Institute of Men's and Boyswear came male models dressed in six important style trends. As Ken O'Keefe, fashion director for the AIMB, explained it, the looks were:

1. The Clyde look or the '30s influence, in this instance a black and brown double-breasted sports suit with dark shirt sportsman, gave it a vote for comfort.

Turtleneck for sports or evening? Or at all?

HOURS DRAG AT CHRISTMAS — Hours weigh heavy on Christmas Eve for those who must work. Here servicemen at the radar stand-by shack at Lockbourne while away a long Christmas night at chess.

Men at Lockbourne Air Base On Duty Even at Christmas

By JOHN PURCELL
Herald Staff Writer

There is no place like home for the holidays, but unfortunately not everyone can be with loved ones on Christmas Eve.

Among those who must work on this special once-a-year night are men at Lockbourne Air Force Base.

The enemy never sleeps and neither does the U.S. military. To continue the job of protecting the country and of being on stand-by for military and civilian emergencies some men must sacrifice the warmth of a Christmas fire and brightly lighted Christmas trees so that others can enjoy them.

"The hours seem longer Christmas eve. But after you have worked that night a couple of times it becomes just like any other time. You report to work, do your job, relax a little afterwards, and then go home," said one serviceman.

WORK on Christmas Eve is boring routine. Most flights to and from Lockbourne are cancelled so that as many men as possible can spend Christmas at home.

Activity consists of waiting in case something happens. The men sit perhaps drinking coffee, playing cards or just reading; anything to while away the long hours.

But those who work Christmas can look forward to New Year's. Men who were assigned to duty Christmas Eve are relieved for New Year's Eve so that they can enjoy the holiday.

"I would just as soon have New Year's," said one man. "I am from Georgia and none of my family is anywhere around here. Even if I had it off all I could do would be go back to my room and think. Personally I prefer to work."

"I'll make up for it when some of us guys go out on New Year's."

When asked what he did the last time he worked Christmas Eve a 23-year old fellow from

Career Seekers Can Test Selves

WASHINGTON (AP) — A new self-testing system offers encouraging prospects for the high school student who can't decide what he wants to do after graduation.

The self tests, developed by Edward C. Wilkinson, associate director of the U. S. government-backed Upward Bound educational development plan at the University of Wisconsin, permit students to actually see themselves in jobs they may be considering.

Basically, the self tests let the students explore their own futures.

Wilkinson, with help from ALP Educational Publications of Milwaukee, has issued a series of informative books on a number of vocations and professions ranging from the insurance business to nursing.

Experts in each field covered by the books have provided essential information so that the high school student who is interested in a career in insurance, for example, can read in concise language exactly what is involved in working for an insurance company.

He sees what a claims adjuster is, what the requirements are for the job, what the outlook is for promotion and what the pay level is for this job in most insurance firms.

He can do the same for chief auditor or for vice president.

Next to the description of each key job in insurance is a list of questions which inquire into the student's scholastic ability, social mechanical and aesthetic outlooks, physical ability, personal traits, interests and needs. All that's needed to answer each question is a check in one of four circles lined up beside each query.

The student replies to the questions on a clear, plastic scale lined up next to the list of questions.

Teachers place the plastic answer sheet over a key list of answers provided with each job description. On the key, circles which should be filled in if the student has a clear aptitude for the particular job in which he is interested are recorded in black.

The teacher sees at a glance whether the student's answers correspond. If they do, then the student can be fairly confident he has some basic aptitude for the job.

"If this system is properly used," Wilkinson says, "the student can see that there are many more careers open to him than he may have expected."

"Essentially, the system is an exploration device, not a means of making a definite choice. It offers the student a chance to see himself in a cross section of businesses and industries."

Wilkinson has introduced the system in 500 high schools across the United States. There has not been time for a full evaluation of results, he says. But where counsellors have had time to study the results, the system has proved helpful, Wilkinson adds.

The system, called the Sectant Series for Exploring Your Future is designed primarily for use in high schools.

Wilkinson says there also is a possibility it may soon be introduced into junior high schools.

Finally, the program may be used for vocational retraining of adults who may feel they have been misplaced through the use of other guidance programs.

Carol Can Be Tongue-Twister

"On the first day of Christmas, my true love sent to me a partridge in a pear tree."

So begins "The Twelve Days of Christmas," a traditional and favorite song of the holiday season. The ballad tells the story of the gifts a lover sends to his lady on each of the 12 days from Christmas to Epiphany.

The first gift, a partridge in a pear tree, may have been inspired by an old drinking song, "A Pie sat on a Pear Tree," says the editors of The New Book of Knowledge.

As a ballad, "The Twelve Days of Christmas" is an example of the "number chain formula" in folk songs. As a carol, it is the type that marked the change from formal hymns in Latin to musical poems in the vernacular of the people.

The song can be sung in a variety of ways. In Great Britain and the United States, it often becomes a game song in which each person, following a leader in repetitions, must pay a forfeit if he misses a line. Sometimes the descriptions of the gifts turn into mouth-defying tongue twisters!

"Orbit" is the name of the spherical litter containers placed along Manitoba highways by the province's highway department.

Signs erected along the highway direct motorists to "put your trash into orbit" and indicate the distance to the nearest orbit in minutes and seconds, in the manner of a countdown.

In a report to KAB the Manitoba Highway Department said the "orbit" program has resulted in a "definite decrease in the amount of litter along the highways."

1967 Christmas Message Is a Wish for Peace

WOODLAND WONDER — Peaceful understanding inspired the original painting, "Woodland Wonder" by Sheilah Beckett. It is one of many Christmas "peace" cards from 1967 card creators.

The message is 1,967 years old but, if anything, it seems more meaningful than ever today, for "Peace On Earth" is what everyone wants in an era when hot and cold wars rage and the Holy Land, itself, is a scene of struggle. It is no wonder that "peace" is the source of inspiration for many of this year's outstanding Christmas greeting card designs.

The peace motif is evident in the distinguished portfolio of the American Artists Group. On a number of these cards the dove, a symbol of peace, conveys the message. This is especially effective on a card by Bernard Kaplan, a talented poster designer, who proclaims the happy rewards of a world that's war-free with flowers that bloom in salute to a dove flying the heavenly message of "peace" to earth.

The allegory of peaceful lion and lamb is interpreted in a number of ways — with the bold modern stroke of Billy Hyde, the humorous touch of Mircea Vasiliu, in a colorful jungle of imaginative flowers by Magda Farkas and in a scene called "Woodland Wonder" by Sheilah Beckett whose innocent lamb is a small child.

On a card by Thomas F. Naegele, festively beribboned instruments of many lands comprise a visual plea for international harmony. His wife, Rosemary Cushla Naegele, depicts peace in a spirit of brotherhood on a card showing Sweden's traditional St. Lucy surrounded by a circle of international friends.

Symbols of peace—Bethlehem, the United Nations, pastoral scenes — all appear on Christmas cards. Some of them signify the obvious wish of the artist for peace. Others symbolize what peace means to an individual — a tranquil countryside, a happy family celebration, children at play.

The cards for Christmas 1967 agree that everyone's wish is Peace. It's the ways and means of achieving it that will account for differences of opinion when Christmas 1967 becomes Christmas Past.

Joyous Season Celebrated in Many Different Ways

By BETTY DAWLEY
Herald Staff Writer

The manner in which the Christmas season is celebrated, is not a universal one.

Within the boundaries of the United States preparations for the holiday season commence with the simulated arrival of Santa Claus in a parade sponsored by local department stores or civic organizations, usually staged the end of November. A variety of activities fill the calendar preceding the night before Christmas, the arrival of Santa Claus and the many joys of the Christmas Day.

To learn of the customs and traditions of the Christmas season in other countries of the world, contact was made with some Circleville area residents who are natives of foreign countries.

These people related the traditions of their countries for this article: Mrs. Julio Sanguly, of Cuba; Mrs. Bernard Gallagher from Ireland; Mrs. Lewis Cook, Spain and Mrs. Robert Hutzelman who lived for three years in Luxembourg.

CUBA'S NOCHE BUENA

THE EVE of Christmas Day in Cuba is known as Noche Buena, the good night, when families assemble for a night together of feasting and religious ceremonies. A whole roast pig is traditionally served on this night. At midnight all attend Mass.

A festive air invades all persons with the advent of Christmas Day. This occasion marks the beginning of days and night of celebrations which continue through the eve of the 6th of January, the arrival of the three wise men and exchange of gifts held the following day.

Streets, homes and clubs throughout the country are alive with celebrants during this period of almost two weeks. Stores are open until 11 and 12 each night, shoppers are offered merchandise of all descriptions from stalls set up on the streets in a continuous bazaar. There is dancing in the streets. Shops, homes and streets are dressed in holiday attire.

At one time, in the homes, children hung their stockings on their beds the eve of Jan. 6. A manger, not a tree, was the symbolic decoration. The three wise men, Melchior, Caspar and Balthasar, atop their camels, arrived bearing gifts to fill the hanging stockings. Water was placed in containers outside the homes, by the anxious children, to quench the thirst of the trip-weary camels.

The constant flow of visitors between Cuba and the United States has brought about some major changes in the Cuban celebration of the Christmas season.

A man named Santa Claus made his appearance and became the giver of gifts to all the good little boys and girls. Decorated Christmas trees were displayed in the homes and stores.

Natives of Cuba have not relinquished their Noche Buena, and the eve of the coming of the wise men is still observed, but stockings are now hung on Christmas Eve and eager children of Cuba fall asleep while visions of sugar plums dance through their heads as they wait the arrival of Old St. Nick.

IRELAND'S WHITE CHRISTMAS

BY THE end of November, Ireland is covered with snow that lasts through the winter months. Consequently, the people of Ireland do not have to sing for a white Christmas. It is ever there. Darkness falls around 4:30 p.m. This land is one of long winter evenings.

Christmas in Ireland is not commercial, but rather a most spiritual season. Caroling is much a part of the season. Students from all schools and altar boys from the cathedral make up the chorus that wend their way from house-to-house proclaiming the joyous season in song. The attire of the carolers is traditional. White fur hats, fur boots and muffs compliment the girls' dress. Boys add red fur hats, fur boots and fur gloves to their outfits for a colorful contrast.

Inside, the homes are dressed in green holly and red berries. Grown in abundance in this country, it is used exclusively in the decorations. A Christmas tree — always green — can be seen, ornaments hand-made by the children.

Christmas Eve is the time when families interchange gifts. For when Christmas Day arrives, a family never leaves its home. The day is spent in quiet solitude and sharing with the family in residence. Streets are deserted. A serene — always white — day of celebration. Turkey is served in every home, the only time of the year it is in evidence. Plum puddings, prepared in November and stored in crocks, provide the desert of the traditional meal.

St. Stephen's Day, the day after Christmas, people emerge from their homes for a day of colorful, exciting and active participation in fox hunting. Each family sends one delegate to the pre-arranged general meeting place for the ceremonial St. Stephen's Day Hunt. With color and pomp, the riders assemble at 1 p.m. for the cross country ride.

This festive day is culminated with the assemblage of the families at the party and Huntman Dance held at the many Hunt Clubs throughout Ireland.

Thus, the day following Christmas Day, is the one day of the holy season when gayety prevails for Ireland's observance of this sacred period is solemn, devout and spiritually inspired.

SPAIN'S

FESTIVITIES BEGIN DEC. 22
FESTIVITIES of the holiday season in Spain commence on Dec. 22, the day of the Loteria (lottery). Everyone can afford a chance at El Gordo — the fat one or fat purse. Excitement is everywhere as ticket holders await the announcement of the winning numbers as they are aired from the local radio station.

Dec. 23, is set aside for the family to make their customary shopping tour of the markets to purchase materials to be used to construct the home decoration of a nativity set. A scene of the town of Bethlehem is traditionally symbolic in every home. This is a day of great delight, particularly for the small children who help make the significant decisions of what articles to buy.

The following day, Dec. 24, decorated conveyances of local merchants fill the streets making deliveries of the specialties of area shops. Kitchens are filled with the staples for the up-coming traditional dinner; favorite treats of the season and varieties of wine.

Christmas Eve is a most festive evening. It is a time for the immediate family to share in the "most beautiful night of the year". Donned in formal dress, the family gathers for the singing of carols, exchanging personal phone greetings to relatives and dining at the sumptuous meal served at 11 p. m.

Few people answer the chiming call to midnight Mass. Most celebrants remain in their homes, choosing to attend a later Mass on Christmas Day.

The feasting continues when on Dec. 25, a large meal is again prepared and served with lamb, the traditional meat served on Christmas Day, a quiet family day.

AT A designated time during this period of merrymaking, parades herald the arrival of the Magi, bearers of gifts. Children of Spain thoughtfully compose their letters of what they wish for gifts and drop them in special post boxes set aside for the mail to the three wise men.

On the eve of Jan. 6, the children place a pair of freshly polished shoes in the window sill. The three Magi, bearing gifts, arrive that night to fill the shoes of good little boys and girls. A child who has been naughty may get a lump of black coal.

The camels that carry the three wise men are nourished with hard bread and water that the children place aside for them . . . before they excitedly hurry to their beds and sleep . . . to awaken to a day of joy . . . bringing to an end the celebrative season of the days of Christmas in Spain — a season distinctive in family unity — a season of traditional customs altered but slightly over the centuries.

LUXEMBOURG'S RELIGIOUS FESTIVAL

Christmas Day in Luxembourg is celebrated very simply as a religious festival. The only evidence of a gift exchange is the presentation of a small token among adult relatives or visitors in a home. Presents, primarily for children, are given on Dec. 6 — St. Nicholas Day.

St. Nicholas is a patron saint. Prior to Dec. 6 an image of this popular saint appears commercially in shop windows, richly dressed in a red robe and headgear of the Episcopal Church.

He wears a long, white beard and supports a crozier. St. Nicholas is regarded as the protector of children and on the eve of Dec. 5, he visits all his children from the richest palace to the lowliest cottage. His robe enables him "to fly from place to place instantly."

Children place a pair of brightly polished shoes at the door, as receptacles for the gifts from St. Nicholas. As in America, only good little boys and girls get presents. A bad child receives a lump of coal.

Commercial association of Christmas no longer exists on Dec. 25, the birthday of Christ. Cut green trees are used in the homes, decorated with live candles. Live sparklers hang from the branches. Mistletoe, readily available, is ornamentation in the homes and Advent wreaths are much in evidence. On the outside, the only visible testimony to the season is in the city streets where gay, wintry sports scenes deck the area.

CHRISTMAS Eve hosts the family dinner and attendance at Mass. Christmas day is observed as a family and religious day. A typical dinner menu for the formal dining would include oysters, roast goose, plum pudding with flame or ice cream which is very dear, expensive and a rare treat for the people of Luxembourg.

In a somber, dignified, spiritual way, the holiday of Christmas is observed in the small duchy of Luxembourg.

Ringing of Bells Is Merry Sound

Among the merry sights and sounds of Christmas, none is merrier than the ringing of bells.

Since earliest times, the pealing of bells has announced important events, both happy and sad. The first use of bells to call Christians to worship took place, it's believed, at Christmas in Italy, about 400 A.D.

Tradition once held that Christ was born exactly at midnight. In medieval Britain, church bells tolled sadly during the hour before midnight on Christmas Eve. On the stroke of 12, a joyous pealing announced the Miracle of Christmas.

Joyous Season Celebrated in Many Different Ways

By BETTY DAWLEY
Herald Staff Writer

The manner in which the Christmas season is celebrated, is not a universal one.

Within the boundaries of the United States preparations for the holiday season commence with the simulated arrival of Santa Claus in a parade sponsored by local department stores or civic organizations, usually staged the end of November. A variety of activities fill the calendar preceding the night before Christmas, the arrival of Santa Claus and the many joys of the Christmas Day.

To learn of the customs and traditions of the Christmas season in other countries of the world, contact was made with some Circleville area residents who are natives of foreign countries.

These people related the traditions of their countries for this article: Mrs. Julio Sanguily, of Cuba; Mrs. Bernard Gallagher from Ireland; Mrs. Lewis Cook, Spain and Mrs. Robert Hutzelman who lived for three years in Luxembourg.

CUBA'S NOCHE BUENA

THE EVE of Christmas Day in Cuba is known as Noche Buena, the good night, when families assemble for a night together of feasting and religious ceremonies. A whole roast pig is traditionally served on this night. At midnight all attend Mass.

A festive air invades all persons with the advent of Christmas Day. This occasion marks the beginning of days and night of celebrations which continue through the eve of the 6th of January, the arrival of the three wise men and exchange of gifts held the following day.

Streets, homes and clubs throughout the country are alive with celebrants during this period of almost two weeks. Stores are open until 11 and 12 each night, shoppers are offered merchandise of all descriptions from stalls set up on the streets in a continuous bazaar. There is dancing in the streets. Shops, homes and streets are dressed in holiday attire.

At one time, in the homes, children hung their stockings on their beds the eve of Jan. 6. A manger, not a tree, was the symbolic decoration. Ghost of Christmas Past Still Haunts Roundtown?

By JOHN PURCELL
Herald Staff Writer

Does a ghost still appear at the corner of Court and Main Sts. on Christmas Eve?

Tales of ghosts appearing at Christmas have been a part of the holiday tradition for centuries.

The ghost of Anne Boleyn is believed to still haunt the Tower of London, an affectionate fellow named Charles roams the National Cathedral in Washington and Charles Dickens used the appearance of ghosts in his story "A Christmas Carol."

An almost forgotten legend, discovered accidentally in an old copy of the newspaper, tells of the strange appearance of a ghost every Christmas near where the original courthouse stood in Circleville.

Not even the oldest residents of the community, today can clearly recall the tales of a ghost.

But apparently the appearance of the apparition was very real to the early settlers who built their homes within the walls of the religiously oriented mounds.

A reporter writing in an 1840 edition of the local newspaper recalled hearing the legend several times as a child.

However the tales enchanting Christmas ghost seemed to have died with the disappearance of the original courthouse, for there are no records or remembrances of his appearance since then.

Several theories have been advanced on the origin of this local spirit. Some believe that it is merely a perversion of an earlier Indian legend concerning the "alter" area at the center of the mound-works where the courthouse was later built.

Others believe the tales may have been related to Christmas legends brought to this country by early settlers. Although the legend of the ghost remained remembrance of what it was, perished as the American legend of Santa Claus became more implanted as the spirit of Christmas.

Perhaps he still appears, but who is going to stand at Court and Main Sts. at midnight Christmas Eve to find out?

Yule Tree Ornaments Polish Made

WARSAW (AP) — Millions of Polish bombs have landed in the United States.

But have no fear. They are small bombs.

In Polish they are called "bombki," the affectionate term Poles give Christmas tree ornaments.

About 100 million are produced each year in Poland. Fifty per cent are exported and 75 per cent of these go to America.

One of the leading ornament makers is the Galex factory in Warsaw, which produces about seven million a year. They come in some 4,000 shapes, sizes and colors. There are some shaped as sailors, elephants, teapots, lanterns, grapes and bells.

"They are all hand-blown and hand painted," general director Marian Lechowicz told a recent visitor. "And that is the strength of our operation here. Unlike other manufacturers, we are hardly interested in mechanization."

The Galex plant has 300 workers, 75 per cent of them women. There are only a few men among the glass blowers, none among the blub dippers, painters, finishers and packers.

"The men work mostly in transport and maintenance here," Lechowicz said. "The women do the lion's share of production."

A good blower can puff out up to 1,000 ornaments a day. A team of four women painters can finish 1,200 a day.

The factory produces year round. According to Lechowicz, the workers earn somewhat over the average Polish monthly wage of 2,100 zlotys (about $87 at the official exchange rate of 24 zlotys to a dollar). Salary is based on piecework and some of the more productive workers earn up to 3,500 zlotys ($146).

At year's end, Lechowicz said, profits are distributed among the workers after taxes, social funds and investments are taken out.

"This way a worker gets from one to three months' extra salary," he said.

The finished ornaments are hauled to a Polish export organization which then freights the merchandise on to foreign buyers. The patterns are determined by the buyers.

Breakage is a problem in the ornament business.

"About 10 per cent break somewhere along the line," Lechowicz said. "It just doesn't pay to bring them back and remelt the glass. So the broken ones are tossed out and the loss is covered by insurance."

Holiday Fun Is Coming -- Is Your Home Prepared?

Deck the halls and whip up the wassail, the holidays are happening!

But whether they are happening in your home or to your home depends upon what precautions you take as you plan the merriment.

To protect your home from stained carpets, marred tabletops and other dismal sights you might have to behold in early January, here are several good ideas:

Brighten your entry with a gay-colored rug remnant as a "boot park" or shoe wipe. These are sold in carpet departments at very low cost. You can even fringe a Christmas — color golden fringe around the edge to catch the eyes of your guests... and a lot of track-in dirt that will never get past your entry.

If you are hosting a cocktail party, group the gooey-type hors d'oeuvres on a table in one room, preferably a side-area with a washable throw rug, or a sun porch with an easy-to-clean floor.

The secret of keeping the rest of the carpeting from harm is this: do not provide little plates for guests to load up and carry into other areas.

The eating enthusiasts will stay within arm's reach of this oasis and drop their spills and crumbs where they are easily cleaned up. The light nibblers will drift to the carpeted areas where you have bowls of such harmless goodies as popcorn, candies and other dry snacks.

Give your furniture and tabletops all the protection you can. Upholstered furniture can be given a do-it-yourself spray treatment of stain repellent, such as Scotchgard Fabric Protector which prevents both oily and watery spills from staining. The spills will simply bead up on the surface of the fabric where they can be easily blotted up without a trace of stain (or embarrassment).

This same protection, incidentally, is ideal for your lovely new cocktail dress before you risk a spill or splatter. This amazing chemical treatment will protect the finest fabric from not only shrimp cocktail or cranberry juice stains, but even from the frothiest "Tom and Jerry."

Double Increase

NEW DELHI (AP) — New Delhi taxi drivers apparently feel they can have their cake and eat it too.

Police warned unsuspecting persons that the cabbies, recently granted a fare increase, have now had their meters adjusted. But they are getting still higher fares by showing passengers charts which had been intended for the interim period and which authorize drivers to charge specified higher amounts than shown on the meters.

The night of the party, put plenty of ash trays and glass coasters around to save tabletops. Many a permanent ring comes from a glass put down by a guest who is too engrossed in conversation to ask the host for a coaster.

Chose ash trays that are large enough and deep enough to hold the "forgotten cigarette" if it is left to burn to the end.

Some ash trays, as well as other Christmas decorations, can themselves be scratchy culprits on your highly finished furniture.

For the cut-glass punch bowl, the centerpiece with the unfinished wood bottom, the pottery underdish for your poinsettia plant, or the bottom-hinged creche, you can now get ready-made stick-on protectors. Protector Pads are small, hard-rubber squares available in several sizes and colors.

Beware the sappy evergreen. Be sure your Christmas tree is placed on an old rug or sheet, or your carpet is protected with a good-sized tree skirt. Those boughs on the mantle (especially white pine) can leave a lot of sticky residue to clean up too. A smart and practically invisible covering for the mantle is a length of self-sticking plastic wrap.

Candles cause their share of damage with hot, dripping candlewax. Sometimes the wax itself does less damage than the homemaker's attempt to scrape it off later. The best approach is to prevent it with wax-catchers such as large candle holders, metallic paper, rounds of bright felt or gold-sprayed paper plates.

Christmas festivities need not be home-wreckers. A few precautions taken, a small investment in some of the many new protective products for the home, and your house should be as lovely as ever when you blow out the last candle.

Peace and Joy

We echo the joyous voices of the carolers in bringing you Season's Greetings for this time of peace and harmony.

Yule Log Is Tradition

From a miraculous Star to a tiny candle, gleaming lights have cast a glow over holiday festivities for centuries.

Pagan sun-worshippers lit candles and kindled fires at winter festivals to help the returning sun gain strength.

Traditional for both light and warmth is the blazing Yule log. Like all "Christmas lights," it has both a religious and a festive significance in holiday lore.

Because legend says that the Christ Child was washed and dressed beside an ash wood fire, the people of early England always had Yule logs of ash wood. Ash had a practical aspect, too, because it was the only green wood which would burn.

The Yule log of England and continental Europe was often believed to have mystical powers to protect the home. To give this protection, the Yule log had to be kept burning all through the 12 days of Christmas.

Later, the "blazing Yule" was primarily associated with the feasting and festivity of the winter holidays.

Salary is based on piecework and some of the more productive workers earn up to 3,500 zlotys ($146).

At year's end, Lechowicz said, profits are distributed among the workers after taxes, social funds and investments are taken out.

"This way a worker gets from one to three months' extra salary," he said.

The finished ornaments are hauled to a Polish export organization which then freights the merchandise on to foreign buyers. The patterns are determined by the buyers.

Breakage is a problem in the ornament business.

"About 10 per cent break somewhere along the line," Lechowicz said. "It just doesn't pay to bring them back and remelt the glass. So the broken ones are tossed out and the loss is covered by insurance."

Holiday Fun Is Coming -- Is Your Home Prepared?

Deck the halls and whip up the wassail, the holidays are happening!

But whether they are happening in your home or to your home depends upon what precautions you take as you plan the merriment.

To protect your home from stained carpets, marred tabletops and other dismal sights you might have to behold in early January, here are several good ideas:

Brighten your entry with a gay-colored rug remnant as a "boot park" or shoe wipe. These are sold in carpet departments at very low cost. You can even tape a Christmas — color golden fringe around the edge to catch the eyes of your guests. . . and a lot of track-in dirt that will never get past your entry.

If you are hosting a cocktail party, group the gooey-type hors d'oeuvres on a table in one room, preferably a side-area with a washable throw rug, or a sun porch with an easy-to-clean floor.

The secret of keeping the rest of the carpeting from harm is this: do not provide little plates for guests to load up and carry into other areas.

The eating enthusiasts will stay within arm's reach of this oasis and drop their spills and crumbs where they are easily cleaned up. The light nibblers will drift to the carpeted areas where you have bowls of such harmless goodies as popcorn, candies and other dry snacks.

Give your furniture and tabletops all the protection you can. Upholstered furniture can be given a do-it-yourself spray treatment of stain repellent, such as Scotchgard Fabric Protector which prevents both oily and watery spills from staining. The spills will simply bead up on the surface of the fabric where they can be easily blotted up without a trace of stain (or embarrassment).

This same protection, incidentally, is ideal for your lovely new cocktail dress before you risk a spill or splatter. This amazing chemical treatment will protect the finest fabric from not only shrimp cocktail or cranberry juice stains, but even from the frothiest "Tom and Jerry."

Double Increase

NEW DELHI (AP) — New Delhi taxi drivers apparently feel they can have their cake and eat it too.

Police warned unsuspecting persons that the cabbies, recently granted a fare increase, have now had their meters adjusted. But they are getting still higher fares by showing passengers charts which had been intended for the interim period and which authorize drivers to charge specified higher amounts than shown on the meters.

The night of the party, put plenty of ash trays and glass coasters around to save tabletops. Many a permanent ring comes from a glass put down by a guest who is too engrossed in conversation to ask the host for a coaster.

Chose ash trays that are large enough and deep enough to hold the "forgotten cigarette" if it is left to burn to the end.

Some ash trays, as well as other Christmas decorations, can themselves be scratchy culprits on your highly finished furniture.

For the cut-glass punch bowl, the centerpiece with the unfinished wood bottom, the pottery underdish for your poinsettia plant, or the bottom-hinged creche, you can now get ready-made stick-on protectors. Protector Pads are small, hard-rubber squares available in several sizes and colors.

Beware the sappy evergreen. Be sure your Christmas tree is placed on an old rug or sheet, or your carpet is protected with a good-sized tree skirt. Those boughs on the mantle (especially white pine) can leave a lot of sticky residue to clean up too. A smart and practically invisible covering for the mantle is a length of self-sticking plastic wrap.

Candles cause their share of damage with hot, dripping candlewax. Sometimes the wax itself does less damage than the homemaker's attempt to scrape it off later. The best approach is to prevent it with wax-catchers such as large candle holders, metallic paper, rounds of bright felt or gold-sprayed paper plates.

Christmas festivities need not be home-wreckers. A few precautions taken, a small investment in some of the many new protective products for the home, and your house should be as lovely as ever when you blow out the last candle.

Yule Log Is Tradition

From a miraculous Star to a tiny candle, gleaming lights have cast a glow over holiday festivities for centuries.

Pagan sun-worshippers lit candles and kindled fires at winter festivals to help the returning sun gain strength.

Traditional for both light and warmth is the blazing Yule log. Like all "Christmas lights," it has both a religious and a festive significance in holiday lore.

Because legend says that the Christ Child was washed and dressed beside an ash wood fire, the people of early England always had Yule logs of ash wood. Ash had a practical aspect, too, because it was the only green wood which would burn.

The Yule log of England and continental Europe was often believed to have mystical powers to protect the home. To give this protection, the Yule log had to be kept burning all through the 12 days of Christmas.

Later, the "blazing Yule" was primarily associated with the feasting and festivity of the winter holidays.

VOICES FROM HOME — Mrs. James B. Christman and children are pictured at the local Red Cross Chapter Headquarters where they took part in taping a message to Sgt. 'Voice from Home' To Be Cherished Gift for Soldier

Staff Sgt. James B. Christman will have the joy of hearing the voices of his wife and family at Christmas time.

Sgt. Christman is stationed in Vietnam. His family resides at 330 E. Union St., Circleville. Through the "Voices from Home" program set up by the Pickaway County Chapter of the American Red Cross, a tape recording of his family's voices will be heard by Sgt. Christman on Christmas day.

The five-minute tape did not take long to fill in the case of the Christman family which numbers nine members. But each had a turn to send their personal greeting to the father and husband, a rare and touching gift to receive on this holy day.

This is but one of the ways Red Cross takes an active part as coordinator of community service.

The irreplaceable services of volunteers and the generous donations of county residents make a merrier Christmas for servicemen, veterans and their families.

Annually, the Pickaway County Chapter of Red Cross assembles and fills ditty bags for servicemen overseas. Through the capable hand of volunteer workers, these bags are made. Through the many donations of monies and items from area residents these bags are filled. Again this year, the bags arrived on time to a Red Cross field director where they will be distributed to 150 overseas servicemen.

A letter was received recently at the local chapter office which is repeated here in part so that those who gave of their time and materials will know that those efforts are acknowledged and appreciated.

"As of this date (Dec. 8) we have received 150 Ditty bags from your chapter. For your size chapter we think this is quite a large total. They all came in good condition and certainly on time. We are in the process now of allocating them to our units for distribution to our men on Christmas Day.

"Please be assured that this is a worthwhile project and very much appreciated by the military. Considerable interest has been generated on pick-up from our office and with anticipated plans for distribution. Even the Commanding general is in the act.

We are all proud of your fine chapter for all the efforts and most thankful for the generosity of the willing donors." The communication was signed by an overseas American Red Cross Field Director whose office is the 1st Calvary Div. Airmobile, APO San Francisco.

The fine spirit of giving from people throughout our county will make a merrier Christmas for many service men stationed throughout the world.

Five Minutes of Silence, Tradition in Porter Home

An occasional giggle from the small children who cannot suppress their exuberance and anticipation are the only sounds heard for five minutes after the arrival of Santa Claus in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Paul R. (Bob) Porter, 615 Ridgewood Drive.

Mrs. Porter says that this tradition began the first Christmas after she and Bob were married. The five minutes spent in enjoying the decorated tree and gifts, and preparing the family for receiving their gifts and enjoying watching the gifts being opened they have given to other family members.

Christmas preparations begin well in advance of the Advent season in the Porter home. Many evenings are spent addressing Christmas cards and adding notes to friends and relatives out of the city.

Mr. Porter and his sons always choose the Christmas tree and do the outside decorating. Mrs. Porter and the girls take care of the interior decorating tasks.

AS EACH child was born a new Christmas stocking was purchased. Each child still uses the same stocking for Santa to fill.

Mrs. Porter's gift to her husband this Christmas is one he will treasure for his entire life.

The gift is a large, hand painted, group portrait of the six Porter children. A space on the livingroom wall has already been chosen. The gift was given before Christmas because of moving furniture to advantageous position.

The children are: Cindy, who is 18 and attends the University of Dayton where she is majoring in education; Sandy is 17 and a senior at Circleville High School; Andee, 13, attends the Junior High School; Francene who is 10 is a student at Brooks-Yates School. Paul is 9, and is receiving his elementary education in St. Joseph's School. Tom has recently reached the interesting age of three.

With five children in different schools, the Porters are busy keeping pace with the activities of each child.

The three teenage daughters make their own Christmas dresses under the supervision of their mother, who makes her own dress well in advance of her daughters' sewing projects.

This year Cindy, Sandy and Andee are holding Open House for their friends, Saturday evening, Dec. 23.

MANY interesting and sometimes frustrating things happen in the Porter household. Last year Francene and Paul found two boxes of jigsaw puzzles in a closet. By the time their mother discovered what was happening there were two, 500 piece puzzles well mixed on the floor. Since the backs of the puzzles were of the same color all their mother could do was to put 500 pieces in each box and explain to the recipients what had happened. She said that the puzzle assemblers exchanged pieces for weeks before they were completed, but stated they never had enjoyed putting a puzzle together so much before, as it was quite a challenge.

The Porter home is a large, one-story frame house that is located on a corner lot with a large yard where the children can play and all members of the family entertain their friends in the summer. The house with plenty of room, is used to its fullest extent. The large family room, living room and the kitchen are always open to the children for whatever activities they are involved with. There is ample space where homework can be done, without interruption.

Marje Porter always calls her mother, who lives in Omaha, Neb., on Christmas day and talks to her brothers and sisters too. Last year when she called she asked her mother how she liked her new color television set which all her children had purchased, only to learn that her mother had not yet received the gift.

Each Christmas Eve the guests for dinner and the evening's activities are Bob's mother, Mrs. Bernard Porter; his aunt, Mrs. Clarence Francis; and his sister and her husband, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Weber (Jean) and three children of Columbus.

After dinner the teen-age children take the younger members of the family on a tour to see the decorated homes. When they return they find that Santa Claus has visited their home. Then follows the five minutes of silence when each is left alone with their thoughts before opening the gifts.

At midnight all activities are halted. The crib, which is kept from one year to another, is uncovered. Carols are sung and the Christmas Story, from the book of Luke, is told by one of the teenagers.

This young family is building its traditions each year in keeping with the growth of the children. Many of the ornament and other decorations that Bob and Marje used on their first Christmas together are still being used. Time will change some traditions, but the Porters will still observe Christmas Eve with the uncovering of the crib, singing carols and repeating the Christmas Story.

It's Always the Men Who Like Model Trains

By WILLIAM C. HARRISON
Associated Press Writer

OAKLAND, Calif. (AP)—Engineers are planning to relocate an entire railroad — station house, tracks and trestles — in the hills east of Oakland.

The engineers are operators of foot-high miniature locomotives. The Redwood Railroad is a scaled-down parallel loops.

One set of tracks is elevated so the engineer can dangle his legs comfortably from aboard a tender or flatcar as he stokes the engine and works the throttle. Another loop of wider, heavier tracks at ground level accommodates larger models.

The engineers are serious hobbyists who build meticulously accurate models of famous old steam engines.

A typical locomotive may be about one foot high, five feet long and weigh some 200 pounds. It can cost up to $20,000 or more.

The railroad and the engineers belong to the Golden Gate Live Steamers Inc. Bufts formed the club in 1939. Driving of solid gold spikes marked completion of one track in 1950 and the other in 1963. The club has some 190 members today.

The Redwood has outgrown its present regional park location. Club members have accepted an invitation to move to Tilden Park, 10 miles to the north, but they've worked out no timetable yet.

Accidents are rare and usually minor on the Redwood line.

If a man uses judgment, takes care of his equipment and pays attention to what he's doing, he won't have any problems," says Harry Dixon of Castro Valley, charter member of the club.

and takes it to the Redwood tracks for Sunday runs.

"If I'm having someone else drive my engine, I go along behind on a flatcar, and I've got a hand brake so I can control the operation of the train," Dixon says. "If I see he's going to get into trouble, I can always brake him down. That's my responsibility; it's my train and I have to watch out for it."

Most of the engines use clean-burning Welsh steam coal or Colorado anthracite, but a few burn oil. Once a woman visitor, unfamiliar with the habits of coal-burning locomotives, stood too close to the track — but not for long.

Hot cinders, she said in a claim against the club, burned holes in her blouse. The club bought her another.

The Redwood's station house features a pot-bellied stove and an operating telegraph. Engineers and firemen usually wear striped overalls and trainman caps. Some carry big railroad watches.

Dixon, a retired toolmaker, is secretary of the worldwide Brotherhood of Live Steamers. Joining the brotherhood "involves no money," Dixon says. His job is unpaid but he loves it, corresponding with railroad fans all over the world. He estimates that the brotherhood has well over 1,000 members in the United States alone.

Railroad lanterns of gleaming brass, railroad calendars and scores of railroad books almost fill a study room he shares

Keeping Golf a Game of Skill

By ROY MALONE
Associated Press Writer
ST. LOUIS (AP)—"We're trying to keep golf a game of great skill," says Hord W. Hardin, "and the way you do that is through the rules of play."

Hardin is the only nominee for the presidency in the United States Golf Association elections Jan. 27. He believes the biggest task for the organization is to get everybody to follow the same rules.

One would think that drawing up rules for golf would be an easy matter for the game's governing body, the USGA. But, in recent years, some of the professional players have said there should be different rules for amateurs and professionals.

The USGA feels, Hardin points out, that in golf, the only game where professionals and amateurs compete against each other, the same rules should apply for both.

Hardin, 55-year-old banker-attorney in St. Louis, has served in various capacities with the USGA since 1951.

"No matter how intelligent the touring player is, it may be expecting too much of him to be completely objective where the rules are concerned," says Hardin.

What's bothering the professional? Mainly, the new rules on the green, including continuous putting and "one-clean" of the ball.

Studies by the USGA show that time lost on the green is one reason why the game has slowed down. The new rules says each player should continue putting until his ball is in the cup in stroke play. But some of the pro's favor alternating putts.

Along with this is the objection that certain conditions require the ball to be cleaned more often.

Hardin, who is in charge of corporate trust and probate matters for St. Louis Union Trust Co., says he feels the ball-cleaning argument is one that may be resolved.

"I can remember just 10 years ago when a player had to putt even with a big glob of mud on the ball. But I think there can be some leeway under the rule that applies to local conditions," he says.

Under the leadership of William Ward Foshay of New York, the USGA has ruled out the pendulum or "astride" putting style. Wording the rule was tough.

With the growth of golf as a spectator sport, and with more people playing it, Hardin says, HAVANA (AP) — The two-million member Committees for the Defense of the Revolution have set a goal of 50,000 blood donations for 1968. The neighborhood watchdog groups say they got 25,708 donations this year.

"We want to keep the game golf — not let it become croquet, shuffleboard or billiards, or let it degenerate into a game of gimmicks."

Hardin participated this year in meetings with the Royal and Ancient Club of St. Andrews in Scotland which virtually rules the golf world outside this country. These meetings have eliminated all differences in rules, saves on — British rules call for a slightly smaller golf ball.

"But the bigger ball requires more skill, and no one in this country wants to change that rule," says Hardin.

A Christmas Prayer For Each of Us

Let us pray that mankind will work toward a world of reason and understanding.

That in every man's heart, there lies much good and each will see not that which divides them, but that which unites them in better understanding, that each passing hour brings us closer to a final victory, not each country over another, but of man over his own weakness and evils of everyday life, that the true spirit of this Christmas season with its beauty, its great joy, and its hope and forever abiding faith, may live among all mankind, that the blessing of peace be ours to live always in harmony and be ever mindful of others for the survival of all mankind!

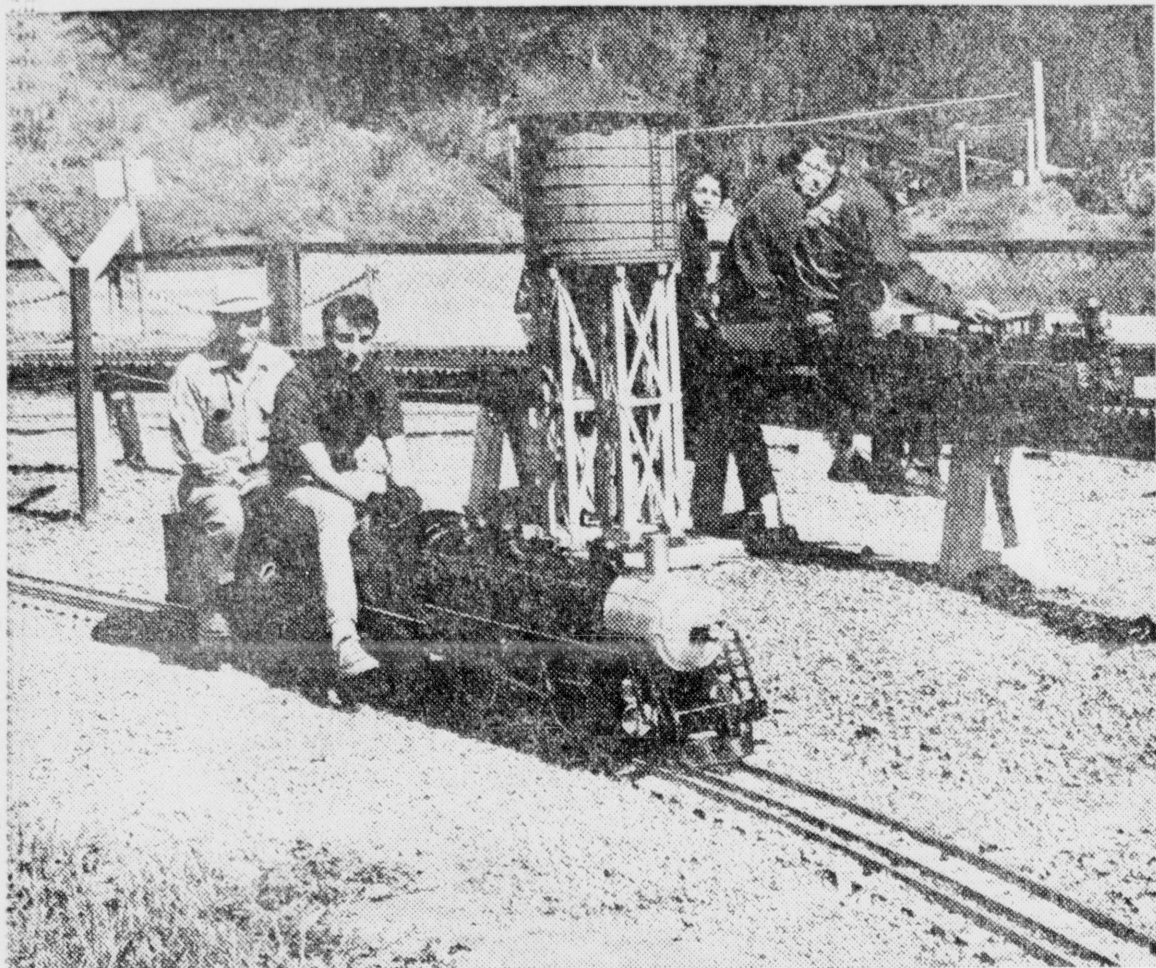

We are ever thankful to have such nice customers, and more added each day. May this Christmas season be joyful to each of you!

It's Always the Men Who Like Model Trains

By WILLIAM C. HARRISON
Associated Press Writer

OAKLAND, Calif. (AP)—Engineers are planning to relocate an entire railroad — station house, tracks and trestles — in the hills east of Oakland.

The engineers are operators of foot-high miniature locomotives. The Redwood Railroad is a scaled-down parallel loops.

One set of tracks is elevated so the engineer can dangle his legs comfortably from aboard a tender or flatcar as he stokes the engine and works the throttle. Another loop of wider, heavier tracks at ground level accommodates larger models.

The engineers are serious hobbyists who build meticulously accurate models of famous old steam engines.

A typical locomotive may be about one foot high, five feet long and weigh some 200 pounds. It can cost up to $20,000 or more.

The railroad and the engineers belong to the Golden Gate Live Steamers Inc. Bufts formed the club in 1939. Driving of solid gold spikes marked completion of one track in 1950 and the other in 1963. The club has some 190 members today.

The Redwood has outgrown its present regional park location. Club members have accepted an invitation to move to Tilden Park, 10 miles to the north, but they've worked out no timetable yet.

Accidents are rare and usually minor on the Redwood line. If a man uses judgment, takes care of his equipment and pays attention to what he's doing, he won't have any problems," says Harry Dixon of Castro Valley, charter member of the club.

Dixon once had his own 175-foot-long Dixie Short Line Railroad in his garden. Now he loads his Dixie Belle locomotive into the family station wagon and takes it to the Redwood tracks for Sunday runs.

"If I'm having someone else drive my engine, I go along behind on a flatcar, and I've got a hand brake so I can control the operation of the train," Dixon says. "If I see he's going to get into trouble, I can always brake him down. That's my responsibility; it's my train and I have to watch out for it."

Most of the engines use clean-burning Welsh steam coal or Colorado anthracite, but a few burn oil. Once a woman visitor, unfamiliar with the habits of coal-burning locomotives, stood too close to the track — but not for long.

Hot cinders, she said in a claim against the club, burned holes in her blouse. The club bought her another.

The Redwood's station house features a pot-bellied stove and an operating telegraph. Engineers and firemen usually wear striped overalls and trainman caps. Some carry big railroad watches.

Dixon, a retired toolmaker, is secretary of the worldwide Brotherhood of Live Steamers. Joining the brotherhood "involves no money," Dixon says. His job is unpaid but he loves it, corresponding with railroad fans all over the world. He estimates that the brotherhood has well over 1,000 members in the United States alone.

Railroad lanterns of gleaming brass, railroad calendars and scores of railroad books almost fill a study room he shares

By ROY MALONE
Associated Press Writer

ST. LOUIS (AP)—"We're trying to keep golf a game of great skill," says Hord W. Hardin, "and the way you do that is through the rules of play."

Hardin is the only nominee for the presidency in the United States Golf Association elections Jan. 27. He believes the biggest task for the organization is to get everybody to follow the same rules.

One would think that drawing up rules for golf would be an easy matter for the game's governing body, the USGA. But, in recent years, some of the professional players have said there should be different rules for amateurs and professionals.

The USGA feels, Hardin points out, that in golf, the only game where professionals and amateurs compete against each other, the same rules should apply for both.

Hardin, 55-year-old banker-attorney in St. Louis, has served in various capacities with the USGA since 1951.

"No matter how intelligent the touring player is, it may be expecting too much of him to be completely objective where the rules are concerned," says Hardin.

What's bothering the professional? Mainly, the new rules on the green, including continuous putting and "one-clean" of the ball.

Studies by the USGA show that timelost on the green is one reason why the game has slowed down. The new rules says each player should continue putting until his ball is in the cup in stroke play. But some of the pro's favor alternating puts.

Along with this is the objection that certain conditions require the ball to be cleaned more often.

Hardin, who is in charge of corporate trust and probate matters for St. Louis Union Trust Co., says he feels the ball-cleaning argument is one that may be resolved.

"I can remember just 10 years ago when a player had to putt even with a big glob of mud on the ball. But I think there can be some leeway under the rule that applies to local conditions," he says.

Under the leadership of William Ward Foshay of New York, the USGA has ruled out the pendulum or "astride" putting style. Wording the rule was tough.

With the growth of golf as a spectator sport, and with more people playing it, Hardin says,

SANTA and the PIGWIDGEN

By LUCRECE BEALE

CHAPTER SEVENTEEN MERRY CHRISTMAS TO ALL

CLAUS rushed back to the castle to delay the contest. The Pigwidgeon was impatient. He knew only he could lift the box of magic because it was screwed to the top of the North Pole. He was anxious to defeat Claus at last.

"But give me a change of clothing," begged Claus. "What I am wearing is not suitable for so serious a contest."

"Oh, very well," said the Pigwidgeon crossly, and he ordered clothes brought to Claus.

Nothing large enough to fit could be found. Finally the pygmies discovered a bolt of red cloth. Quickly they cut out and stitched together a red suit. It was a fine and handsome outfit but, unfortunately, too large. Claus stuffed several pillows under his coat to make it fit. Then, looking like a roly poly red rubber ball, he followed the Pigwidgeon to the lake.

The tiny box sat on top of the ice. Claus bent over. He wrapped his hands around the box. He gave a mighty heave. The box did not move. The Pigwidgeon cried, "You have lost! Now you will turn to stone!"

Claus shook his head and heaved once more. Suddenly the ice split, there was a snap below the water and Claus raised the box high over his head.

The Pigwidgeon turned pale. "You have lifted the North Pole itself," he gasped incredulously.

Claus smiled. He knew that it was Patrick Tweedleknies who had done it. The elf had broken under the ice near shore and had swum underwater to the pole. All the time Claus was heaving, Tweedleknies was under the ice saving on the pole until the tip broke free.

The Pigwidgeon said mournfully, "All my power is now yours."

"And what of the curse that has put all the children in the land to sleep?" asked CLAUS. "And the curse that keeps all elves underground?"

Marrying Young In New Zealand

AUCKLAND (AP) — One person in every three who married in New Zealand last year was under 21. Fourteen years ago the proportion was one in six.

Chairman of the Auckland Marriage Guidance Council, Dr. James Gilmour, said improved nutrition leading to earlier maturity is a factor.

Dr. Alice Bush, president of the Family Planning Association, said that young people, putting their faith in the welfare state, were marrying without any savings, and this made the partnership terribly vulnerable.

She said statistics showed that as the number of minors' marriages increased, so too did the number of pregnant brides.

Of 3,23 19-year-old brides married last year, 1,155 had babies within seven months, she said.

One 'No' Bark

NEWBURYPORT, Mass. (AP) — A mark one "no" vote against the city's new leash law. Casting the negative ballot is a pooch whose owner dutifully tied him up in the back yard.

Police said an unleashed dog took advantage of the situation. He ran into the yard, nipped the leashed animal and escaped with ease.

"Merry Christmas to all!"

"You may break them," said the Pigwidgeon. "The power is yours. My people are yours. This land is yours. But there is one thing you must know. No human being who has come to this land can leave. Though you will live forever you can never go home again."

"Never?"

"Once each year and then only if you have a message to give."

Claus was very sad. What was the good of living forever and having so much magic power if he could not do what he had loved the most: to sit in his little workshop at home and make toys for the children of the village?

Tweedleknies appeared. He tugged at Claus' big red trousers. "It is a good land," he said gruffly. "The elves can move here from their underground caves. The pygmies can stay here. We can all make toys and once a year you can take them not only to your own village but to children everywhere. All the world will love you and call you Saint Nicholas or Santa Claus."

Claus brightened. "I can fill a sled with toys and the reindeer can fly me," he said happily. "I will send for Mrs. Claus and she can make sugar plums and sweet meats to stuff in stockings."

"And always wear red because that red suit has brought us luck," said Tweedleknies.

"But," said the Pigwidgeon. "What of the message you must give in order to visit the world?"

"That's easy," said Claus. "I shall deliver our toys on Christmas Eve and my message will be Merry Christmas."

And that is the tale of how Saint Nicholas came to be the Santa Claus we know today. It may be true or it may not. It really doesn't matter. The message is the same: "MERRY CHRISTMAS TO ALL!"

Giving Gifts Is Tradition Of Christmas

Since the Wise Men gave of their treasures to the Christ Child, giving has been part of the tradition of Christmas.

The idea of gifts as homage dates from even earlier times, when kings demanded special tribute from their subjects during holiday seasons. Thus the Wise Men, in offering precious gifts of gold, frankincense and myrrh, expressed their reverence for the newborn King of mankind.

Giving to celebrate a happy time was a familiar part of many pagan festivals.

The Romans honored Saturn, their god of agriculture, with a winter festival called the Saturnalia. During this joyous feast, they exchanged gifts—wax candles, clay dolls and various trinkets.

When these pagan customs of exchanging gifts were transferred to the celebration of the birth of Christ, church leaders added a new idea; selfless giving. Through the ages, giving to help the less fortunate has been a special tradition of Christmas.

Sales Tax Exemptions Clarified for Churches

The annual church bazaar was well underway.

Toys, trinkets, cakes, pies, crocheted dollies, books, and other items were selling at a brisk pace.

"How much is the tax on this stuffed moose," one purchaser asked.

"Oh, we're a church. We don't have to charge any sales tax," the woman behind the counter replied.

Was this reply accurate? Not entirely.

Ohio's sales tax laws do provide for specific exemptions from the tax. For instance, food sold for human consumption off the premises where sold is not subject to the tax. No tax is charged on items sold to the state or any of its subdivisions.

However, when it comes to sales of tangible personal property by churches and non-profit charitable organizations, the rules are more complex.

Under the law, this type of organization does not have to charge sales tax on tangible personal property items sold if the number of sales programs, such as bazaars, do not exceed a total of six days in any calendar year or one day in any calendar month.

Once the total goes above this, then the sales tax must be charged in accordance with the rates set by law. Tangible personal property includes the toys, trinkets, planters and other items, plus any food consumed on the property where sold. The cakes and pies sold to take home are not subject to the tax.

In computing the days permitted under the law, all sales, whether the door-to-door sales of candy bars or a sale on the premises, must be included. The law states that all sales by groups within a church or non-profit charitable organization are to be considered, as sales of the entire organization.

So, if an annual bazaar or dinner is your only money-making function during the year, the sales tax status of your organization is generally easy to determine. However, once your organization begins having various sales by many internal groups, then proper records should be kept. Violation of the law may subject the church or organization to a fine of from $25 to $100 as well as incur liability for unpaid taxes.

(This article is based upon the law of the United States and Ohio. It is not intended to advise anyone on a specific problem. No person should ever attempt to apply or interpret any law without the advice of a lawyer.)

Prisoners Get Yule Desires

By STEVE JONES
Herald Staff Writer

One year ago the Pickaway County Jail housed two prisoners who had very different Christmas wishes.

One had stolen a car, hoping he would be caught and sent back to the state pen. The other was in for burglary committed intentionally in the hopes he would be released from Orient State Institute for Mentally Retarded persons, even if it meant going to prison.

James Zickafosse, who had served 15 years in the Ohio Pen on a charge of assault with the intent to kill, felt rejected by society.

Unable to find gainful employment, not eligible for relief and unwanted by family and friends, his one hope last year at the holiday season was to be sent back to his home of the past 15 years — the state pen.

HE got his hope when police in the Ross County village of Bainbridge arrested him for auto theft. He stole the car in Circleville.

Returned here for prosecution, he told authorities he wanted to be sent back to the pen. His request was granted, and he is presently serving a sentence of one to 20 years for auto theft.

James Russell Starkey had spent all but eight of 29 years in Orient State Institute. He had no family and officials of the institution would not release him. The Orient authorities reasoned that Starkey, who had presented a consistent behavior problem at the institute, could not be released without provision for close supervision.

Starkey finally ran away from the institute, stealing articles valued at $18. Charged with the crime, he was sent to Lima Hospital for the Criminally Insane, was adjudged sane and returned to Pickaway County for prosecution.

He entered a plea of guilty to the charge. Starkey believed that even if sent to prison, when released he would be a free man and not have to return to the state institute.

The report of the psychologist at Lima said that Starkey could probably function well in society with only moderate guidance.

BECAUSE of this report and Starkey's apparent sincerity in his desire to become a useful member of society, Common Pleas Judge William Ammer and Probation officer Harry Sark began a search for a person or family who would provide him with a job and the close supervision he needed.

Starkey was first placed with an area farm family. Because he had little experience with money, a savings account was established for him by the court. A part of his salary was earmarked for that account.

During the summer, Sark located a family in Meigs County who was looking for a hired hand to live with them to help with the more simple chores around their farm.

He was sent there, and his probation records transferred to the Meigs County Common Pleas Court.

According to Sark, the young man was doing fine the last time he heard of him.

Bit Nut Business

HONOLULU (AP) — Macadamia Nuts of Hawaii, located at Haina on the Island of Hawaii, is gearing up to process more than 12 million pounds of nuts in shell annually in the early 1970s.

Helping the growth will be $60,000 worth of new equipment and facilities. The company has 3,200 acres already planted or in the process of being planted.

Before the end of the year the company expects to install a $40,000 automatic kernel roasting plant.

Brooks-Yates School Gives Annual Christmas Program

The students of Brooks-Yates school entertained to a full auditorium when they presented their Christmas program on Wednesday.

Guests at the yuletide event and open house that followed were the Pickaway County Commissioners, Tom Downing, president of the County Board of Retardation, and a fine representation of parents of the students and interested public.

The total enrollment of the student body participated in the Christmas presentation.

The program included: 1. Narrated Musical Tableau, "The Christmas Story" by the entire school; 2. Singing: "Welcome — One and All" "Oh

3. Odd Shape, No-Box Gifts Can Be Completely Disguised

There is no doubt that the problem of the odd-shaped, no-box gift is enough to give the average person a mild Christmas psychosis.

How do you wrap an odd-shaped gift? One that is neither square nor rectangular nor cylindrical. It might be a family heirloom, sporting equipment, a musical instrument, a piece of sculpture or a "find" from an antique shop. It might have knobs, hinges, cords, legs, handles, heads or hands that simply don't fit conventional packages.

The first thing you must decide is how sneaky you want to be. Should it be thoroughly disguised . . . even to the extent of padding and protrusions under the wrapping paper? should it be bundle-wrapped or stuffed in a bag with yards and yards of ribbon on the outside to denote that is really is something important?

There are other containers besides boxes. Would the gift fit in a cardboard paint bucket? an oatmeal box an ice-cream or cottage cheese carton a clay flowerpot? an industrial barrel? These containers have the perfect character for the ordinary gift, and may be wrapped with paper ribbon, sprayed with paint, or trimmed to a far-thee-well with gift wrap tapes.

The cardboard cone. If the gift is lightweight, you can fashion a large piece of poster-board into a conical shape, tape it securely, and overwrap the whole thing with sturdy, shining paper. Now it becomes a stunning little Christmas tree with a full-made bow for a star on the top.

Put part of it in a box. The gift is a lamp, for instance, and you have a box large enough for the base, but the top sticks out. Easy. Box the base (packing it securely), and tape on a cardboard cover over the top hole of the lamp shade, cut it to fit. Wrap the shade with striped paper and tape strips of ribbon to the box at intervals, to make it look like an air balloon with a basket.

Wrap it in sections. Let's say the shape at one end of this gift bears no resemblance to the shape at the other end, as in a guitar. Wrap the sound-board section with a large piece of paper, and the neck with another, narrower piece to match. Hide the seam with a bow.

Imagination and surprise are the basics of beautiful gift-wrapping. Use yours on that odd-shaped gift with no box.

Prisoners Get Yule Desires

By STEVE JONES
Herald Staff Writer

One year ago the Pickaway County Jail housed two prisoners who had very different Christmas wishes.

One had stolen a car, hoping he would be caught and sent back to the state pen. The other was in for burglary committed intentionally in the hopes he would be released from Orient State Institute for Mentally Retarded persons, even if it meant going to prison.

James Zickafoose, who had served 15 years in the Ohio Pen on a charge of assault with the intent to kill, felt rejected by society.

Unable to find gainful employment, not eligible for relief and unwanted by family and friends, his one hope last year at the holiday season was to be sent back to his home of the past 15 years — the state pen.

HE got his hope when police in the Ross County village of Bainbridge arrested him for auto theft. He stole the car in Circleville.

Returned here for prosecution, he told authorities he wanted to be sent back to the pen. His request was granted, and he is presently serving a sentence of one to 20 years for auto theft.

James Russell Starkey had spent all but eight of 29 years in Orient State Institute. He had no family and officials of the institution would not release him. The Orient authorities reasoned that Starkey, who had presented a consistent behavior problem at the institute, could not be released without provision for close supervision.

Starkey finally ran away from the institute, stealing articles valued at $18. Charged with the crime, he was sent to Lima Hospital for the Criminally Insane, was adjudged sane and returned to Pickaway County for prosecution.

He entered a plea of guilty to the charge. Starkey believed that even if sent to prison, when released he would be a free man and not have to return to the state institute.

The report of the psychologist at Lima said that Starkey could probably function well in society with only moderate guidance.

BECAUSE of this report and Starkey's apparent sincerity in his desire to become a useful member of society, Common Pleas Judge William Ammer and Probation officer Harry Sark began a search for a person or family who would provide him with a job and the close supervision he needed.

Starkey was first placed with an area farm family. Because he had little experience with money, a savings account was established for him by the court. A part of his salary was earmarked for that account.

During the summer, Sark located a family in Meigs County who was looking for a hired hand to live with them to help with the more simple chores around their farm.

He was sent there, and his probation records transferred to the Meigs County Common Pleas Court.

According to Sark, the young man was doing fine the last time he heard of him.

Bit Nut Business

HONOLULU (AP) — Macadamia Nuts of Hawaii, located at Haina on the Island of Hawaii, is gearing up to process more than 12 million pounds of nuts in shell annually in the early 1970s.

Helping the growth will be $60,000 worth of new equipment and facilities. The company has 3,200 acres already planted or in the process of being planted.

Before the end of the year the company expects to install a $40,000 automatic kernel roasting plant.

Brooks-Yates School Gives Annual Christmas Program

The students of Brooks-Yates school entertained to a full auditorium when they presented their Christmas program on Wednesday.

Guests at the yuletide event and open house that followed were the Pickaway County Commissioners, Tom Downing, president of the County Board of Retardation, and a fine representation of parents of the students and interested public.

The total enrollment of the student body participated in the Christmas presentation.

The program included: 1. Narrated Musical Tableau, "The Christmas Story" by the entire school; 2. Singing: "Welcome — One and All" "Oh

FILLING THE LARDER — With the help of friends and family, Mr. Herman Davis butchered three hogs to fill the larder for good eating all winter long. The seldom-seen art of butchering at the Davis's had a new twist. After three days spent in processing and cutting, the fresh pork was placed in a large freezer. Two animals produced 150 pounds of rendered lard. Butchering was once an annual project of the Davis family, but it has been five years since they last supplied their own meat. Mr. and Mrs. Davis live on the Kingston Pike, south of Circleville.

Catholic Center Changes Evangelistic Tactics

By GODFREY ANDERSON
Associated Press Writer
LONDON (AP) — London's Roman Catholic Enquiry Center, after 14 years of angling for Protestants, has changed its tactics to aim for the millions in swinging Britain who profess no religion at all.

It still uses mass advertising techniques to put across its message. And the message is fundamentally the same. But Biblical texts and Gothic lettering are strictly out. Today's message is in the language of today.

Now instead the advertisement is topped with a single word in heavy type. The word is live.

Advertisements, shining amidst sex and violence from pages in the popular newspapers, used to show a priest holding aloft a chalice. Readers were asked if they knew what happened at a Catholic Mass.

Holiday Sounds Last Forever

Christmas memories are made of sound. Sounds which are worthy of preserving.

Christmas parties. Religious performances. Greetings to loved ones. Readings of Christmas stories. The music of Christmas. And the cries of wonderment and joy on Christmas morning.

Christmas is a new chapter every year in a family history. A tape recorder turns it into living history — history which can be heard by friends and relatives miles away, and in years to come.

It adds a new dimension to the photographs of Christmas. Photographic slide presentations and motion pictures are more vital when they are shown to the accompaniment of the sounds of Christmas. Even without photographs, sounds stimulate memories.

Recording the sounds of Christmas has become a simple, and fascinating way of recording family history.

One doesn't need to be an audio engineer to operate the new, modern recorders. The new cassette recorders are similar to instant load cameras. A tape cassette, which easily slips into the recorder, has eliminated the necessity to thread and handle tape. The flick of a couple of controls puts the recorder into operation. Sensitive, dynamic microphones can pick up sounds within earshot.

New portable reel-to-reel recorders, also are easy to operate and convenient to use. Like the cassette recorders, they can be operated either by household current or batteries. One new model also features automatic recording level which automatically records sounds at the same level, regardless whether they are soft or loud, close-up or at a distance.

Truckers Are Safest Drivers

UNIVERSITY PARK, Pa. — When winter weather makes driving hazardous, the safest drivers to meet or pass are the truckers, according to Prof. Amos E. Neyhart of the Pennsylvania State University's Institute of Public Safety.

"With snow and ice on the pavement," says Professor Neyhart, "I'd personally much rather meet trucks than passenger cars on the road. Having conducted commercial vehicle driving clinics for 30 years, I know that these men are far better trained than the average motorist to cope with winter conditions. They're real professionals and as pros they follow the rules for traction and visibility."

"Of course, fleet operators see to it that their equipment is kept in tip-top operating condition for driving on icy, snowy roads, often in fog and darkness. It's good business to check all tires, lights, windshield wipers, batteries, brakes and electric systems," said Neyhart. "Truck operators also check their tire chains and keep them in good repair."

"These drivers know the importance in time and money to say nothing of their own safety, of careful pre-trip inspection. Since driving is their livelihood, they have real incentives to drive more carefully and to help keep their vehicles ship-shape. They know full well that equipment failure or carelessness on their part can cost them their jobs and possibly their lives."

"When I drive I notice that commercial vehicle drivers generally observe safe driving practices, they maintain reasonable speeds, they follow at safe distances, they signal well in advance of turning or land changing, in short, they practice courtesy and common sense. I often meet motorists, on the other hand, who surely wouldn't last a week behind the wheel of a truck," he concluded.

Children's Home Busily Prepares For Christmas

By BETTY DAWLEY

Activity reigns supreme at the Pickaway County Children's Home as resident children prepare for Christmas.

Gaily decorated trees appear in both the girls and boys living quarters. The doors of the girls' bedrooms vie for honors as the best decorated. Christmas music resounds inside and outside the building, provided by records from the recently installed loud speaker system.

The kitchen is filled with the aroma of baking cookies. The girls are responsible for the Christmas treat. Some are for use at the home and many go to rest homes throughout the area—a gift from the children.

A kiln, recently purchased and presented to the home from the Columbus Auto Club, will be used by the children to make Christmas gifts to give their parents.

TRUE to the spirit of the season, the youngsters are not only recipients of good will, but they eagerly provide it.

It has been an annual project for the children to sell Christmas trees. This year, for the first time, they have cut their own trees. The monies recognized from the sale of the trees is put in an "Eager Beaver" fund set aside for the personal use of the children.

Pre-selected individual gifts are given the children by the Kiwanis Club at the annual party given in their honor, one of the organizations which entertains the children at Christmas.

The busy children have redecorated the activities room at the home where they will be entertained by a 4-H group and students of the Circleville Bible College.

Children spread the cheer of the season as they carol at designated places throughout the city. All take an active part in the special Christmas programs presented by the church they attend.

Community volunteers transport and accompany each child on a shopping spree. Funds from the Eager Beaver treasury are used to supply a prescribed amount of money, giving each child the pleasure of buying gifts for others.

MANY children from the home are invited into area homes to celebrate Christmas Day. Others are placed with parents or relatives, able to provide for them. And for children who might be left at the institution, a fine day of celebration is planned... an assured "Merry Christmas" for one and all.

High Hopes for Book

HONOLULU (AP) — Photographer Robert Wenkam and author William Lederer are working on a new book on the U.S. Trust Territory.

"We're hopeful that the book will be the catalyst that makes the United States get moving in Micronesia and make this area a full-fledged new territory," Wenkam said.

He said he hoped that the book, set for publication next fall, would be comprehensive enough to become the standard source on the Trust Territory.

Micronesia is "probably one of the most exciting primitive areas in the world," Wenkam said.

LONDON (AP) — London's Roman Catholic Enquiry Center, after 14 years of angling for Protestants, has changed its tactics to aim for the millions in swinging Britain who profess no religion at all.

It still uses mass advertising techniques to put across its message. And the message is fundamentally the same. But Biblical texts and Gothic lettering are strictly out. Today's message is in the language of today.

Catholic Enquiry Center advertisements, shining amidst sex and violence from pages in the popular newspapers, used to show a priest holding aloft a chalice. Readers were asked if they knew what happened at a Catholic Mass.

Now instead the advertisement is topped with a single word in heavy type. The word is live.

"The story of Christ is a love story," the hippies and flower children are told. "And Christianity is the religion of love. We all want to love and to be loved, to understand and to be understood."

The message invites those who want to bring happiness and purpose into their lives to write for booklets which tell clearly and frankly about the Catholic faith.

As in the old advertisements, discretion is assured. The free booklets will be sent at regular intervals "in a plain sealed cover" and "no one will call on you."

Another of the new advertisements takes this form:

"Born in poverty. Lived only 33 years. Spent most of his life in obscurity. Never wrote a book. Never had any position in public life. Was crucified with two thieves, and yet 2,000 years later, more than 950 million people follow Him."

The Catholic Enquiry Center has been operating from an anonymous-looking building in the fashionable suburb of Hampstead since 1954. It sends out its plain wrapped booklets to about 25,000 people each year, about 1,000 of whom later write to say they have been received into the Church.

A sample survey has shown that 46 per cent of those answering the center's advertisements are between the ages of 18 and 25. This was a major factor in causing the center to update its approach.

The original set of 21 booklets, one sent by mail each week, was revised and condensed to 11.

"There seems to be a suspicion of all organized religion among the young," said the Rev. James O'Brien, the young priest who took over direction of the center in November. "There is a much greater questioning about everything. And there is more uncertainty than ever before. We have had the leaflets made more scriptural and ecumenical. In fact, we are in a state of continual experimentation."

The real problem, said Father O'Brien, was to make Catholicism intelligible to people who had little or no acquaintance with the Christian faith at all—its message or its language.

The Rev. Kevin O'Brien, superior of the Catholic Missionary Society in London and director of the center until handing over to his namesake last month, regrets the passing of the radio pirate stations. He called them "good friends."

Radio Caroline and Radio London broadcast pop music interspersed with advertising to the swinging set all day until banned for illegal operation by the government.

"They served us well and reached an audience even the newspapers do not seem to touch," said Father O'Brien. "Some day we hope they will come back to us and we can advertise on them again."
